GRAVE OF SLAIN NURSE VISITED BY U.S. AGENTS

No Exhumation Permit Asked, County Health Officer Says.

AUTOPSY, HOWEVER, IS EXPECTED TODAY

New Fact in McPherson Case Is Revealed by Witness.

WINDOW FUGITIVE REENTERED ROOM

Dr. Thomas Ballard, Still in City, to Be Called Again for Questioning.

Three Department of Justice agents, sent to China Grove, N. C., to exhume the body of Mrs. Virginia Hurley McPherson, who was found strangled to death in the Park Lane on the night of September 14, spent yesterday in an apparently perfunctory visit to her grave without making any attempt to obtain a permit to disinter the remains.

Dr. C. W. Armstrong, Rowen County health officer, in advices of the Associated Press, declared that he had received no request for permission to exhume the body, but would comply if asked. Permission already has been given by A. A. Hurley, of Chester, S. C., father of Mrs. McPherson, who formerly made his home with his daughter in China Grove.

The three agents, including E. J. Connelley, J. E. Breneen and F. R. Fay, refused to make any statements yesterday in the North Carolina town regarding their visit, according to the dispatches. The exhumation and the second autopsy of the body is expected to be held there today, however.

Witness Gives New Fact.

Information that the man believed to have fled down a rain pipe from the second-floor apartment of Mrs. McPherson in the Park Lane on the night of her murder actually returned into the apartment instead, is believed to have been acquired by the Department of Justice yesterday from a new witness.

Policeman Robert J. Allen, whose sensational charges that the police had erred in adopting a suicide theory led the grand jury to indict Robert A. McPherson, jr., for the murder of his wife, was the first to advance the statement that a man had fled from the girl's apartment through the bedroom window, across a low roof and down the rain pipe to the street.

According to this new information, which the Federal investigators are believed to have acquired, however, the man is understood instead to have left the apartment by the bedroom window, run along the roof to the window of the living room, which he entered, crossing that room to the main door leading to the hall and thence down the stairs to the street.

Department Maintains Secrecy.

Agents of the Department of Justice last night continued to maintain their attitude of absolute secrecy and refused to discuss this witness or his testimony from any angle, and it was impossible to learn what significance, if any, might be attached to the information. Neither the agents nor the witness would admit the nature of the testimony, in fact, but from other sources it was learned that the witness had told of seeing a man leave the one window and reenter through the other.

One indication which such a course might convey is that the man apparently was familiar with the apartment and the roof which runs beneath its windows. Whether an accurate description of the man was available could not be learned, however.

Whether the new autopsy can be expected to reveal anything that will aid in solving the mystery of the death of the pretty nurse is considered doubtful, because of the long time that has elapsed since the body was found on the floor of Mrs. McPherson's Park Lane apartment here September 14.

Three Questions Unanswered.

However, it is hoped to learn the answer to at least three important questions which have been suggested by various witnesses who had an opportunity to make a more or less thorough examination of the body before it was shipped to the girl's former home in North Carolina for burial.

One of the points which it is hoped may be clarified is the possibility that an operation might have been performed on the girl which might account for the peculiar character of the bloodstains found in the bathroom of Mrs. McPherson's apartment.

Another question to be answered is whether or not Mrs. McPherson's skull was factured, and if so, whether the fracture was the result of a postmortem blow or whether it might have been te cause of her death, with strangulation employed by the killer later as a blind to cover the real

President and Family Go Window-Shopping

Pleasant Autumn Sunday Lures Mr. Hoover, Mrs. Hoover and Alan for Stroll; Attend Services at Friends' Church During Morning.

For the first time since he became Chief Executive of the nation, President Hoover strolled along the streets and mingled with the crowds in downtown Washington yesterday in a commonplace manner.

Responding to the lure of the bracing weather of the beautiful autumn day, the President, accompanied by Mrs. Hoover and their son, Alan, who is spending the week-end with them, left the White House in midafternoon, walked down Pennsylvania avenue and idled along F street, where they window shopped with the crowds and thence over onto Pennsylvania avenue again for several blocks before returning.

Although the streets were filled by the Sunday crowd, the President and his family apparently were recognized by few persons during their stroll. After the walk, they left almost immediately on a long automobile drive.

Only one secret service man, instead of the usual four, attended the group, although two White House policemen followed almost two blocks in the rear.

President Hoover and his family also attended services at Friends Church on I street yesterday morning. This event was marked with the usual preparatory traffic arrangements, and their trip to the church in a White House car was witnessed by a large crowd. Owing to the fact that the President has spent most of his week-ends at his fishing camp on the Rapidan River in Virginia, he has not attended church regularly during the summer.

DISTRICT QUIZ BODY TO MEET THIS WEEK

Sackett Is Expected to Call Investigators Shortly After Return.

BOARD'S POWERS BROAD

Senator Frederic M. Sackett (Republican), of Kentucky, who will have charge of the forthcoming investigation of District affairs, will return here Wednesday, it was learned last night.

He is expected to call a meeting of his investigating subcommittee—the subcommittee on police and fire of the Senate District committee—shortly after his arrival, so as to decide on the scope and the opening date of the inquiry.

So broad are the terms of the Blease resolution authorizing the investigation that the subcommittee could investigate almost anything and anybody. All the prospect is that it will be asked to investigate far more than Senator Blease (Democrat), of South Carolina, planned to investigate when he offered his resolution.

In addition to inquiring into charges of inefficiency in the McPherson murder case, it now appears that the subcommittee will be asked to turn its attention to alleged inefficiency in the case of the late headquarters detective, Arthur Scrivener.

Scrivener was found dead in a Georgetown alley on October 13, 1926, a bullet in his heart, a pistol at his feet and a necktie clutched in his hand.

Lieut. Ed Kelly, who was deposed as chief of the homicide squad recently for his handling of the McPherson case, also had charge of the Scrivener investigation. Kelly insisted that Scrivener, his "buddy" in the bureau, was a suicide, just as he insisted Virginia McPherson was a suicide. In each case there were those who differed with him, insisting that what he called suicide was really murder.

Now Turner A. Scrivener, father of the detective, breaks his silence of three years and declares that he is convinced his son was murdered. He tried to tell the investigators this at the time, he says, but they told him to "forget it."

The elder Scrivener, who lives in Winchester, Va., said he would appeal to Gov. Harry F. Byrd and Senators Claude A. Swanson and Carter Glass to have the investigation reopened. Senator Swanson said last night that until he heard from Scrivener he

TWO-YEAR-OLD BOY DROWNS IN POND

Paul Newman Strays Away From Children He Was Playing With.

FATHER RECOVERS BODY

Two-year-old Paul Newman, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Newman, of 210 Dulaney avenue, Virginia Highlands, was drowned about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon when he accidentally toppled into a lily pond in the back-yard garden of O. B. Pigg, of 218 Dulaney avenue, nearby.

Straying away from several children at play on the front porch of Pigg's home, the small boy entered the fenced-in garden through a gate customarily kept closed, and walked to the edge of the pond, where he slipped into the water. His 6-year-old sister, Mildred, gave the alarm that brought Pigg and the boy's father to the scene immediately.

Newman dived to the bottom of the 15-foot pond and brought the boy to the surface, where, after a few minutes of unsuccessful work of resuscitation, the two men speeded to Emergency Hospital in a car operated by Frank Allwine, 35 years old, of Virginia Highlands. Efforts to revive the lad proved futile and he was pronounced dead there. Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt viewed the body.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the funeral home at 809 Cameron street, Alexandria.

Three Killed, Two Hurt As Machine Turns Over

Avalon, N. J., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Three men were killed and two were seriously hurt tonight in an automobile accident near here. Those killed were Frederick H. Hauser, Camden, N. J., and William Sontag and Fred Young, both of Philadelphia. Hospital physicians thought Ernest Hauser, a brother of Frederick, might die of his injuries.

George Hapsact, 26, of Philadelphia, was less seriously injured. State police said it appeared as though the car skidded after a tire blowout and turned over three times.

Borah Hails MacDonald, Called Emissary of Peace

Senator Pens Article Expressing Views on Premier's Visit, in Which He Praises Latter's Interest in People's Welfare; U. S.-British Good Will. . . .

Senator William E. Borah has written for the New York World News Service his views on the visit of Premier Ramsay MacDonald. Mr. Borah is chairman of the Senate committee on foreign relations, before which any naval treaty must come before submission to the Senate for ratification. It is interesting to note, also, that Mr. Borah was one of the few public men, besides President Hoover, who met Premier MacDonald in conference during the latter's Washington visit.

By WILLIAM E. BORAH.

What progress was made in naval disarmament, what subjects were discussed and what the result of these discussions may ultimately be, what advancement was made as to specific problems by reason of Premier MacDonald's visit, may be a matter of speculation. But in the building up of good will, in the spread of respect and confidence, in the creation of a more favorable atmosphere, the result was immediate and unmistakable.

From the time he came ashore, amid the vast throng of welcoming people, until he took his departure, weary and overburdened with genuine hospitality, he added to and strengthened the cause for which he came. Unembarrassed, open, candid and appealing, he advanced his cause without seeming to do more than be a delightful guest.

Mr. MacDonald had one great personal asset which helped greatly the success of his mission. It was manifest that his reception was as spontaneous and generous upon the part of the people as it was upon the part of officials.

He is of the people. He has come up from humble walks to the premiership of a great nation; his rise, all things considered, has been the most exceptional, the most startling of any who has ever stood in his place. He is still of the people. He reveals

U.S. AND BRITISH SEA DOCTRINES MOCK AT PEACE

Two Nations' Conflicting Policies Looming as Stumbling Block.

RIGHTS OF NEUTRAL VESSELS AT STAKE

Question Has Disturbed Relations for Past Century and Half.

LITTLE PROGRESS MADE ON PROBLEM

Issue Is Regarded as One of Most Delicate for Negotiators.

(Associated Press.)

In taking up the freedom of the seas as one of the Anglo-American differences to be treated with the new formula of international friendliness and mutual understanding, President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald will have before them a problem that has mocked statesmanship and diplomacy since the beginning of the American republic.

For a century and a half this question of the right of neutral vessels to sail the seas free from molestation by warring nations has lurked continuously and menacingly in the background of Anglo-American affairs. Several times it has caused strained or ruptured relations.

It was the direct cause of the War of 1812. During the Civil War period and again in the early days of the World War it brought diplomatic relations between Washington and London almost to the breaking point. Finally it led America into the European maelstrom of 1917.

Delicate, Important Problem.

Ever a delicate problem, it is regarded by many commentators as one of the most important of all British-American differences, transcending, in their opinion, even that of the limitation of armaments and woven inextricably into that question. So often has the issue threatened to result in war that a final settlement, acceptable not only to Great Britain and America but to the other principal powers as well, would be, concededly, one of the most practical steps that could be taken to assure world peace.

Like other grave international issues, the problem has been treated historically in the light of war already at hand or feared for the future. A century and a half have seen little advancement toward a general agreement. But now, with the Kellogg treaty and the assumption that war can not take place as the fundamental principle of negotiations, MacDonald and Hoover may bring order out of the mass of confused precedents and establish by mutual agreement among the nations a definite and abiding law of the sea.

Both America and Great Britain have contributed to contradictory statements and policies which made the situation such at the outbreak of the World War that no one could say with authority just what the laws of sea warfare were. Neither has pursued an unwavering course or clung to a single policy. Each has, nevertheless, developed a traditional attitude which has become associated with it and has kept the two nations from agreement.

Two Conflicting Policies.

Generally speaking, but with one important exception, America has championed the right of neutral merchantmen to trade as they see fit without interference from belligerent nations. Great Britain, on the other hand, has traditionally stood for the right of warring nations to prevent food supplies from reaching the enemy, regardless of the neutrality of the vessel on which they might be carried.

America's one important deviation came with the Civil War. Anxious

Hearse Fired On, Searched for Rum

Men Apologize as Bodies Are Shown; Dry Chief Blames Hi-Jackers.

Chestertown, N. Y., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Two men, one wearing a uniform similar to that of the customs border patrol, held up a hearse bearing the bodies of two automobile accident victims early today and searched it for liquor after firing three shots, one of which found its mark in the automobile. They apologized for their behavior when shown the bodies.

Hamilton McCrea, agent in charge of the customs border patrol at Champlain, the unit which has charge of operations in this vicinity, classed the men as hijackers, explaining that no border patrolmen had been near Chestertown during the night.

The hearse was taking the bodies of Roy E. McGee, 44, and John Lytle, 14, to their homes in Salem, N. Y.

BORAH SCORES MEN IN CHARGE OF TARIFF BILL

Session Purpose Ignored by Those Assuming Leadership, Claim.

INDEPENDENTS STILL PROPOSE REWRITING

Party Chiefs Meet Today in Effort to Cut Out Useless Delay.

SPECIAL TERM'S END ONLY 40 DAYS AWAY

Measure's Passage Before That Time Is Believed Nearly Impossible.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Borah, of Idaho, leader of the Republican independent group in the Senate, said yesterday the tariff bill could be disposed of in ten days "if those who assume to be in charge will consent to have it conform to the purpose for which the special session was called."

He said the House bill was framed in flagrant violation of this purpose, and that the Senate bill "is only slightly less so."

The independent group has combined repeatedly with Democratic senators to defeat provisions sponsored by the finance committee.

"Those who are seeking to change the bill are not any more desirous of remaining in prolonged session than those who charge that we are employing delay tactics," said Borah.

Rewriting Still Intended.

"But we intend," he continued, "to rewrite the bill in accordance with the purpose for which the special session was called. We feel that we are well justified in doing so, not only in fairness to agriculture but in the interests of consumers generally."

Meanwhile, Senate party leaders, confronted with the almost impossible task of completing congressional action on the bill at this session, will confer today in an effort to agree upon a program to eliminate unnecessary delay.

Senator Smoot, of Utah, who, as chairman of the finance committee, has charge of guiding the Republican revision measure through the Senate, requested the conference. Besides himself, those attending will be Senators Watson, of Indiana, the majority leader; Robinson, of Arkansas, the minority chairman, and Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the finance committee.

Conference Is Balked.

A conference looking to an informal understanding to speed up the measure was to have been held Saturday between Senators Smoot and Robinson, but other engagements prevented the meeting. The fact that Senators Watson and Simmons now are to participate emphasizes the concern of Republican leaders who have expressed pessimistic views to President Hoover over prospects of the bill being sent to him before the regular session in December.

With less than 40 working days left in the special session, the Senate has yet to act on a single tariff rate. There are some 21,000 of them in the bill, although a large portion would not be disturbed by the pending measure.

Approximately two dozen amendments to the administrative provisions remain to be acted upon before rates are reached. Some of these will provoke at least a day of debate. A motion to recommit with instructions to limit the revision to agriculture also must be disposed of.

Usual Statements Made.

The usual week-end barrage of tariff statements appeared yesterday.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, in a statement issued by the Democratic national committee, said he could not believe Senator Watson

Father, Son Killed, Shot Through Back

Five Bullets Fired at Pair as They Talk in Door of Tenement.

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—John Serocco, 52, was killed and his son, Alfred, 22, was fatally wounded tonight by gunmen who shot them in the back as they were talking in the doorway of the lower East Side tenement house in which they lived.

Five shots were fired, the bullets striking Serocco and his son in the back of the head and body. The father slumped across the doorway dead. The son died a few minutes later at Gouverneur Hospital.

While detectives were detailed to investigate the shooting police reserves were sent to hold in check a crowd of 2,000 or more excited persons who gathered in front of the nine-story brick tenement house.

HOOVERS TO ATTEND SERIES GAME TODAY AT ATHLETICS' PARK

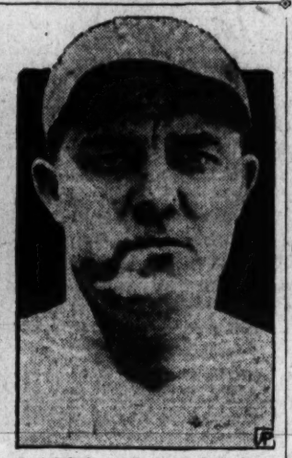
MALONE FOR CHICAGO; MACK CHOICE DUBIOUS



Lefty Grove (left) and Pat Malone (right) are expected to be the opposing pitchers for the Athletics and Cubs in the fifth game of the world series today in Philadelphia.

Experts See Lefty Grove as Logical Selection for A's Slab Work.

By ALAN GOULD.
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

Philadephia, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—With the Nation's fandom centering its interest upon baseball's great spectacle, the first fan of the land—President Hoover—will see the Athletics and Cubs renew their world series hostilities in the fifth game tomorrow afternoon at Shibe Park.

The President and his party, including Mrs. Hoover and Cabinet members, may witness the decisive engagement, for the Athletics, leading by three games to one, need only one more victory to clinch the series and add 1929 to the other triumphant years of Connie Mack's regime—1910, 1911 and 1913.

Today was an armistice in the series battle, with the combatants as well as noncombatants somewhat shell-shocked by the reverberations of the fourth game's spectacular cannonading by the Athletics.

Mack's Fourth at Stake.

Tomorrow's engagement will decide whether Connie Mack, the aged leader of the A's, is to reach his long-cherished goal of a fourth world's championship, something no other manager has ever accomplished, without further shift in the battleground, or whether the Cubs have the resources to stage another come-back after having absorbed the worst battering in series history.

The Cubs must win three in a row now to save the National League's prestige from taking another knock-out blow. The senior circuit already has lost eleven out of the last twelve world series games to the representatives of the American league. A three-straight come-back has been done twice in 26 other series battles since 1903 and as recently as 1925 by the Pittsburgh Pirates, but on this basis the chances are 13 to 1 against it, especially the way the Athletics have been showing pitching as well as batting strength.

Grove Logical Choice.

The A's will be particularly heavy favorites tomorrow if Connie Mack agrees with the experts for the first time and sends Robert Moses Grove, his dazzling southpaw, to the mound. Grove already has saved two games. He relieved George Earnshaw to stop the Cubs in the second contest, and held safe the Athletics' lead yesterday after they had put on their spectacular, record-shattering ten-run rally in the "lucky seventh."

The slim southpaw, for several years the ace of the Athletics' sharpshooters, has shown complete mastery over the Cub clouters in the 6 1-3 innings he has pitched, but he has yet to start a game. He is the logical choice for the fifth game.

Yet Mack, so far, has not in one instance started what the experts considered the "logical choice." He has started Ehmke, Earnshaw twice and Quinn in four successive games to confound the dope. He may very likely upset predictions for the fifth time tomorrow and come back again with Earnshaw, the iron-armed right-hander, even though he pitched a full game Friday, holding Grove again in reserve.

Pat Malone, who was knocked out of the box in less than four innings

100 TAKEN OFF SHIP AS IT STRIKES REEF

BELIEVED NOT IN PERIL

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 13 (A. P.).—The Canadian Pacific Railway Co.'s transpacific liner Empress of Canada, en route from Scotland to Vancouver, piled on the rocks at Homer Bay, near Albert Head, in the Straits of Juan de Fuca during a dense fog today.

The passengers were landed safely.

The Empress of Canada was returning to the Pacific via New York and the Panama Canal after being reengined and reconditioned on the Clyde.

Word from the scene of the stranding was that the vessel grounded during a dense fog at flood tide. Efforts of the Pacific Salvage Co.'s steamer Salvage Queen and two tugs failed to move her. The salvage steamer Salvage King was being rushed to the stranded vessel.

Observers on the shore reported the ship was stranded for a considerable portion of her length and had developed a list to starboard.

The Empress of Canada is not believed to be in a serious condition unless a storm from the southeast should blow up.

The ship, the largest liner plying the Pacific Ocean, sailed from Southampton September 18, calling at New York and San Francisco on her way here.

When the vessel grounded she had aboard 100 passengers, most of whom boarded the liner at San Francisco two days ago. Soon after the stranding all passengers were transferred to other vessels standing by and were brought to the Empress Hotel here. The vessel was due to leave Vancouver for Yokohama next Thursday with a passenger list of 1,100.

HUNDREDS GATHER AT OLD LEE HOME

Drive to Raise $500,000 to Restore Stratford Hall Is Launched.

GENERAL IS EULOGIZED

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 13.—Memorial services in honor of Gen. Robert E. Lee were held this afternoon at Stratford Hall, the birthplace of the famous Confederate leader in Westmoreland County, Va., before an assemblage of several hundred, including representatives from the Southern States who are participating in the move to raise $500,000 for the restoration of the old Lee home.

The services, conducted under the auspices of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation, were held on the day following the fifty-ninth anniversary of Gen. Lee's death and marked the start of a campaign to raise necessary funds for the purchase. High tribute to the Southerner was paid by Senator Allen W. Barclay, of Kentucky; Senator Harry B. Hawes, of Missouri; State Senator R. O. Norris, jr., of Virginia, and Dr. Albert Bushnell-Hart, noted historian, of Cambridge, Mass.

The impressive exercises were opened by the Rev. Richard V. Lancaster, who pronounced the invocation, with Mrs. Charles D. Lanier, president of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation and sponsor of the move to save Stratford, presiding in the absence of Gov. Harry Flood Byrd, who was unable to atttend the services. State Senator R. O. Norris, jr., of Lancaster County, extended Virginia's welcome to the distinguished visitors.

Following several special announcements by Mrs. Ambrose C. Ford, director of the foundation from Virginia, Albert Bushnell-Hart, professor of history at Harvard University, was introduced.

After a humorous reference to his father's visit to the South as a member of the Northern Army during the Civil War, Dr. Hart lauded the Confederate hero, saying in part: "It is not what I think of Lee but what the North thinks of Lee, the man who America now begins to recognize as the greatest American next to George Washington, who also was born within a few miles of here."

Dr. Hart was followed by United States Senator Allen W. Barclay, of

Gambler Is Sixth to Lose Life Over Gangland Beauty

Bullet-Torn Body Is Picked Up Like Other Gunmen and Racketeers Who Wooed Chicago Woman Known as "Nemesis Sweetheart."

Chicago, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The slug-torn body of George Riggins, 29, gambler, was picked up on a street here today and in his clothing were found love letters from Mrs. Jessie Lafferty, dubbed by police "the Nemesis sweetheart."

Five other men reputed to have been in love with the beautiful 28-year-old woman, have met similar deaths during the past six years, according to Lieut. John J. McGinnis, of the police homicide squad.

Mrs. Lafferty first came to police attention six years ago during an investigation into the slaying of Johnny Lafferty, her husband, also a gambler.

Police learned she had left Lafferty for Jimmie "Bozo" Shupe, and a few days after the separation Lafferty was found shot to death in his ornate North Side gaming establishment.

She was next seen with Thomas McNichols and Johnny Bowman, North Side gunmen, who were assassinated during successive weeks about a year ago.

An unidentified man who, police learned, had been seen much in Mrs. Lafferty's company at night resorts was found slain about eight months ago.

Following his death, Mrs. Lafferty, police said, returned to Shupe.

Several weeks ago Shupe was shot to death by an unidentified man, who fired from a machine driven by a woman, whose identity likewise was not discovered.

Jealousy over Mrs. Lafferty, along with a long-standing fight over North Side gambling concessions, were suggested by police as interlocking motives for the string of slayings.

Although evidence sufficient to warrant a formal charge was not uncovered, police theorized that Shupe and Riggins were the slayers of Bowman and McNichols. Shupe also was suspected of killing Lafferty. No suspects were named in connection with the other slayings.

of the second game, is definitely slated to make the last stand for the Cubs. Big Pat's fireball wasn't working so well his first time out and yesterday, when he was the fourth Cub twirler to face the A's in the turbulent seventh, he was hit for the double by Dykes that scored the deciding runs. Nevertheless, he finished strongly and ended the rally, even if it was too late to repair the damage done. It is his turn to pitch and Manager Joe McCarthy has decided to stick to his original plans. Hal Carlson, sidearm right-handed veteran, is in reserve or may start, if anything overnight develops to cause a switch in Cub plans.

If Malone should win tomorow and send the combatants back to Chicago for a sixth game on Wednesday, Guy Bush will have a chance to repeat his fine victory of last Friday over the A's. Mack's probable selection. In such an eventuality, would be Howard Ehmke, whose sidearm delivery benefits from the background of the "birdcage bleachers" located on a direct line from the plate to extreme left center field.

Cubs Not Too Blue.

McCarthy and his men were not as downhearted today as might have been expected after the shellacking they took yesterday at a moment when they looked like certain winners, with an 8-to-0 lead, Charley Root going great guns and the A's making futile gestures for the first six innings.

"As a matter of fact, I thought we had the series won up to the seventh inning yesterday," declared Rogers Hornsby. "I felt convinced that if we got up even with the A's yesterday, our momentum would carry us to victory. I still think we have a good fighting chance. We have come back too many times to be discouraged."

Joe McCarthy, Cubs manager, was quite philosophical.

"It was one of those innings when everything goes the wrong way, for the loser," said Joe. "The A's got every break. I still think we used the proper strategy in shifting pitchers. After four runs were in, Nehf was selected to face two left-handed hitters, Haas and Cochrane, with instructions to make them fly out. He did force Haas to hoist, but Wilson got in the sun what otherwise would have been an easy out. Then we sent Blake in against the right-handers, Simmons and Foxx, with the idea of getting a double play. Simmons hit the perfect double play toward McMillan. And what did it do? Bounced right over Mac's head and out into left field. You can't beat breaks like that."

What Happened to Root?

What happened to Root in the fatal seventh? That question was debated as much as any other, with the majority holding that the Cub right-hander, feeling himself safe, let down, started to "coast" and then, after slipping, found himself unable to regain control of the situation. Root himself denied this, but all the early events of the seventh inning indicated the Cubs were completely confident, even after five hits in a row had rattled off the A's bats. They did not become panicky until Haas' fly to center went for a home run, ran the total runs up to seven and furnished final momentum to the drive.

Babe Ruth has put on bigger one-man clouting acts in world's series battle than this, but no team has ever been on such a rampage as a whole before, with 15 men coming to bat and three players, Simmons, Foxx and Dykes, each getting two hits in a single inning.

Ten series records were either broken or tied in the bombardment.

The A's, however, have staged bigger rallies themselves in regular season play. This year they overcame an 8-run advantage held on one occasion by Washington, but their biggest splurge was four years ago, June 15, 1925, when they entered the end of the eighth inning eleven runs behind against Cleveland and scored 13 times to win, 17 to 15. A home run by Al Simmons was the climax of that amazing rally. It was the opening shot yesterday.

Hoover's Decision Sudden.

President Hoover's visit tomorrow will mark the first time in four years that the nation's Chief Executive has seen a world's series game and the second time that a President has made the trip to Philadelphia especially for the baseball championship series.

Fourteen years ago, when he was serving his first term, President Wilson came to see the Boston Red Sox defeat the Philadelphia Nationals, 2 to 1, in the second game of the series, October 9, 1915. He was accompanied by his fiancee, Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt.

President Coolidge attended several games in 1924, and 1925, when the Washington Senators were world's series contenders. So did Mr. Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce and a keen baseball fan, interested at that time, as was most of official Washington in the exploits of Walter Johnson and Bucky Harris.

President Hoover and his party is expected to reach Philadelphia at 1 p. m., half hour before the scheduled start of tomorrow's game, and will occupy boxes. The Chief Executive's decision to make the trip came unexpectedly in word received by baseball Commissioner Landis, who made arrangements for the visit at once with Mayor Mackey.

President Rearranges Schedule to See Game

(Associated Press.)

After a hurried rearrangement of his engagement list, President Hoover decided to go to Philadelphia today to attend the last world series baseball game to be played this year in the East.

He will be accompanied by Mrs. Hoover, the Attorney General and Mrs. Mitchell, Secretary Hyde, two of his private secretaries, Lawrence Richey and Walter Newton, and Lieut. Comdr. Joel T. Boone, U. S. N., White House physician.

The party will be met in Philadelphia by Mayor Mackey and will motor directly to Shibe Park for the fifth game between the Philadelphia Athletics and the Chicago Cubs.

While the President's decision was unexpected, it was not surprising to those who know his interest in the national game. He was present at the American League opener in Washington last spring, threw out the first ball and remained until the last man was out in spite of a cold snap in the air.

The program for the trip includes no ceremonies or public appearances other than at the ball park and calls for the party's return to Washington immediately upon the close of the game. The President and his party will travel in private cars attached to a regular Baltimore & Ohio train.

LEASE TO BE INTRODUCED

(Associated Press.)

The trial of Albert B. Fall on bribery charges will go forward today with the defense making every effort to expedite proceedings on account of the ill health of the former Interior Secretary.

A final decision on the five-year-old indictment growing out of the lease of the Elk Hills (Calif.) naval oil reserve is considered certain, as Fall has waived his right to be present in event a recurrence of his bronchial trouble makes it impossible for him to attend court. His illness also has determined the defense not to call Fall as a witness in his own behalf.

The jury of eight men and four women, which has remained under guard since the trial opened a week ago, now has before it testimony concerning Fall's purchase of the Harris ranch in New Mexico with money furnished by Doheny, and details of the negotiations for the Ik Hills lease to Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum & Transportation Co.

The story of the negotiations was given by E. C. Finney, First Assistant Secretary of the Interior under Fall, a Government witness. On cross-examination Finney testified Fall was not in Washington most of the time the lease was under consideration.

The Government contends the $100,000 Fall received from Doheny was a bribe for the Elk Hills lease. The defense maintains the sum merely was a loan to an "old friend." Prosecutors intend to introduce the Pan-American agreement today.

The Pan-American bid provided for construction of the Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, naval oil storage tanks, and Finney said this was one of the considerations which caused him and officials of the Navy and Interior Departments to recommend its acceptance. Fall was in New Mexico at the time, Finney added, and approved the papers without change.

100 National Air Tour Pilots Have Day of Rest

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—More than a hundred pilots, mechanics, officials and "cargo" of the 1929 national air tour loiled gratefully here today, glad of the opportunity to be "ground-minded" after eight solid days of flying.

The day of rest was a welcome breathing spell for the fliers, in preparation for the longest day's flying of the tour. Tomorrow at 9 a. m. the more than twoscore ships will leap from Candler Airport here over the Southern Appalachian Mountains into Murfreesboro, Tenn., and thence to Cincinnati, a distance of 500 miles. Members of the aerial caravan spent the day here, seeing the sky as others see it, as sightseeing guests of their Atlanta hosts.

Two Burn to Death When Autos Collide

Houston, Tex., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—A salesman was burned to death, a young woman killed and a customs officer injured, probably fatally, when two closed automobiles were converted into blazing infernos following a head-on collision on Galveston highway near Genoa, 18 miles from here, late Saturday night.

The dead: Charles E. Wallace, salesman for the Morning Glory Creameries, Houston, and Miss E. Davis, about 27 years old, Houston. The third victim is W. I. Hampson, a Houston customs officer. He was rushed to Emergency Clinic and Hospital, where attendants said he was near death. He incurred a fractured skul and other injuries.

Daughter of Diplomat Loses $24,000 Necklace

Paris, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Senorita Mila Patino, daughter of the Bolivian Minister to Paris, was robbed of a $24,000 pearl necklace today by a thief who invaded her bedroom during her 15-minute absence.

The necklace was given Senorita Patino by her father, who at present is in the United States. Police began search for a valet named Ortiz, who left the house shortly after the theft was discovered, and failed to return.

BOOTLEGGING HELD HALTED IN CANADA

Survey of U. S. Association Cites Benefits to Taxpayers by Control.

BANK DEPOSITS GROWING

(Associated Press.)

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment has concluded, after a study of the Canadian liquor control system, htat 93 per cent of the Canadian people have rid themselves of bootleggers by doing away with prohibition and adopting various methods of government regulation.

Other conclusions drawn from the investigaiton, made public yesterday by the association, were that government control "demonstrates that the liquor traffic can be so regulated as to prevent abuses which affect public welfare and morality. Intemperance has decreased and savings have increased."

Based on Several Systems.

The study was based on the operation of the various Canadian government control systems in all but two provinces—Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island—and the conclusions were offered, the association said, to "persons who may wish to know the facts about the Canadian systems, and particularly those who accept the evils of the Volstead act only because they prefer that law to the saloon."

The investigation was said to have developed that the trend of drinking was toward wine and beer and that, "except among the diehard prohibitionists, the laws are supported by a public which had previously refused to obey dry statutes."

Arrests for drunkenness for all provinces were said to be less than half the prewar rate. Per capita savings were placed at $166 last year, as compared with $141 in 1924.

"Taxpayers Are Beneficiaries."

"Taxpayers have been relieved, the association said, "by the annual revenue of $70,000,000 that lawful liquor traffic brings, some of which is devoted to mothers' pension funds, hospitals and educational and good roads undertakings." Most of this revenue, it is pointed out, formerly went to bootleggers.

The association said an accurate estimate of liquor consumption by Canadians alone was difficult, since more than 8,000,000 tourists from this country entered Ontario last year and a great quantity of liquor, charged to domestic use, was smuggled into the United States.

"Including all the liquor drunk by Americans, however," it said, "it is shown by the latest available figures that the Canadian per capita consumption of spirits has declined more than one-half from 1912 to 1928 and is holding far below the preprohibition rate."

cause and suggest the possibility of suicide, which was the verdict actually accepted by the police and coroner's jury until the grand jury indicted the girl's husband, Robert A. McPherson, jr., for her murder.

Third Question.

The third question to be answered is whether or not Mrs. McPherson's neck was broken, and if so, how.

If it is possible to find the answer to these questions in the proposed autopsy, it is believed that great strides will have been made toward solving the mystery of Mrs. McPherson's death.

9gents of the Department of Justice relaxed somewhat here yesterday after the strenuous day and night grind they have maintained ever since they entered the case about two weks ago, but nevertheless they were able to accomplish considrable in the way of interrogating new witnesses and clarifying hazy bits of testimony previously obtained.

Dr. Thomas Ballard, former suitor of Virginia Hurley, who has been staying at the home of friends in Washington ever since he came here from New York for interrogation Friday, is still in the city, and is expected to be questioned again today in connection with new evidence obtained from other witnesses during the past two days.

GREAT REBELLION SEETHING IN CHINA

Overthrow of Chiang Aim of Rival Forces Now Organizing.

FAMINE STALKS LAND

Peiping, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—China appears today to be developing one of the biggest civil wars known in the country for some time. Troops are mobilizing in nearly every province with the object of overthrowing the regime headed by Chiang Kai-Shek and installing Feng Yu Hsiang, the "Ghristian general," and Yen Hsi-Shan, the "model governor of Shansi," as heads of the administration.

The development is coming, too, just when the troubles with Russia along the Manchuria border are increasing, with the government treasury empty and with famine putting millions of people on the verge of starvation.

The civil situation is being brought to a head as a result of the Nationalist government's order that punitive measures be taken against the Kuominchun, or "peoples' army," as the troops of Gen. Feng call themselves. This order followed upon a fierce denunciation of Chiang Kai-Shek by commanders of those troops, in which the titular head of the government was accused of enriching himself at the expense of the state.

Chiang Will Not Resign.

Resignation of President Chiang would probably bring a halt to the movement, but that seems a most unlikely development. He has offered to retire on several occasions in the past, but only after a subversive measure has been put down. His most recent pronouncement was to the effect that he would die rather than relinquish his post in the face of rebellion.

In their denunciation of Chiang, the Kuominchun leaders charged that he had been drawing a million dollars a month from the national treasury for personal expenses. They asserted that he had usurped dictatorial powers and that while he had been ordering demobilization of the troops of other leaders, he had been recruiting his own forces.

They said that within two years he had floated loans for $400,000,000, of which the public knew nothing in so far as the expenditures of that amount were concerned. He was accused also of nepotism in that the most lucrative government posts had been given to his own friends and relatives.

Private Ownership Policy.

They summed up by saying that whereas Sun Yat Sen, father of the republic, had declared the state belongs to the people, Chiang Kai-Shek had adopted the policy of making the state a matter of private ownership.

The document asserted that 400,000 men were being assembled for a campaign against Nanking, the avowed object being the death of Chiang Kai-Shek as the only positive measure that would insure the safety of the country.

Reliable reports reaching here assert that antigovernment troops are mobilizing in at least seven provinces —Shantung, Anhui, Honan, Shensi, Kansu, Hunan and Kwangsi.

Thus far the attitude of Gov. Yen in Shansi is doubtful. It is predicted, however, by competent observers, that he will remain neutral. Neither has Gen. Feng appeared in person in the movement, but his hostility to the present regime in Nanking has been a matter of common knowledge for a long time.

Capital Man, Injured In Collision, Arraigned

Arrested after he is alleged to have crashed into a car parked on a road near Muikirk, Md., Harry Godwin, 26 years old, of Washington, was released by Justice of the Peace G. S. Phillips late yesterday on a $1,000 bond, insuring his appearance at Hyattsville Wednesday to face charges of driving when drunk and reckless driving.

Godwin is said to have suffered serious injury when his car crashed into the parked automobile of John Castle, colored, early yesterday. He was brought to Casualty Hospital in an unconscious condition, but after being revived was taken to the Ninth Precinct and subsequently was taken before the justice of the peace, who fixed his bond after the charges had been formally filed. Godwin was arrested by A. W. Plummer and T. L. Klapproth, Maryland State police.

Son of Doctor Fined After Auto Collision

Edward W. Devereaux, of 3 West Bradley lane, Chevy Chase, Md., son of Dr. John Lyon Devereaux, was fined $25 and costs by Justice of the Peace Howard W. Gosnell for reckless driving after he is alleged to have crashed into a car driven by Charles Sealing, of Simpsonville, Md., yesterday, near Waterlool, Md.

It is reported the accident occurred when Sealing swerved to prevent colliding head-on with another car. Devereaux is said to have smashed into Sealing's car from the rear and both cars overturned and rolled into ditches on opposite sides of the road.

He was arrested by A. W. Plummer, Maryland State policeman.

Flexible Tariff Clause Secular League Topic

Predicting that Congress will enact no bill giving the President power to fix tariff rates, Western Starr, chairman of the La Follette campaign committee in the District in 1924, addressed the Washington Secular League at its open forum yesterday afternoon at 1006 E street northwest.

"The great change going on in the world is substitution of economic processes for political in nations and between nations," declared Starr. "In this country this process seems to have given increased power to private interests at the expense of the rights of all the people, rights for which our forefathers fought and died."

Auto Skids Into Canal; Women, Trapped, Die

Montreal, Quebec, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—A closed automobile which skidded on the rain-soaked highway and plunged into the Soulanges Canal today became a death trap for two Michigan women en route to Montreal from Cornwall, Ontario.

The victims were Mrs. B. Slaming, 50, of Pontiac, and Mrs. James Fork, 38, of Kalamazoo. Their submerged car was raised several hours later. Doctors said the two women died of asphyxiation.

FAMINE CONDITIONS IN CHINA ARE WORSE

Hundreds Are Dying Daily From Starvation and Many Kill Selves.

BODIES LIE IN STREETS

Shanghai, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Famine conditions in China are rapidly growing worse, according to recent reports received in Shanghai from the northern provinces where hundreds have been dying daily of starvation for many months. No relief from natural causes is expected before next spring.

The province of Shensi is probably the worst sufferer. All 92 districts are said to be in the grip of slow death while in towns and villages bodies lie in the streets. Whole villages have been depopulated by death or desertion of homes while the surrounding country is as bare of vegetation as a desert. Drought, one of the longest in China's lengthy history, has kept arid for four or five years fields which formerly were known as among the most fertile in the country.

In the City of Sianfu, Shensi province, twelve concentration camps have been opened and nineteen relief stations are operating day and night. The bread lines are so long it sometimes takes two days or more for all the persons in one line to pass in front of the station and receive one scanty ration apiece.

Houses Are Torn Down.

In many villages people are tearing down their homes and exchanging the wood for food. In Sianfu a bushel of barley sells for $15 and the cheapest grain is $12. Houses worth several hundred dollars in ordinary times have been swapped for just enough food to last a single person two or three days.

Children have been abandoned or killed to keep them from dying of slow starvation. Numerous youngsters, hungry and crying, have been found beside the bodies of their parents. Suicides are numerous.

Autumn Crops a Loss.

The autumn crops in Shensi were a total loss. There is no seed for replanting and conditions must grow worse unless the government steps in.

The administration at Nanking is in financial straits and has called upon the people of more fortunate sections for subscriptions to relief funds. It has asked Shanghai and other cities to raise $5,000,000, and the public is said to be responding generously. Offices have also been opened to collect funds for the purchase of seed.

would make no statements as to what he will do.

Two of the senators on the subcommittee — Blease and Copeland (Democrat), of New York—will receive a call today from one who was largely responsible for the senatorial investigation—Policeman Robert J. Allen.

Allen, it is understood, wants to lay before the senators information which, he says, would be a sufficient basis on which to try Lieut. Kelly and Assistant United States Attorney William Collins for malfeasance in office. Like Kelly, Collins leaned toward the suicide theory in the McPherson case.

It was as a resut of a private investigation made by Allen that the grand jury held that Mrs. McPherson was murdered, indicted her husband for the crime, and bitterly criticized Lieut. Kelly and Inspector William Shelby for their handling of the case.

Shelby and Kelly have written to the Senate District committee and promised their wholehearted cooperation in the coming investigation, feeling confident that the investigation will result in a vindication for themselves

Striker Eelected Moscow Delegate

Gastonia Worker, Indicted in Riot Slaying, Named by Textile Union.

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The National Textile Workers Union bringing its Southern conference to a close, today elected a Gastonia cotton mill striker as a delegate to the twelfth anniversary of the workers and farmers revolution of Russia, to be held in Moscow November 7 and adopted a manifesto setting forth a course of proposed activity in the textile industry.

Russell Knight, Gastonia mill worker and one of sixteen persons who were indicted on a charge of murder for the slaying of O. F. Aderholt, Gastonia chief of police, during strike disorders there, was elected a delegate to hte Russian revolution celebration. Charges against Knight have been nolle prossed.

It was announced that Knight's expenses as a delegate would be paid by the friends of Soviet Russia organization, which seeks recognition by the United States of the Soviet republic.

SIX PERSONS KILLED IN PLANE CRASHES

Three Dead in Louisiana When Aircraft Comes Down in Flames.

MOTHER SEES SON DIE

Lake Providence, La., Oct. 13 (A.P.). Marion Hatch, 28, Lake Providence pilot, and passengers, H. Hollingsworth, 20, and Stanley Conn, 16, both of Oak Grove, were burned to death this afternoon when their plane fell in flames from 2,000 feet and crashed onto a road near the airport here.

The plane was seen to smoke and then flame appeared on one side Hatch tried to side-slip his plane into a landing so that the flames would not touch his passengers, but lost control. The impact, when the plane struck the ground, threw Hollingsworth out and broke both his legs. Badly burned, he lived for about 45 minutes before expiring.

Hatch operated the airport here.

Detroit, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—A passenger was killed and the pilot injured in an airplane crash 15 miles north of Detroit this afternoon. C. W. Kel, 19, of Detroit, was the passenger.

The pilot, Frank Wrede, 32, also of Detroit, is a police prisoner at a hospital pending the investigation of his status as a pilot. Wrede explained the accident by saying his safety belt became unhooked during a loop. The plane fell 2,000 feet.

Washington Courthouse, Ohio, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—While a crowd of 1,000 persons, including his mother, looked on, Estel F. Boyer, 24, of this city, fell to his death near here today when a parachute failed to open after he jumped from an airplane at an aerial circus.

Boyer was known in aviation circles as "Jumping Joe."

Huntington, W. Va., Oct. 13 (A.P.). John H. "Ike" Stewart, 38, Cincinnati pilot, was killed today when his plane crashed on the Hunting Air Field at Chesapeake, Ohio.

Stewart's small sport model plane fell from an altitude of only approximately 50 feet while he was endeavoring to perform a barrel roll in connection with a stunting program at the field.

Stewart, who was to have performed the same stunt at Cincinnati tomorrow in connection with the arrival there of the national air tour, was married and the father of four children.

He was employed as a sales representative and test pilot for the Mono Aircraft Corporation of Moline, Ill.

TARIFF BILL CHIEFS SCORED BY BORAH

was in earnest when he "stated to the press and to Mr. Hoover that the tariff bill would fail."

"He knows this tariff bill is not going to be written in the Senate or the House," Wheeler said. "No farmers should be fooled. This bill will be written by the conference committee regardless of the wishes of the majority of the Senate unless a majority of the Senate composed of the Democrats and the Progressive Republicans insist as they should upon the naming of the conferees."

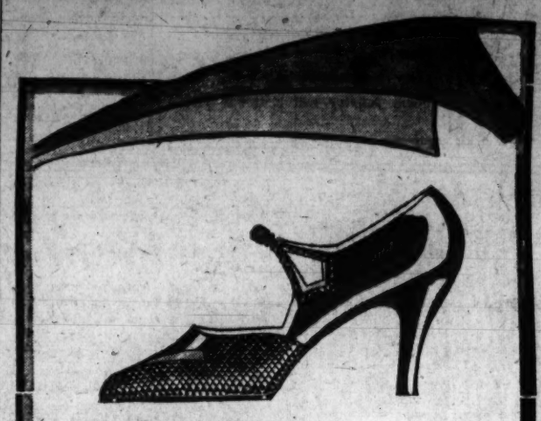
The Montanan asserted the bill would fail unless the steel, textile, pottery and glass manufacturers get further protection and that this would mean the failure of entire special session, since the farm bill was a "joke" as far as the wheat and cotton farmers were concerned.

Killing of Provision Hit.

Attacking the Senate's action last week in eliminating from the bill a new provision to permit manufacturers and labor representatives to intervene in customs cases against importers whree rate protests are involved, the American Tariff League said in a statement that the leadership of the coalition opposition by Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, "constitutes the greatest menace to domestic producers—labor, industry and agriculture—and strikes a vital blow at the welfare nad well-being of every American citizen."

Referring to the Democrats and Republican Independents who opposed the provisions, the league said they stood on the floor of the Senate as represenetatives of the American people and "denied that the American producers or American labor had any interest in the case brought by the importer nad in the decision on this case, which might mean the ruin of an American industry and unemployment for the labor in it.

"It is time the people of the United States gave thought to the problem as to just whose interests are uppermost in the minds of Senators Harrison, King, of Utah; McKellar, of Tennessee; Ashurst, of Arizzona, and George, of Georgia."



The silhouette idea has increased its scope to include footwear. This trim strap effect is a notable contribution to a popular vogue. In black or brown kid, trimmed with genuine lizard.

Inquiry on Lobbies Will Begin Today

Caraway to Guide Quiz; Notables Are Called to Senate.

The Senate investigation into the activities of lobbyists here will get under way at the Capitol today, guided by Senator Caraway (Democrat), of Arkansas. It will begin with an inquiry into the so-called "tariff lobby."

Among today's witnesses will be Chairman Marvin and Commissioner Brossard, of the Tariff Commission; Frederick L. Koch, an expert with the commission, and William Burgess, a former Republican member of the commission.

The Senate naval subcommittee, which dropped its investigation of William B. Shearer while Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, was here, will make plans for reopening its inquiry next week.

Replying to the demand of Senator Black, of Alabama, that lobbying in connection with Muscle Shoals be investigated, Charles J. Brand, executive secretary of the National Fertilizer Association, has advised senators in a letter made public yesterday that he "welcomes the investigation" and will give the Caraway committee "every aid that I can."

"This association has done nothing of which it is ashamed or which it desires to keep secret," Brand's letter stated.

Deaths Protested By White Russians

Demonstration Is Staged to Call League Attention to Massacre.

Tokyo, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—A Rengo News Agency dispatch from Harbin, Manchuria, reported today that a crowd of White Russians staged a demonstration before the German consulate demanding that the League of Nations be informed officialy of the massacre of 200 White Russians by Soviet forces near Hailar, on October 1. The incident took place north of Manchuli on the Manchurian-Siberian frontier.

An Associated Press dispatch from Harbin, on October 8, said Chinese and foreign sources had given support to White Russian allegations that 140 men, women and children had been slain by Soviet raiders, near Hailar. The Harbin demonstration was made before the German Consulate because that government is representing the interests of China in Russia and of Russia in China while the two governments are at loggerheads over the Chinese seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

INSANE PRISONERS IN CLEVER ESCAPE

Three Matteawan Inmates Not So Crazy, Asylum Officials Agree.

SAWED HOLE IN CEILING

Matteawan, N. Y., Oct. 13 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Three insane criminals, one a killer, were at large tonight, after the most daring and ingenious break from the Matteawan State Hospital for Criminal Insane since Harry K Thaw cut loose seventeen years ago.

They are:

William Rice, 33, committed two and a half months ago, charged with robbery in Kings County, N. Y.

William Murphy, 31, sent up six months ago, charged with extortion in New York.

Joseph Perenni, 28, committed two years ago, charged with murder in New York.

Exceptional intelligence, team work and coordination of activity were shown by the insane men both in breaking away and in eluding capture.

Use Ladder and Tools.

They used a ladder and tools left in a room adjoining their quarters on the second floor of the two-and-a-half story building in which they were quartered, which is one of the quadrangle of buildings inclosing the prison yard.

They knew there were no bars on the windows of the attic, 15 feet above their quarters. They knew also that electrical contractors had left tools in a room adjoining theirs on the same floor.

They made their way to this room some time Saturday before 10 p. m., the hour at which the inmates are checked up and put to bed. They found the ladder, just high enough to reach the metal ceiling. Using boring apparatus, they made a hole large enough to climb through.

They managed to catch the pieces of metal from the ceiling before they hit the floor below. The job was thus done so quickly that none of the guards, who were stationed at frequent intervals on the same floor, heard a sound.

Cable Used for Descent.

Climbing through the hole they had dug in the metal and the wood and plaster above it, the men made their way through the attic to a window opening on the outside of the building and let themselves down 40 feet with the electrician's cable, half an inch in diameter, which they found in the room where they began their operations. Their escape was discovered at 10 p. m.

Thirty armed guards of the hospital immediately began scouring surrounding territory. Posses were sent out, and local police departments all the way from Poughkeepsie to New York were notified.

Commissioner of Correction Raymond F. C. Kleb visited Matteawan today to aid in the search. Superintendent Joseph Moore, of the hospital was also on hand.

"They never would have gotten out if that confounded mechanic hadn't left his ladder there," said Commissioner Kleb.

Another criminologist, who refused to have his name used, declared that "if the fellows who escaped were mentally cracked, what was the mentality of the fellow who left the ladder there?"

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

THE Senate is about to investigate itself. Obviously a lobby which does not succeed in changing a vote not only is rather futile, but is of only academic interest to the public. The public interest could not be affected unless votes are changed.

So the measure of the menace of the much-talked-about lobby that the Caraway committee is about to start uncovering is whether any division of it has succeeded in seducing senators. The real question is whether any senator has been induced to vote for or against a proposal by a bribe or by some other insidius influence operating contrary to the real interests of his constituents.

* * * *

THE prediction is made here and now that no such overt act will be uncovered. The worst that is expected on Capitol Hill is that it may be shown that some ingratiating person has supplied senators with dinners and drinks.

The strong probability would be against even this being disclosed were it not for the fashion set on the Senate floor lately by Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, who named his host at a dinner given two years before at which flasks were to be had for the taking. But even Senator Brookhart did not charge that any attempt was made to influence his vote or that of other senators who were present. He has not even said that he knew in what legislation, if any, his host was interested, nor which way he would like his guests to vote in that legislation.

Washington is always full of lobbyists. It has been unusually crowded since consideration of the present tariff bill was begun. It may be that some of this army are operating quietly and insidiously. It may be that some of them have actually given money to senators. It is certainly true that plenty of them have made at least intimations that if they do not get what they want they will use their influence against the reelection of the senators and members whom they were trying to influence.

It would be little short of amazing if this had not happened with considerable frequency. The senators know the threat is there whether any such intimation is there or not. Witness the ease with which the average senator is stampeded by a few hundred letters or telegrams, even though the population of his State runs into millions. Noisy minorities are notoriously successful in popular government.

BUT no one relly expects that the Caraway committee is going to disclose any evidence of actual bribery. Nor is it going to go into threats made or implied to senators by their constituents. That would not be clubby. There is no telling where it might lead, and it would embarrass too many senators if it were started.

But most of the real lobbyists make all the noise they can. They pour out statements to the press, seeking to influence public opinion. They are far more delighted when they get some of their arguments in the home papers of the senators than when they get a chance to buy the senators a dinner, or give them a few drinks.

Senators do not vote against what they believe to be their best interests in the direction of being reelected because of dinners or drinks. But if their home newspapers are convinced by the publicity of the lobbyists that what the lobbyists want is in the interest of their States, a long start has been made toward changing a few votes.

* * * *

IT is a trite saying that every one is represented in such a contest as that now going on over the tariff bill except the consumer. Yet Mr. Coolidge obtained a considerable degree of popularity by getting taxes reduced for the unrepresented taxpayers. It is very noticeable also that senators whose States do not produce sugar, for example, are very apt to be strongly against increasing the tariff on sugar.

Incidentally, the sugar lobby is one of the best illustrations of what is really going on with reference to attempts to influence senators to vote for and against schedules of the tariff bill. In the first place it is probably the most numerous and far reaching. In the second place, there is a lobby against raising the duty as well as a lobby in favor of raising the duty, and each watches every move of the other it possibly can.

Like every other group which works openly for or against some piece of legislation, all these factions think they have the right to present their cases, not only before the proper committees, but to individual senators and to their constituencies through the newspapers.

This sort of thing, in vast detail, will be "shown up." The insidious lobbies, assuming they exist, will not be shown up.

PREMIER MAY TALK ON CANADIAN BASES

Statement Likely to Follow Parley With Dominion Leader Thursday.

DISCUSSED WITH HOOVER

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Before sailing for home next week, Ramsay MacDonald, Great Britain's prime minister, is expected to make an announcement of another important step in the negotiations with President Hoover looking to a better Anglo-American understanding.

Naturally the nature of the pronouncement is carefully guarded, but since it is to be made in Canada after conference there with Prime Minister Mackenzie King and other Dominion officials, speculation is that it will deal with a matter in negotiations which is of interest to Canada.

Statement Expected Thursday.

Unofficial information here tonight was that MacDonald would make the statement at Ottawa next Thursday, but whether it would take the form of a written document, or be embodied in the address he is to make that night at a dinner to be given by the government in the Parliament building was left to conjecture.

The British statesman will arrive at Ottawa early Thursday and will spend the afternoon alone with King on a visit to the prime minister's country property at Kingsmere. The official dinner will be held after the two officials return to Ottawa.

In his final statement before leaving Washington MacDonald said some of the matters which he and President Hoover had discussed would be studied by sections of the British foreign office, and that others would be taken up with the dominions as soon as might be.

Canadian Bases Topic.

It is no secret now that during the conversations at Washington the matter of British fortified naval bases in Canada and the West Indies came in for discussion. There was a suggestion by the President that these be dismantled, and, naturally, Canada would be consulted before the British government took any step with regard to the base at Halifax.

Although he has been kept fairly busy with official and unofficial engagements since his arrival in New York last Thursday, MacDonald has given time to official government affairs, and it may be that he already has set in motion the distant machinery which is to deal with subjects discussed with Hoover.

Prime Minister Rests.

Physically worn by the strain of the past ten days of negotiations, speeches and official engagements, MacDonald and his daughter, Ishbel, had a long rest today at the Westport, home of Miss Lillian Wald, director of the Henry Street Settlement in this city, before attending a private dinner here tonight.

Leaving their hotel in midforenoon, the prime minister and Miss Ishbel motored through the rolling Connecticut hills to "The House on the Pond," the country estate of Miss Wald.

Concluding the New York visit tomorrow, MacDonald and his party will leave here at 8:30 a. m. for Niagara Falls on a special train over the New York Central. In that city they will be he guests of the New York State reservation commission. The party will leave the train at Buffalo and motor to Niagara and Tuesday will be spent in viewing the falls and the surrounding country. The crossing into Canada will be made in midafternoon.

At Niagara Falls, Ontario, the prime minister and those accompanying him will board a special train of the Canadian National Railways for Toronto, arriving there in the early evening and proceeding to the Government House, where they will spend the night. From Toronto the party will go to Ottawa, then to Montreal and Quebec, at which port the prime minister will board the steamer Duchess of York on October 25 for the return voyage to England.

Pittsburgh Librarian Expires at Ann Arbor

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Dr. John H. Leete, former dean of the Carnegie Institute of Technology School of Applied Science and Pittsburgh city librarian for eleven years, died at his home here early today. He was 61 years old.

Dr. Leete, a graduate of Colgate and Harvard, was a member of the mathematics department of Pennsylvania State College for eleven years and was successively registrar and dean of applied science at Carnegie Institute. He resigned as dean to become Pittsburgh librarian in 1917. He moved to Ann Arbor a year ago when illness compelled him to give up his work in Pittsburgh. He is survived by a widow and a son, Alexander Leete, Detroit attorney.

Discarded Cigarette Cause of Fatal Blaze

New York, Oct. 13 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A cigarette carelessly tossed was believed the cause of fire which killed a man today in a four-story rooming house on Third avenue.

The fire was discovered about 4 p. m. when Patrolman Cullinan saw smoke issuing from the second floor. By the time firefighting apparatus arrived the flames had trapped three roomers on the upper floors.

Two of these, Albert Gray and John Smith, after trying in vain to get down the stairs, made their way to the second floor fire escape. Extension ladders were raised to them, and they were carried down to safety.

Inspection of the building later revealed the body of the third, charred beyond recognition.

FRENCH WILL DRAFT NAVY PARLEY REPLY

Officials' Initial Conference on Invitation of British to Be Held Today.

JAPANESE VIEWS GIVEN

Paris, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—A council of ministers, with President Gaston Doumergue presiding, will exchange views tomorrow on the French reply to the British invitation for a five-power naval disarmament conference in London. It is unlikely, however, that the French acceptance will be forwarded before another ten days have elapsed.

The text of the French reply probably will be drawn up at a second ministerial conference. That meeting will take place about October 23.

The newspaper Temps, which has a semiofficial standing, today commented on the joint statement issued in Washington by President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain and found a parallel between the present Anglo-American accord and the Franco-British agreement of last year, which came to an untimely end.

Temps Cites 1928 Failure.

"If the announcement that an agreement has practically been reached between the United States and Great Britain has been correctly reported, London and Washington are now in an exactly similar situation to that occupied by Paris and London in 1928," said the paper. "At that time the report that a preliminary accord had been reached between France and Great Britain brought out a perfidious campaign of the utmost bad faith in certain English and American quarters, even before they were aware of the exact terms of the agreement. That campaign, however, caused the accord to be abandoned.

"No agreement ever will be complete and satisfactory until it has been extended to all nations on the globe."

Japanese Program Outlined.

Tokyo, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Premier Hamaguchi, in a speech delivered before a rally of his political party at Nagoya today, says Japan "ardently desires that the coming arms conference shall achieve not merely limitation, but the actual reduction of armaments of all powers."

The premier said this reduction should be made proportionately and "thereby keep faith with the spirit of world peace and lighten the taxation of all peoples.

"We do not resent the assignment to Japan of naval ratios inferior to those of Great Britain and America," he said. "But that ratio must not fade below the minimum requirements for the safety of the empire That is an unchanging and unchangeable policy for all Japanese cabinets.

"We are hopeful that the disarmament problem is entering a brighter phase. We hope to see this intensified as the result of the five-power conference that is to assemble in London next January."

Army Fliers Maneuver At 25,000-Foot Height

Maneuvering pursuit planes at an altitude of 25,000 feet is the latest experiment made by pilots of the Ninety-fifth Pursuit Squadron, Army Air Corps, at Rockwell Field, Calif.

Maj. James E. Fechet, chief of the Air Corps, has received a report stating that Lieuts. Kirtley J. Gregg and Irving A. Woodring climbed to an altitude of nearly 5 miles above San Diego and there engaged in a series of maneuvers to test machine gun fire and fuel consumption under service conditions.

BIG SEATTLE CROWD GREETS RED FLIERS

Soviet Aviators Are Engulfed by Mob on Arrival From Alaska.

CEREMONY IS CUT SHORT

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The Russian aviators, flying their plane, Land of Soviets, from Moscow to New York, arrived here at 5:27 p. m., Pacific time, from Waterfall, Alaska, today. The Russians took off at 7:20 a. m., Pacific time, from Waterfall.

The Russians made the flight in 11 hours and 7 minutes. The route take was to the westward of Vancouver Island and then down the Straits of Juan de Fuca, a distance of approximately 645 miles. Poor flying conditions were encountered. Naval radio stations kept those waiting at the airport here informed of the plane's progress.

The Russians flew from Moscow across Siberia, and then approached Alaska by way of the Aleutian Islands. When they landed in rough water at Dutch Harbor, Unalaska Island, only the quick aid rendered by members of the United States Coast Guard saved the craft from destruction.

Motor Proves Faulty.

The plane was again threatened by storms at Seward, Alaska. The fliers negotiated the flight from Seward south to Sitka without incident, but were forced down at Waterfall shortly after they left Sitka for Seattle by a faulty motor. A new one was installed and they resumed their flight today.

With their arrival here, it was believed the perilous part of their flight was over. They will remain here until landing gear can be substituted for the pontoons with which the plane is equipped. The fliers will then proceed to San Francisco and from there to Chicago and New York.

The four members of the crew are S. A. Shestakov, first pilot; Philip E. Bolotov, second pilot; Boris V. Sterlingov, navigator, and Dmitry V. Fufaev, mechanic.

Mob Cuts Ceremony Short.

The aviators were quickly engulfed in a surging mob after they arrived. The welcoming ceremony, conducted by Dr. Carl Tiffin and William O. McKay on behalf of Gov. Roland H. Hartley of Washington and Mayor Frank Edwards of Seattle, was cut short by the milling crowd.

After some difficulty, the crowd was prevailed upon to stand back long enough to permit news photographers to take pictures. A photographer's flashlight failed to work and one of the fliers loaned him some matches so that the picture taking might be expedited.

The Russians then were taken to automobiles and hurried down town to the Olympic Hotel, which will be their headquarters here.

Dusk was gathering when the Russians arrived, but they had sufficient light to make a successful landing.

Boy, 12, Hero of Episode Involving Train and Cow

Along the track came a Washington-bound train from Baltimore, and on the track stood a cow, placidly munching grass.

The scene was Bladensburg, Md.

Robert Beachman Stindle, 12 years old, was walking through a field nearby. He saw the train and the endangered cow, which he recognized as belonging to a neighbor.

Robert was infused with a spark of heroism. Possibly he preferred that the one in peril be a curly-haired girl or a buddy. But, still, Robert liked the cow. So to the munching animal he ran.

And the train sped around a curve. And Robert fell. And the cow ran away to safety. Somehow, Robert struggled to safety.

The train raced on. The cow resumed its interrupted meal in the field. Robert rode to Casualty Hospital with the Prince Georges County rescue squad No. 1.

At the hospital, Dr. Rogers J. Young, of the hospital staff, weaved 25 stitches in several severe lacerations in the young hero's right leg.

Bomb Blast Damages Several Buildings

Geneva, Ill., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—A powerful bomb, believed by police to have been directed at a nonunion barber shop in the heart of the business district, damaged several buildings early today.

The loss was estimated at $5,000.

Zeppelin Stowaway Caught Before Flight

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Another stowaway was discovered on the Graf Zeppelin today just before the airship took off for a flight to Holland.

The would-be passenger was a Dutch mechanic, Gerhard Koepker, 26. He was arrested.

They will leave Washington tonight. The mission is composed of nine members delegated by Japan to represent that country in the Edison celebrations.

U. S. AND BRITAIN MUST THRESH OUT SEA POLICIES FOR PEACE

to make the blockade of the Confederacy as effective as possible, the Southern ports were closed by edict and the blockade effective in fact as rapidly as a navy could be built. Deprived of a profitable trade, British mercantile interests entered vigorous objection and a strained situation resulted.

The policy of the London government has fluctuated as the influence of the admiralty and the mercantile interests has risen or declined. Its most significant departure from the traditional attitude came with the Crimean war, when England as a temporary measure allowed neutral trading to go on to conciliate the opinion of the mass of neutral nations that lay between England and the secene of the conflict. Historians attribute this temporary waiver of a right long contended for as due, too, to a canny British realization of the futility of attempting to stifle such a self-sufficing land power as Russia by a blocade at sea.

U. S. Clung to Privateering.

Since the Crimean episode, spasmodic efforts have been made to bring the nations into agreement. With the British merchants at the height of their influence, the declaration of Paris of 1856 was ratified by the English Parliament. America rejected it because it abolished privateering, a method of naval warfare that had been found effective in 1812. This declaration gave belligerents the right to publish lists of contraband goods which could be carried by neutral vessels only at peril of seizure.

There were also conferences at The Hague and at London in the decade preceding and following the turn of the century which accomplished little or nothing of a practical nature.

The outbreak of the World War found the admiralty in power in Great Britain. Orders in council and lists of contraband virtually nullified the declaration of Paris and England returned to its historic policy of stifling all trade with the enemy. A serious situation between London and Washington resulted.

Now, MacDonald and Hoover may undertake to approach this old, vexatious problem from an entirely new point of view.

Problem in Different Aspect.

With the proclamation of the Kellogg treaty and the joint declaration of the British prime minister and the American President that the pact is to be an active factor in shaping their individual policies, the problem of freedom of the seas has taken on a different aspect.

The suggestion has been advanced here that in the coming discussion, America may recede from her traditional policy of demanding unlimited trade in time of war and agree to refrain from commerce with any nation judged to be a violator of the Kellogg treaty. Such a proposal would involve also a concession on the part of Great Britain and an agreement to unrestricted trade upon such a basis. It has been proposed, too, that new definitions of contraband and blockade may be evolved.

Kentucky, who was introduced as "a son of Kentucky, but a grandson of Virginia." Senator Barclay eulogized the contributions of Lee and Washington to mankind, and in conclusion said: "I pay tribute to Lee, not as a scholar, nor as a soldier, nor as a teacher, but as a man. A man whose loyalty was only exceeded by his heroism and his genuine Christian qualities."

Senator Hawes Speaks.

Missouri's greetings were conveyed by United States Senator Harry B. Hawes, who urged that Stratford should not be merely a Southern shrine but a place where all Americans might come to get the true inspiration of Robert E. Lee. "The inspiration of Lee's life was not so much in his valor in war, as his greatness in life. I like to think of him not so much as Gen. R. E. Lee, the warrior, as of 'Marse Robert,' the kindly man, the Christian man, the man who loved his fellow men and peace." Charles A. Stuart, of New York, son of a former owner of Stratford Hall, spoke of his memories of the home and the necessity of preserving it. Framed copies of a letter donated by E. T Stuart, of Philadelphia, from Gen. Lee to Gen. Burnside, requesting an investigation of the case of John W. Irwin, young Stratford County soldier, who was being tried as a spy, were presented by Mrs. Pope Yeatman, of Philadelphia. The letter resulted in saving Irwin's life.

Lee's Recollections Related.

A reading by Mrs. Newton I. Lewis, of Greenwich, Conn., from Miss Ethel Armes' book, "Stratford on the Potomac," giving Gen. Lee's own recollections of Stratford, was an interesting feature. Paul Wilstach, of Washington, author of "Potomac Lane," in a short talk sketched the background of Stratford. Resolutions written by Sidney Lanier, Southern poet, and passed by citizens of Macon, Ga., the year of Lee's death, which were only recently discovered, were read. Mrs. Horace Vandeventer read a poem dedicated to Gen. Lee by Virginia Fraser Boyle, poet laureate of the Confederacy.

Delegates and officials of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation will be in session at Stratford for three days.

Immediately after their return home an intensive campaign to raise $500,000 to restore the mansion and the old garden will be begun in all the seventeen member States. At the same time, organization work will begin in all of the other States.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

TARHEELS OBSERVE HOMECOMING WEEK

Celebration Is Centered at Raleigh; Daniels and Dixon Speakers.

FOOTBALL IS FEATURE

Raleigh, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Raleigh today welcomed former North Carolinians from every section of the country who are returning for Home-coming and State Fair Week.

County celebrations over the State opened yesterday and today homecoming got under way in Raleigh with home-coming services in all of the churches. Tomorrow and through Saturday the State Fair and home-coming will hold the center of the stage in Raleigh.

One of the features of the Home-coming Week in Raleigh will be the celebration of light's golden jubilee on the State Capitol grounds. The indirect flood lighting system to illuminate the entire historic capital, its lower floors as well as its dome, has been placed by the power company, which presented the system to the State.

Daniels in Presentation.

A special committee has been named in the light celebration, and it will have charge of the formal exercises Tuesday night, when Josephus Daniels, vice chairman of the general home-coming committee, will make the formal presentation of the lighting system to the State. Gov. O. Max Gardner will accept for the State.

The State Fair Grounds will be formally dedicated at noon Monday, with Gov. Gardner as the principal speaker. He will be introduced by Miss Anne Cherry, president of the North Carolina Education Association.

Joseph M. Dixon, Assistant Secretary of the Interior and former United States senator from Montana, and also former governor of Montana, will speak Wednesday afternoon at the State fair grounds.

Radio and Football.

The home-coming high spots will be radio broadcast by station WPTF at Raleigh, it has been announced. The dedication of the fair grounds, the celebration of Light's Golden Jubilee and the address of Dr. Dixon will be sent out through the air.

One of the other features of the week will be the North Carolina State College-Wake Forest football game in Raleigh Thursday.

The two big events of the day at Chapel Hill Saturday will be the dedication of the new $625,000 library and the Carolina-Georgia football game.

The Raleigh Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a dinner Monday night which will be open to all North Carolinians and home-comers.

Infantile Paralysis At Winchester Denied

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 13.—Persistent rumors that several additional cases of infantile paralysis had been discovered here and were under treatment were emphatically denied today in an official statement by Dr. H. I. Piler, secretary of the City Board of Health. It was stated at his office that only one case has been found here, that of a 13-year-old boy.

The reports had had a disquieting effect on parents of school children.

NORTH CAROLINA FAIR DIRECTORS

Above are the directors of the North Carolina State Fair, which will open today at Raleigh. In the picture are Thomas B. White, of Hertford, president; W. H. Joyner, of Garysburg; Jule K. Warren, Trenton; Dr. J. R. Rogers, Raleigh; Jefferson Penn, Reidsville; Arthur Ross, Asheboro; Mrs. W. A. Foil, Concord; Roy E. Hutchinson, Charlotte; D. Reeves Noland, Waynesville; Charles J. Harris, Dillsboro; P. E. Brown, Wilkesboro; Dr. E. C. Brooks, Raleigh; William A. Graham, Raleigh, and Mayor E. E. Culbreth, Raleigh.

M. E. Bristow is editor and Ernest C. Pollard, manager. The paper will be tabloid size.

Illiteracy Fight On in Albemarle

Teachers of County Plan Survey of Those Who Can Not Read.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 13.—Plans were drawn up and accepted by the Albemarle Teachers Association at a meeting yesterday to attempt a complete removal of illiteracy from the county. This move comes as a further step in the school board's program to "stamp out illiteracy."

Beginning this week, teachers will make a survey of all those in the county who can not read and write. The 1920 census placed the number at 750, but Supt. A. L. Bennett estimates that this figure has been reduced.

The plan, as it stands now, is to form classes for adult illiterates, under the leadership of capable instructors who will furnish their services without cost. The association feels it will reach a number of unschooled adults who really desire the fundamentals of an education, but who have not had advantages.

The association elected the following officers: President, H. B. Broadwater; principal of Meriwether Lewis School, Ivy; vice president, R. Claude Graham; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Raymond Gentry.

The carefully planned arrangement of news matter in The Washington Post makes it most convenient and enjoyable to read and also allows greater visibility for the announcements of its advertisers.

W. C. T. U. to Meet In Danville in 1930

Standing Committees for Next Year Revealed at Charlottesville.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 13.—Mrs. Howard M. Hoge, of Lincoln, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Virginia, announced last night that the next State convention will be held in the fall of 1930 in Danville, and that the midyear executive meeting would take place in Chester in the spring. Invitations were extended by representatives from these points at the annual banquet of the forty-seventh annual meeting and the decision to accept was reached yesterday afternoon at a conference of the general officers.

Standing committees for next year were announced as follows: Finance, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Strickler, Roanoke, chairman; banners and bannerettes, Miss Pearl Valentine, Richmond; convention seating, Mrs. Clara McCauley, Charlottesville; musical director, Mrs. Mabel P. Kelley, New Church; literature and supplies, Mrs. N. C. Nicholson, Loudoun; resolutions, Mrs. H. W. Sanders, Roanoke; Mrs. R. B. Story, Courtland, and Mrs. Jessie Dean, Clarendon.

Mrs. Hoge was reelected editor in chief of the State paper, Mrs. Herbert W. Sanders, Roanoke, was elected managing editor and Mrs. Mabel A. Taylor, Lincoln, circulation manager of the Virginia Call.

DISCIPLES OF CHRIST WILL CONVENE SOON

Several Religious Leaders of National Fame to Talk in Strasburg.

REPORTS WILL BE HEARD

Richmond, Va., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Several religious leaders of national prominence are scheduled to speak at the fifty-fourth annual convention of the Disciples of Christ of Virginia at Strasburg, Va., October 15-18, it was announced here today.

Jesse M. Bader, Indianapolis, Ind., national secretary of evangelism of the Disciples of Christ; F. E. Smith, Indianapolis, national secretary of the Disciples' pension fund for ministers, and B. A. Abbott, editor of the Christian Evangelist, S. Louis, Mo., are included in the list. Lee Sadler, minister of Hanover Avenue Christian Church, Richmond, will preside.

The convention will open Tuesday, October 15, with a welcome by Arthur Wake, of Strasburg, and a sermon by C. M. Gordon, of Norfolk. Wednesday morning's session will be devoted to reports by board and school executives and an address by Jesse M. Bader, of Indianapolis. John A. Tate, Richmond, executive secretary of the State missionary society; Harvey Baker Smith, Washington, D. C., and Mr. Bader are included in the speakers Wednesday afternoon, and B. A. Abbott, of St. Louis, will be the chief speaker Wednesday night.

The addresses Thursday will be by F. E. Smith, of Indianapolis; J. C. Helsabeck, Richmond; J. T. Watson, Lynchburg; F. W. Long, Clifton Forge; J. W. Hastings, Lynchburg; Jewell Matthews, Richmond; Arthur Ware, Strasburg; J. D. Kitchin, jr., Newport News; Percy Thomas, Richmond; P. P. Hasselvander, Danville; C. B. Reynolds, Sinking Creek; W. A. Ryan, Richmond; A. E. Simerly, East Radford; J. J. M. Strite, Lynchburg College, Lynchburg; R. N. Redford, Roanoke; M. Elmore Turner, Washington, D. C.; Dr. Cloyd Goodnight, Bethany, W. Va.

The valedictory address will be by B. A. Abbott, of St. Louis.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

ALEXANDRIA PLANS TEACHER MEETINGS

Seaboard Public Service Offices Will Move to Virginia Town.

MASONS PLAN INITIATION

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Definite arrangements have been completed for meeting of the superintendent and teachers of the Alexandria public schools, which will be held during the coming months, each meeting to be called at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The schedule follows:

October 14—The Teacher Outside the School, chapters 1, 2 and 3, Miss Armstrong; readings in Extra-Curricular Activities, pages 1-115, Roemer, Mrs. Ranow.

November 11—The Problem Child in School, pages 1-63, Mrs. Woodward; readings in Extra-Curricular Activities, pages 115-218, Miss Kiracofe.

December 9—The Teacher Outside the School, chapters, 4, 5, 6 and 7, Mrs. Rebecca Warfield; readings in Extra-Curricular Activities, chapters 5, 6 and 7, Miss Hodges.

January 13, 1930—The Problem Child in School, chapters 2 and 3, Miss Helm; readings in Extra-Curricular Activities, chapters 8 and 9, Mr. Reynolds.

February 10—The Teacher Outside the School, chapters 8, 9 and 10, Mrs. Cloe; readings in Extra-Curricular Activities, chapters 10 and 11, Miss Childress.

March 10—The Problem Child in School, chapter 4 and chapter 5 to page 217, supplanted, Miss Hawkins; readings in Extra-Curricular Activities, chapters 12, 13, 14 and 15, Miss Yates.

April 14—The Teacher Outside the School, chapters 11, 12 and 13, Mrs. Goodwin; readings in Extra-Curricular Activities, chapters 16 to 19, inclusive, Mr. Millican.

May 12—The Problem Child in School, page 217, supplanted to end of book. Readings in Extra-Cirricular Activities, chapters 21, 22 and 23, Miss Bialock.

It has been definitely decided by A. W. Higgins, executive vice president of the Seaboard Public Service Co. and president of the Virginia Public Service Co., that the general offices o the Seaboard Public Service Co., several offices of the Virginia Public Service Co., now located in Charlottesville, the office of the ice inspector for the Seaboard Public Service Co., now in St. Petersburg, Fla., and the offices of the director of publicity and advertising of that company, now in New York, will be moved to Alexandria on December 1.

The new building, which is being erected by the Virginia Public Service Co. at the corner of Prince and Washington streets, will not be completed before the early part of 1939, but since the employes of the companies mentioned have, in many instances, given up the leases of their houses and apartments, the company has decided to move the offices December 1 and find temporary quarters here pending the completion of the new office building.

This move will mean the addition of approximately 50 employes and their families, constituting a valuable addition to Alexandria. A number of the employes already have purchaed homes in the city or nearby suburbs, several of them locating in Belle Haven and others in Rosemont. Others are negotiating for the sale or rent of houses or apartments in and around Alexandria.

Arrangements are rapidly being completed for the class initiation to be held by the Scottish Rite Masons beginning tomorrow, in the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Temple now under construction on Shooters Hill. The class will number more than 100, and applications are being received by Percy E. Clift, secretary, in practically every mail.

Active members of the Supreme Council of the thirty-second degree Scottish Rite Masons will assist in conferring this degree. The work will be concluded Friday, with a banquet. Short talks will be made by many distinguished members of the order.

Alexandria Lodge No. 758, B. P. O. Elks, will open up its autumn program of work at its meeting tonight, and hereafter the meeting of the lodge will be held semimonthly. At each meeting sessions of the lodge will begin at 8 o'clock, and efforts will be made to complete the business sessions not later than 9 o'clock. Many new features will be introduced, according to Elliott F. Hoffman, exalted ruler of the lodge.

Reports of the delegates, who attended the annual reunion of the Sons of Veterans, held in Petersburg October 8-10, will be given at the regular monthly meeting of R. E. Lee Camp, Sons of Veterans, at Lee Camp Hall tonight at 8 o'clock.

An important meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce is scheduled to be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Miss Katherine Louise Fisher, aged 28 years, died yesterday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Eva B. Fisher, 5403 Thirteenth street northwest, Washington, and the funeral will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning from Wheatley's funeral home, 809 King street. Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery.

Lynchburg Woman Dies.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 13 (Special).—Mrs. Sarah Fletcher Grubbs Roberts, 69, wife of S. C. Roberts, died yesterday at her home, 1510 Pierce street, after a long illness. She had been a member of College Hill Baptist Church since her girlhood days. Mrs. Roberts is survived by her husband, two children and three sisters.

Paralysis Victim Buried.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 13 (Special).—Funeral services were held today at Whitacre, near here, for Mrs. Mary Largeant, 59, widow of William Largeant, who died Friday evening from a stroke of paralysis she sustained five hours earlier. Three sons, two daughters and two brothers survive. She was formerly Miss Peacemaker.

Rotary Club Secretary Ill.

Lynhcburg, Va., Oct. 13 (Special).—Waller G. Wills, jr., secretary of the Rotary Club, a young business man here, is ill, suffering from infantile paralysis.

MANY BOOKS GIVEN UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

385 DONORS ARE LISTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 13.—Thousands of volumes, consisting of subjects ranging from economic works to biographies, and from theological works to medical studies, were contributed to the University of Virginia library during the twelve months ended September 30, a report from Harry Clemens, librarian, shows. A number of almost priceless manuscripts such as autograph letters, works by American patriots and the like are contained in the collection. In all, there were 385 donors, and contributions came from all over the world. Following are a few of the most interesting gifts:

From Mrs. Mabel H. Anderson, Morgantown, N. C., 128 volumes of medical works from the library of her husband, the late James R. Anderson, an alumnus of the university.

From the children of the late Judge R. T. W. Duke, jr., Charlottesville, a set of 131 bound volumes of the "Illustrated London News," covering the period of the beginning of that publication in 1842 to 1919.

From Mrs. Mary C. Humphreys, Fincastle, Ky., 78 bound volumes of the "Revue des Mondes," from the library of her husband, the late Alexander Pope Humphreys, an alumnus of the university.

From Mrs. Eleanor A. Kent, several thousand volumes, formerly the property of Prof. Gessner Harrison, Prof. Francis H. Smith and Dr. Charles W. Kent, all former members of the university faculty.

From the late Prof. Albert Lefevre, about 500 volumes of philosophical works.

From Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Williams, Roanoke, Va., approximately 300 volumes of works on political science, selected from the books of the late Prof. Bruce Williams, faculty member for several years.

From W. O. Watson, Charlottesville, four autograph letters from President James Monroe to Judge Egbert Reed Watson, the donor's father.

From George Langdon Kilmer, Brooklyn, five autograph letters, including one from J. Esten Cooke, and one from Gen. Jubal A. Early.

From William H. White, jr., of Washington, D. C., an autograph letter from Thomas Jefferson.

Efficiency Institute Will Start October 21

The efficiency Institute of the Washington City and Vicinity Epworth League will be held October 21 and 25, inclusive, at the Mount Vernon Place Church, with the Rev. Allen J. Carter, of Nashville, Tenn., a member of the General Epworth League Board, as instructor.

The institute will be conducted in the form of a chapter specialization institute, and all phases of league work and chapter problems will be discussed. Registrations will be held between 6:30 and 6:45 Monday night, October 21. Dr. J. H. Balthis, presiding elder, will conduct the opening devotions at 6:45 each night.

Plunge Off Horse Fatal to Woman

Mrs. Keith Sturgis Dies in Hospital After Fall at Far Hills.

Chestertown, Md., Oct. 13.—Word was received here today by Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Whaland, of the death early this morning of their niece, Mrs. Keith Sturgis, of Far Hills, N. J., following an accident late yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Sturgis, well-known horsewoman and native of Chestertown, was thrown from her mount while riding at the Far Hill Hunt Club.

The horse fell on her after taking a jump and her skull was fractured. She died in a Morristown (N. J.) hospital.

Until her marriage a year ago, she was Miss Katherine Brice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Brice, of Far Hills, formerly of this town. Her father is master of hounds of the hunt club there.

She was 22 years old. The body will be brought here and buried in Chester Cemetery at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

MITTEN'S MILLIONS LEFT TO EMPLOYES

Philadelphia Magnate's Son Says Will, Invalid, Is to Be Carried Out.

ESTATE IS $2,600,000

Philadelphia, Oct. 7 (A.P.).—The bulk of the estate of Thomas E. Mitten, Philadelphia traction magnate, who was found drowned at his mountain estate last Tuesday, will be used to further the cause of friendly relations between capital and labor.

The value of Mitten's personal property is estimated at $2,000,000 and the real estate at $600,000 and upward. There have been estimates that the total estate may be worth as high as $10,000,000.

The will was filed today. It was signed on September 25, six days before Mitten's body was taken from Big Log Tavern Lake near Milford, Pa.

Will's Provisions Invalid

The provision leaving the bulk of the estate for the "advancement of the cause of cooperation between capital and labor and the furtherance and continuance of the Mitten plan," was found to be invalid, because no charitable bequest can be effective under Pennsylvania law if made within 30 days of the testator's death.

However, Dr. Arthur A. Mitten, only son of Mitten, who becomes heir to the estate by reason of the illegal provision, announced that his father's wishes would be carried out by him and that he would erect "the Mitten Foundation" for that purpose.

Washington Post, Oct. 8, 1929.

Another Reason for Making Your Will NOW!

If Thomas Mitten's son had not agreed to carry out the terms of his father's will, the wishes of the testator would have been disregarded. Making one's will is something that should not be postponed.

AMERICA'S SUBMARINE POLICY

The British note inviting the powers to a naval conference contains this paragraph:

> Since both the Government of the United States and his majesty's government in the United Kingdom adhere to the attitude that they have publicly adopted in regard to the desirability of securing the total abolition of the submarine, this matter hardly gave rise to discussion during the recent conversations. They recognize, however, that no final settlement on this subject can be reached except in conference with the other naval powers.

This statement that the United States Government wishes to abolish submarines might be regarded as a blunder on the part of the author of the British note if it were not for the fact that the note was submitted to and approved by the United States Government before it was issued.

What the American public would like to know is when and through whom the United States Government publicly adopted the attitude of favoring the total abolition of submarines. At the Washington conference the United States objected to the abolition of submarines. Just a year ago, on October 6, 1928, the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Wilbur, approved the revised declaration of naval policy as prepared by the general board. The first object of the "building and maintenance policy" was stated as follows, "To build and maintain an efficient and well-balanced fleet in all classes of fighting ships in accordance with the capital ship ratios." In its proper place appears the following subhead:

> Submarines—To build and maintain effective submarine tonnage in conformity with the capital ship ratios.

This was the "publicly adopted attitude" of the United States Government at the close of the Coolidge administration. Since that time there has been no revision of naval policy by the general board, no declaration by the Secretary of the Navy, no public order or announcement by the President, no law and no treaty that suggests a wish or intention on the part of the United States to abolish submarines.

The Washington treaty and the existing laws relating to the Navy provide for submarines as a part of the fleet of fighting ships.

In view of these facts, the public has a right to know the reason why the administration concurred in the British note's assertion that the United States has publicly adopted an attitude favoring the total abolition of the submarine. What basis exists for that statement?

The conversations between the British and United States governments looking to a naval agreement have not been made public. If the representatives of the United States advised the British representatives that this Government has changed its submarine policy and now wishes to abolish submarines the fact has been scrupulously withheld from the public, from Congress and from the Navy Department. No American naval expert has advocated the abolition of submarines, but, on the contrary, the general board holds that they are necessary components of a well-balanced fleet of fighting ships.

A proposal to abolish submarines would meet with determined resistance in the Navy and in Congress. Submarines of great size and wide radius of action are necessary for the defense of the Panama Canal, Hawaii, the Philippines and all outlying possessions, as well as for the defense of the two main coasts. The United States can not undertake to abolish submarines without jeopardizing the national defense, which President Hoover has declared he will not do.

It was a mistake to permit the British government to assert that the United States Government has joined it in desiring to secure the abolition of the submarine. This Government has no such desire. The attitude of the United States, as fixed by treaty and law, is misrepresented to the other naval powers by the British note.

The mischief in the British note lies in the fact that it ranges the United States with Great Britain against other nations. Although, in fact, the United States stands with France, Italy and Japan in opposing the abolition of the submarine, the note makes it appear that the United States has now shifted its position and is determined to stand with Britain in trying to abolish submarines. Obviously the note foreshadows an attempt to extort concessions from France, Italy and Japan as the price of permitting them to retain submarines. This kind of bargaining is abhorrent to Americans, and does not tend to promote the confidence and good will that must underlie any successful international agreement.

MERCHANT MARINE BLOCKED.

The United States Lines has asked for bids for the construction of two giant liners for operation in transatlantic service with the Leviathan, pending completion at a later date of four new superships. The liners now to be built will be of 30,000 tons, designed to maintain a speed of 22 knots and to carry 1,300 passengers. They will be combined cargo-passenger ships, 705 feet long, and they are to be ready for service in the summer of 1931. Bids will be opened November 15, and work will be started immediately, provided a Government loan and a mail-carrying contract are obtained.

Instances, such as this, of activity looking toward the reestablishment of the American merchant marine are very gratifying. When the United States Lines was turned over to the Chapman interests it was with the express understanding that it would become a nucleus around which would be built a passenger and cargo service able to compete on an even footing with the most powerful foreign lines. Immediately following the transfer, preliminary work looking toward the construction of new ships was begun, and now the line is ready to go ahead. But is the Government ready to carry out its side of the bargain?

The Jones-White merchant marine act provided for a construction loan fund that ship operators could draw upon, within certain limitations, for funds with which to construct new tonnage. The act further provided for mail subventions to become, in effect, a form of subsidy to enable ship owners to operate at a profit. But as the result of an unjustifiable "misunderstanding" as to the intent of Congress when it enacted the Jones-White act, the sale of the remaining Government-owned lines and the award of mail contracts has been held up, and Congress, although it has made appropriations for mail carriers, has been asked to clarify its intent. It will be months before Congress can take the action requested.

BRITAIN'S NEW AIRSHIP.

The British R-101, largest dirigible ever constructed has been moved from her sheds and is ready for the trial flights. The future of dirigible development in Great Britain depends upon the success of the R-101. For months the R-101 has been criticized as unairworthy, unsafe and a waste of money. Her designer, Commander Burney, has not answered the critics, contenting himself with dropping the suggestion that judgment be withheld until after the ship has been tried in flight. In the meantime, he has gone ahead experimenting and laying plans for a superdirigible that he hopes to be commissioned to construct.

No matter how successfully the R-101 performs in flight, she will have one shortcoming that has been common to all dirigibles; namely, she will be difficult to moor and will be at the mercy of the wind while being taken in and out of her hangar. It is this shortcoming that Commander Burney proposes to remedy in his new ship. He has become convinced that the floating airship represents the logical and necessary development, and his new ship will have a hull built along ships' lines beneath which will be slung two large pontoons. The latter will scoop up water for ballast and will keep the ship floating quietly on the water while passengers are being taken on or off. In addition, the new ship will have an elliptical bag, flattened at the top and bottom. This shape will expose less surface to side winds and make the ship far easier to handle in the wind.

Whether or not such a ship ever will be built depends entirely upon the success of the forthcoming flights of the R-101. Everywhere they will be watched with interest.

COLLEGE AND BUSINESS.

American youth has had two reminders during the last few days that a college education is not absolutely essential to business success. Floyd L. Carlisle, New York banker, told undergraduates of Princeton University that college education does not impart to young men the drive that business demands. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, in accepting an honorary degree of doctor of laws from George Washington University, remarked that the finest education is that which is obtained by personal labor and effort. Having risen without a college education to the highest position his country offers, the British premier advised young men that they may attain distinguished positions in business or political service without the aid of a degree.

It is not many years ago that university degrees were left to the scholar, practical men having no use for them. But since college education was popularized there has been widespread demand for special training in all fields. Following the World War college registration grew at a phenomenal rate, especially in the commercial schools. Young men began to feel that they had little chance for business success without college training.

Reaction against this theory can now be seen in many quarters. The annual report of Dr. Adam Leroy Jones, director of admissions at Columbia, shows a marked decrease in college enrollment all over the country, and he believes that that tendency will continue. A change may also be noticed in the public attitude. Few would go so far as Dr. Carlisle to say that the college man enters business with a four-year handicap, but the myth that higher education is an antidote for failure is fast disappearing. Young men who have not had opportunity to attend a university have no cause to be discouraged if they have backbone and eagerness to work.

BISHOP CANNON QUITS.

Early in the summer the Virginia State campaign was called "nationally significant." Today, so far as the outside public is concerned, there might as well not be any campaign in Virginia. True, Dr. John Garland Pollard, regular Democratic candidate, and Prof. William Mosley Brown, anti-Smith Democrat-Republican standard bearer, are waging a campaign of sorts, and the latter, particularly, is crying to the heavens in an endeavor to make himself heard, but it is generally conceded that Virginia next month will be made safe for Democracy, and that the result of the election will have no bearing upon national issues.

The situation doubtless explains the sudden call received by Bishop James Cannon, jr., to preside over a church convention in Brazil. The prelate-politician departed Friday, and with him went the hope of successfully employing religious prejudice for political advantage. If any one could have continued to foment bigotry, Bishop Cannon was that person, and now even he has deserted.

Bishop Cannon's desertion, for so it is regarded, seems to prove that he came to the conclusion that Smith, Raskob, et al., would not serve to inflame the Virginia electorate to the point where it would stab the Democratic party in the back. The Brazilian convention was not organized overnight. Bishop Cannon knew months ago that it would be held at this time and one may presume that he could have arranged for a proxy. But now he finds that his presence at Rio is necessary, which is to say that now he finds it advisable, in the interests of protecting his political prestige, to be absent on religious matters during the critical days of the campaign. One can not be in two places at once, even if one is both a churchman and a politician.

Another argument against finishing up the tariff bill before December is the world series and the opening of the football season.

The Farm Board having obtained senatorial approval, it now embarks on the larger task of obtaining farmer approval.

CONTROLLING THE WEATHER

By Calvin Frazer
In Popular Mechanics.

The artificial control of weather is far from being a mere dream of the future. It is already accomplished to a vast extent in all parts of the world.

Many of the most striking experiments in weather control have only been carried out on paper. These include the plan, for which a patent was once issued, to break up tornadoes by explosions, set off by the storm itself, and the more magnificent proposal, submitted to the Weather Bureau by a university professor after the West Indian hurricane in 1928, to prevent the great tempests of the tropics from getting a good start by blowing them up with explosives at their breeding places.

What, now, do all these plans, experiments and partial successes amount to? What can be done toward conquering the weather? Undoubtedly a great deal, if people were willing and able to pay the price. If the air of an orchard can be warmed a few degrees through a frosty night by burning of oil heaters, the air over an entire country or State might be kept warm indefinitely by a similar process, though of course the expense would be colossal.

Rain making on a fairly large scale is also feasible, by known methods, when atmospheric conditions are favorable, but not otherwise. It can then be accomplished by building a big fire. On a calm summer afternoon, when the atmosphere is well charged with invisible moisture, the column of warm air rising from a burning forest or a burning city eventually becomes capped with a cumulus cloud, and in some cases this has been observed to grow into a thunderhead, from which fell enough rain to put out the fire that produced it.

Of course human beings could imitate this process—as they have probably sometimes done by accident—and fires big enough for the purpose could be built without sacrificing either a forest or a city; but until some new and revolutionary method of generating heat at low cost is discovered, the expense of making rain in this manner will remain prohibitive.

Rain can not be made and fogs can not be dispelled by concussion. As Prof. Simon Newcomb pointed out years ago, if we stand in the steam escaping from a teakettle and clap our hands we do not produce a shower, though we jostle the water drops much more than does a violent explosion at the distance of a few hundred yards.

The problem of the rain maker is not merely to form drops in the air, but to make them big enough to fall as rain; and likewise, in most attempts to dissipate fog, the aim has been to cause the tiny drops of the fog to unite and form raindrops. It is now generally recognized that drops floating in the air do not readily coalesce unless some of them are electrified. An electric discharge between neighboring drops tends to break down the cushion of air that separates them and permits them to flow together.

The best results in rain making and fog dispersal are obtained by electrifying some drops positively and some negatively, by means of alternating currents, either sent into the air in the form of a brush discharge or carried by electrified spray or sand.

These electrical methods are now practicable within narrow limits. In time of war, when money is spent without stint, they might be employed extensively for clearing fog from landing fields, and in time of peace, the sprinkling of thin clouds with electrified sand or some similar process, might save a costly eclipse expedition from spending its time and money in vain. The prospects of general application to rain making and fog prevention do not seem bright at present.

RABBITS FOR RUSSIA.

While Canadians are experimenting with imported herds of reindeer for meat supplies, Russia is turning to rabbit-raising, says the New York Times. Meat has been scarce in Russia and farmers hesitate to invest in live stock which may be taxed or even confiscated by the government. The demand for more meat for Soviet workers has been so great that the problem was considered at a recent conference in Moscow of government representatives and agents of farmers' organizations. Since rabbits multiply rapidly and will eat many kinds of common foods, it was decided to establish an official rabbit farm. Three million rabbits, raised from imported breeding stock, will be placed with farmers. Instructive pamphlets and motion picture reels are to be distributed to show what an easy business it is to raise rabbits, and how quicly the profits roll in. In France rabbit is prepared with many appetizing sauces, and Ostend rabbits are considered particularly fine. German Hasenpfeffer is famous, and American rabbit pie is a savory and satisfying dish. Russian cooks will no doubt discover ways of preparing rabbit meat which will appeal to the national palate. If the rabbit crop comes up to expectations, it is planned to establish factories in which the meat will be canned, salted, made into sausages and prepared as concentrated soups.

LIFE.

We live and die,
We sell and buy,
We plant and reap,
And wake and sleep
And laugh and weep.

For rich or poor,
Or smart or boor,
Or fool or sage,
From birth to age
So runs life's page.

For place and gain
We plan and strain,
And when it ends
Find joy depends
On health and friends.

Strange life, indeed,
Is this we lead;
We envy kings,
But memory clings
To simple things.

Doing Without Food Is Fun if You Can Eat Whenever You Choose

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A certain rich bachelor named Bill had a man servant named Jeems, a capacity for philosophy and a bad case of boredom.

"Jeems," said he, "I am fed up. Luxury gives me a pain in the neck. My life is dull and stupid because there is no risk in it. You can't get a kick out of playing if there is no danger of losing. Wealth and security have made life a bore. What shall I do?"

"The solution is simple," said Jeems. "Turn your affairs over to me; clothe yourself in the garments of a working man; provide yourself with $5 of capital and disappear. In some other community you can live the simple life, depend upon your own exertions for your bread, endure the risks and hardships of the poor, and find life a great adventure."

Wonderful idea! Bill adopted it eagerly, shifted his financial responsibilities to the shoulders of Jeems, and one week later was employd by an Irish contractor who called him Fatty and paid him $3 a day.

The fat quickly disappeared. Bill's hands became hard and his eyes bright, and within a month he was proud of his ability to digest cabbage and manipulate a spade.

"This is the life," said he. "This is real. I earn my bread and my rest. And there is a thrill in knowing I shall get fired if I don't keep a civil tongue in my head and do good work."

Occasionally he heard from Jeems that all was well, but the old life seemed far away and did not interest him.

Once he wrote Jeems a letter, saying: "Wealth is worthless, my boy. It is merely fodder for fat cattle in a stall. I have found the good life and the fine adventure of it gives me a thrill that gladdens every hour. I rejoice in tired muscles and delight in pinching pennies to buy a new pair of shoes."

If only the story could end there. But, alas! One fine morning brought a shocking note from Jeems. "Since you don't care for wealth," it read, "I have turned your holdings into cash and skipped for Paris. Now you can enjoy your great adventure for life."

Bill dropped the note. His face was white and his knees shook. Stark fear gripped him.

"Merciful heavens," he gasped. "I am ruined."

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MARKET LETTERS FOR THE LADY INVESTORS' ROOM.

CASE THRESHING MACHINE — Here, ladies, is a security that will give you that distinctly alluring look. It combines dignity and good taste with a certain youthful elegance, and there are few stocks in which a woman can look smarter this fall and winter. Earnings for 1929 were at the perfectly charming rate of $25 per share on the common stock, which we regards as too lovely for words. Certificates in all the newer shades are being issued at about $450 per.

• • • •

COLORADO FUEL & IRON—This is a stock, which many discriminating critics think has enticing beauty. Of very practical design, Colorado Fuel & Iron is suited to any complexion or figure. It is being offered all this week at around $72. Although this is not the time to go into the dull and material details of the company's business, it may be said that it is a most charming organization and turns out some of the darlingest coal and iron imaginable. We love it.

• • • •

GABRIEL SNUBBERS—Here, as the name suggests, is something for the woman who wishes to be real ultra, as it were. It is distinctly different, the 1929 line being authentic in expressing every nuance of the mode. We feel that our lady customers will be pleased to know that the directors of this company are all young and handsome.

• • • •

ALLEGHENY CORPORATION—This is a new offering of enticing beauty, with a delicate sheerness that creates an exquisite sense of luxury. The certificates have that modernistic glace finish, producing a subdued velvety tone. The Van Swerengen boys, who control this corporation, are splendid companions and not at all bad looking. We feel that a few hundred shares of Allegheny will help you maintain that youthful loveliness.

• • • •

JOHNS-MANVILLE—Here is something for the woman who loves outdoor life and plenty of action. We can think of nothing better for sports purposes this season. You will find it popular with market operators wherever fashion holds sway—Paris, Deuville, the Lido, Palm Beach, Aiken. It will help you preserve those slim lines. New certificates are being shown in shades that blend gayety with more than a dash of reticence; shades that are young, but infinitely sophisticated. The new president is a young man who is quite handsome.

• • • •

COMMERCIAL INVESTMENT TRUST WARRANTS—As you have probably observed, warrants are considered very subtle and chic this season. There is a great demand for them among people who know. They are regarded in many circles as deliciously frivolous and quite the proper caper. Commercial Investment Trust Warrants have a certain swagger that is hard to duplicate. Stock-certificates come in the new blush-rose tint, now all the rage. No matter what your age, figure or complexion, we feel you would look very fetching in these warrants.

CAN YOU REMEMBER—

Away back when a safety-razor blade was good for more than one shave?

The price of cigarettes has been raised. Due no doubt to the high cost of indorsements.

FOOTBALL NOTE.

Application has been made to convert a big distillery into a football stadium. This reverses the usual October process.

Senator Sheppard, of Texas, has a bill to make the buyer of a drink equally liable with the seller. That's going too far. The man who takes a drink of the stuff they sell these days has been punished enough.

Mrs. Elmer Twitchell is all broken up. She has received news that her athletic son, now at a big college, has only been able to qualify as a substitute cheer-leader.

ADD MAJOR MYSTERIES.

1—Why does the service station mechanic prefer to wipe his hands on the steering-wheel instead of a towel?

2—Why do motorcycle policemen hold up a few men a day and take a $10 bribe when they could average more by arresting many men and taking $5.

3—Why is the first melon the waiter brings you always tasteless?

SOMEBODY'S ERROR.

Said Schwab to Shearer,
"I never met you;"
Said Shearer to Schwab,
"I'd like to bet you."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Senate's Action on Obscene Books. Public Against Flooding of the Country With Filth.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator Cutting won his fight against censorship by customs inspectors only in so far as literature is concerned. The Senate retained the prohibitive clause against so-called "seditious" literature and against obscene paintings, photographs, lottery tickets, &c., changing its attitude only in respect to books, pamphlets and other forms of writing. The narrow margin by which the amendment was approved and the assurance of Senator Smoot that another vote will be taken when the bill is reported to the Senate by the committee of the whole indicate that the Senate is not yet fully convinced that it should open the doors to world filth.

The moral issue involved apparently was the Senate's chief concern. Senator Smoot took the position that it is better to bar a few classics, than to have the country flooded with corrupting and seditious books. Senator Cutting contended that if an American citizen is not capable of deciding what he should read he is incapable of selecting representatives of government. And Senator Borah asked if any member of the Senate would be content to allow a customs clerk to select his library. Then followed masterful denunciations of all pornographic foreign writers who would corrupt American minds.

Practical aspects of the question seem to have been neglected. In the first place it is a physical impossibility for customs officers to read all the books in travelers' trunks. An unsuspicious wrapper on an intolerably filthy novel may give it a clean bill of health on a busy day. Even in the case of wholesale importation, when customs clerks have sufficient time to study the book, they are seldom competent to pass on its inherent value. Censorship under such circumstances is uncertain and unsatisfactory. But if obscene pictures can be excluded, why not obscene books?

One phase of censorship which is too generally ignored on Capitol Hill is the fact that restriction of a book becomes an effective advertisement to the prurient. Hundreds of indecent books owe their popularity to an official ban against them. But the public stands against the flooding of the country with obscene literature. C. P. JAMESON.

Railroad Locomotive Smoke Screens Heavy Contributors to Washington's Smoke Nuisance.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Apropos of your editorial on "Smoke and Soot," and your closing assertion that "it is only through cooperation of individuals that Washington can again be made a spotless town," may I respectfully suggest that you include railroads in your next discourse on this subject? Baltimore & Ohio Railroad trains leaving Washington daily lay heavy black clouds of smoke over the beautiful communities within several blocks of their tracks all the way from Eckington to beyond University Station, Brookland, smoke-screens which, by comparison, would put to shame the best efforts of the Army and Navy to produce the same effect in military maneuvers. All the pleadings and entreaties for years of interested property owners, acting singly and in groups, have been unavailing against this scourge. Perhaps if railroads operating out of Washington could be required or prevailed upon to set a better example, more of the long-suffering residents would be encouraged to "follow suit." DONALD L. KESTER.

Public Traffic and Private Appetite Two Distinct Phases of Liquor Problem.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One fact of fundamental import is that in dealing with the veils incident to the trade in alcohol for beverage purposes we must always distinguish between the private appetite and the public traffic. The private appetite, though the center of much of the evil, is not to be regulated by law but to be controlled by education, moral suasion, religious motives and those of prudence, personal safety and the exercise of the human will.

The public traffic is in another category and is not susceptible to any of these influences, but is a creature of law and can only be regulated or suppressed by law. Through a century of increasingly close scrutiny observing people have come to realize that the liquor traffic is a natural outlaw, and that to license its continued existence is to harbor a racial cancer which spreads its murder over the years and scatters its waste from generation to generation.

It is the further task of every forward looking nation which outlaws the public traffic to completely inform its people and thus deal with the other factor in the equation, the private appetite. GORDON BARNES.

HATS, BOYCOTTS AND LOVE.

England, where the unemployment problem is acute, is just a bit hysterical about those things that operate in restraint of trade, comments the Kansas City Star. The other day at Hyde, which has an extensive hat industry, the hatters' union called on the girls in the hat factories to boycott their hatless young men. One leader went so far as to say that "no self-respecting girl should look at or speak to any youth who goes hatless." Thereupon came the secretary of the weavers' association with a reminder that the girls in the hat factories wear the shortest of skirts, thus failing to support the textile industries. With the protests transferred from the boys and girls to the mad hatters and the mad weavers, the boys without hats and the girls with short skirts seem to have gone their way without much more consideration. It could not well be otherwise. Boys and girls have sacrificed their romances on the altar of duty or necessity or in pique, but not to keep the mills going. As for the boys, we know they will not ask the girls to lengthen their skirts, even if the looms become silent. And the girls, looking on the uncovered, oiled and waved hair of the boys, will make no demands, even if, according to the poet, Holmes, the hat is the ultimum moriens of respectability.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Political Flair Of Mrs. Osias Is Asset Here

Wife of Commissioner From Philippines Is Energetic.

WHETHER official society agrees or disagrees on the mooted question of independence for the Philippine Islands, it concurs on the resultant loss to Washington were affairs to culminate in the loss of the new resident commissioner.

For in Mrs. Camilo Osias, wife of Commissioner Osias, Washington groups possess an asset. Furthermore, political groups will discover in this rather dynamic figure a personality combining femininity with an understanding grasp of public questions.

She is interested in politics, this charming hostess of a house on Eighteenth street. Philippine leaders will tell you that Mrs. Osias' flair for politics had a lot to do with her husband's steady rise in the firmament of public affairs in Manila and other progressive centers in the islands, where factions of varying degrees of intensity revolve about the sun of political endeavor.

Did not Senor Osias rise from educator, author, senator, nationalist to his position as representative of his native land? And did not the senora, through all the years, lend the force of her oratory and the charm of her personality to the achievements of his successful career?

As a matter of fact, Mrs. Osias' experience in public life is as varied as that of her distinguished husband. Tales of her exploits as a stump speaker during the electoral campaign when Mr. Osias was running for senator from the Second Senatorial District are, to this day, tea table bon mots.

Mr. Osias was elected. He rolled up the greatest majority ever recorded in the far-off islands, where life is vigorous, politics hectic and women are just awakening to their powers.

Mrs Osias awakened long ago. She led the Manila Association through two prosperous years; she revealed herself as outstanding among many outstanding Philippine women, all leaders in educational and social work that is sweeping the land which America "mothers."

Withal, this feminine stump speaker is essentially feminine. She deftly combines public life with simple living. She can discuss, with equal familiarity, the pineapple situation in the islands or the superior strength of this or that American football eleven fighting for the '29 championship. For there are young children in the house on Eighteenth street and the little mother is astonishingly well informed about things that engage the attention of young folks.

There's a collegiate air in the Osias household. The new commissioner from the islands appears to have held every position in the category of education from high school teacher in San Fernando to president of a national university. And besides him is the sparkling Mrs. Osias, whose knowledge of current questions may stagger resident groups, unacquainted with the meteoric rise of culture in the land that Senator King would accord independence.

Prince Koudacheff And Wife in Capital.

Prince and Princess Vladimir Koudacheff, of New York City, are passing several days at the Mayflower, having come here to visit the latter's son, Mr. Noel B. Leggett, who is spending the autumn in the Capital. Prince Koudacheff was in the Russian diplomatic service for a short time and is a nephew of Prince Nicolas Koudacheff, former Counselor of the Russian Embassy in Washington and later Ambassador to Belgium. Another uncle, Prince Alexander Koudascheff, represented the imperial Russian government as Ambassador to Spain before the World War at the time his brother, Prince Evan Koudacheff, was Ambassador to China.

Miss Annie M. Hegemen, of Washington an' New York, is now at the Madison in New York.

Announcement was made yesterday of the coming marriage of Miss Virginia Emily Rogers, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Weaver H. Rogers, of Pittsburgh, Pa., to Nathan Hofer White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan S. White, of New Haven, Conn.

Miss Rogers was an attendant at the wedding of Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of Gov. and Mrs. John H. Trumbull, and Mr. John Coolidge, son of former President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. Mr. White is a graduate of Yale, class of '26.

Mr. H. F. Aldridge Weds Miss Ramsey.

At the home of her parents, Maj. and Mrs. William H. Ramsey, in Shepherd Park, Miss Olive Ramsey was married Saturday evening to Mr. Herbert P. Aldridge, the Rev. William S. Abernethy, of Calvary Baptist Church, officiating. Only immediate relatives and a few friends witnessed the ceremony, performed in a setting of palms, ferns, dahlias and autumn foliage.

The bride was given away by her father. She wore a gown of eggshell satin princesse style. Her sister, Mrs. J. Alston Fisher, as matron of honor, wore green chiffon. Miss Eva Lewis, honor maid, wore a frock of fuschia chiffon. The bride carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley and her attendants carried Johanny Hill roses. Mr. W. Cameron Burton was best man.

Guests from out of town included Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Ramsey, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. J. Alston Fisher, of Reading and Philadelphia, and Mrs. Oma Watkins, of Kansas City.

Mr. and Mrs. Aldridge will be at home after November 1 at 512 Concord street.

British Envoy Patron of Ball Armistice Day

U. S. Officers to Attend Ninth Annual Event in New York.

Sir Esme Howard, Ambassador from Great Britain, and Lady Isabella Howard will be patrons at the ninth annual armistice ball of the British Great War Veterans of America, which will be held on Armistice Day, November 11, at the Plaza Hotel in New York. Also among the patrons sponsoring the ball is Mr. Vincent Massey, Minister from Canada.

All of the high ranking officers of the Army posts in the East will attend, with their aids, thus making of the affair a brilliant spectacle. One of the features of the ball is the massing of the colors, a ceremony anticipated each year by the many distinguished guests in attendance.

The object of the annual dance, which is entering the tenth year of sponsorship by the British Great War Veterans of America, is the collection of funds for disabled and indigent former service men, including in many cases soldiers from the United States who served under the British flag early in the war. During the last year 300 men have been provided with permanent positions and nearly as many aided by small loans.

Other patrons of the dance include Rear Admiral L. R. de Steiguer, U. S. N.; Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, U. S. A.; Brig. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, U. S. A.; Maj. Gen. Robert L. Bullard, U. S. A.; Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mayor James J. Walker, Mr. Herbert Brookes, commissioner general for Australia in the United States; Dr. Philip R. Botha, acting trade commissioner for the Union of South Africa in the United States and Canada; Mr. Frederic Hudd, trade commissioner for Canada in the United States; Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Mr. George Eastman, Dr. J. Herbert Lawson, commander of the New York County organization of the American Legion, and Mr. Paul D. Cravath.

The officers of the British Great War Veterans of America are Maj. Charles H. Tebay, president; Capt. James D'Orsay Murray, first vice president; Mr. Frank T. Pillans, second vice president. The directors are Lieut. Col. F. McKelvey Bell, Maj. C. R. Redgrave, Mr. James Bain, Mr. Shannon Cormack, Capt. Andrew Kelley and Mrs. Charles R. Wells.

Miss Eleanor Satterlee Bride of Mr. Milo Sargent Gibbs.

The marriage of Miss Eleanor Morgan Satterlee, of New York, and Mr. Milo Sargent Gibbs, also of New York, took place Saturday at Dover House, Greenwich, Conn., the country place of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, parents of the bride. The Rev. Dr. Percy H. Silver, rector of the Church of the Incarnation, New York, performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception for 600 guests.

The bride is a niece of Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan and Miss Anne Morgan. She is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George B. Satterlee, of New York, as well as Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, sr.

The bride's cousin, Miss Helen Livingston Satterlee, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leroy Satterlee, of New York, was maid of honor, and the other attendants were Countess Alexandrine von Beroldingen, Miss Beatrice Gawtry, Miss Faith Vilas, Miss Ellen P. Luquer, Miss Louise Plater, Miss Margaret Partridge, Miss Natalie Tuttle and Miss Fleur Alice Lee.

Mr. George M. Gibbs, of Chicago, served as his brother's best man. The ushers were another brother, Mr. Gerald A. Gibbs, of Montreal; Mr. Robert James Malone, Mr. James Maxwell Fassett, Mr. Robert William Dragoo, Mr. Norman T. Newton, Mr. John Albert Morris, Mr. Ferris Booth,

Mr. Gibbs is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Milon Delavan Gibbs, of Montreal. On his father's side, he is descended from Sir Henry Gibbs, of Honington, and James Wilson, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He is a relative of the late John S. Sargent, the painter.

Mr. Gibbs and his bride after their wedding trip will live in New York.

Among the wedding guests was Mrs. George Morris Eckels, of Washington, cousin of the bride.

Miss Eleanor Coglin Gibbons, of New York, has set November 30 as the date of her marriage to Mr. William Radford Coyle, of Bethlehem, Pa. The wedding will take place at the Hotel Delmonico in New York and will be followed by a reception in the hotel.

Miss Gibbons, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Miles Gibbons, of New York and St. Lawrence Park, Thousand Islands, was graduated from National Park Seminary and made her debut a few years ago.

Mr. Coyle, the son of Maj. and Mrs. W. Radford Coyle, of Bethlehem, Pa., is a graduate of the University of Virginia.

Miss Kathryn Lord Strauss, daughter of Mrs. Albert Strauss, of New York, was married to Mr. Henry J. Mali, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Mali, Saturday at Briar Hill, the Oyster Bay home of Mrs. Strauss.

Dr. Endicott Peabody, headmaster of Groton School, performed the ceremony. There were no bridal attendants. Mr. J. T. Johnstone Mali was his brother's best man.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Rodenbaugh and their daughter, Miss Jean Rodenbaugh, of St. Augustine, Fla., are spending a few days at the Willard. They were at their camp in Canada during the summer, later stopping at the Poconos in Pennsylvania, and will motor to Florida this week.

Miss Helen Augusta Colhoun will give a program of dramatic readings at the Arts Club tomorrow evening. She will be assisted by Miss Jane Wilson, soprano, and Mrs. Chester Adair, pianist. The hostess will be Mrs. John Otto Johnson.

Last night there was a chafing dish supper at the club, with new members as honor guests and the board of governors as hosts.

Mrs. Della Phillips and Miss Carol Phillips, of Garden City, N. Y., were at the Dodge Hotel for the week-end.

Mrs. Georgette Ross Howard will entertain at luncheon tomorow at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women, following her talk on "Current Topics," which will be the first in a course of ten which she will give this fall.

Her guests will be Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mrs. Paul Kaufman, Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, Mrs. Wallace Radcliffe, Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, Mrs. Virginia White Speel and Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, all of whom are patronesses of the talks.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Acheson, of Denver, are at the Dodge Hotel for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray T. Coughlin, of Sacramento, Calif., are at the Willard a few days before going to New York.

The Medical and Chirurgical Association of the State of Maryland will hold its semiannual meeting October 22-23 at Point Lookout, Md. Many members of the medical fraternity from Washington will attend the convention.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Robertson, of Cambridge, Md., are at the Willard for a few days.

Mr. C. H. Butler
Host to Princetonians.

A reunion of sons of "Old Nassau" took place Monday afternoon, when Mr. Charles Henry Butler, Washington attorney, was host to a score of Princeton graduates at Montsweng Farms, on the borderline of Lincoln and Sagadahoc counties. Orange and black banners, in evidence throughout the grounds, lent a festive greeting to the members of the class of '81. During the day the host conducted his guests on a tour of his apple orchards, his hobby for many years.

Tea was served by the hostess, Miss Janet W. Flagg, sister-in-law of Mr. Butler, and Mrs. Frank Rafter, of Wiscasset.

Dr. and Mrs. Marcus Benjamin have returned from a visit in Atlantic City and are at the Highlands.

Mrs. Joseph Greene, of Brampton, England, is at the Willard.

Mr. George Chrastian left Washington yesterday for a few days' stay in Savannah, Ga.

Sir Charles and Lady Mendl will arrive in New York tomorrow on the Ile de France.

Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins is at the Ambassador in New York.

The New York branch of the Southern Women's Educational Alliance has issued invitations for a luncheon and annual meeting on Thursday at the St. Regis Hotel, in New York. Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, honorary president, will be the guest of honor.

Official of Postoffice
Department Is Host.

Assistant Postmaster General and Mrs. Frederic A. Tilton entertained at dinner Saturday evening at the Wardman Park Hotel in compliment to Brig. Gen. Edward G. Heckel, of the Officers Reserve Corps, and Mrs. Heckel, who are here from Detroit. Other guests were Assistant Postmaster General and Mrs. Arch Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. James P. Murray and Miss Betty Heckel. Gen. Heckel is in Washington to attend conferences at the War Department.

Capt. Enrique A. Prieto, Military Attache of the Cuban Embassy, and Senora de Prieto, will give a ball for their debutante daughter, Senorita Lucia Tessada-Guzman, at the Willard, Saturday, December 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick D. McKenney, who have spent the summer at their country home at Kensington, Md., expect to return to Washington about October 20, and will be at the Wardman Park Hotel this winter.

The Washington Alumnae Chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta. Fraternity, will be entertained tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Louis W. Austin, 3136 Newark street, Cleveland Park. Mrs. Austin will be assisted by Mrs. C. C. Brown, Mrs. W. C. Dean and Mrs. Everett Flood.

Mrs. William Wolff Smith is this season inaugurating a new series of reviews of books, to open October 24, at 11:30 o'clock at the Willard and continue weekly on Thursdays until March 27. At the opening talk, Mrs. Smith will review the biography of Beethoven by Romain Roland.

Mrs. Edith Goldman has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Ann Goldman, to Mr. Louis Epstein, of Los Angeles, Calif.

The active and alumnae members of Theta Pi Sorority will open their winter season with a dinner commemorating Founder's Day tomorrow at the Mayflower. Mrs. Wilbur Sterling will be toastmistress. Mrs. J. G. Thompson and Miss Sue Hess are in charge of the music program.

The Phi Sigma Sigma Fraternity will give a masquerade dance November 2. Mrs. Dora Bressler is chairman of arrangements.

D. A. R. District Unit
To Honor Mrs. Hobart.

The Daughters of the American Revolution of the District will give a reception in honor of the president general, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, on Wednesday evening, October 23, from 9 to 11 o'clock, at the Willard.

Miss Nina Berry Floyd, daughter of former Representative John C. Floyd, of Arkansas, will pass the winter in Washington, at the Hotel Hamilton. She was recalled to Arkansas a few days ago by the death of her mother.

A bridge and mah jong benefit party is announced by the members of Grace Episcopal Church for the evening of November 12, the entertainment to be held at 8:30 in the garden of the Mayflower Hotel.

Furthering plans for the appearance of Frau Gros, Marionettes in "Uncle Wiggily" and "Skippy," under the auspices of the Wellesley Club at Daughters of American Revolution Hall on the afternoon and evening of Friday, October 25, and the following morning, a committee is named with Mrs. Goodwin Price Graham as chairman. Assisting will be Mrs. Worth B. Daniels, vice charman, and the following chairmen of committees: Mrs. George Akerson, patronesses; Miss Sibyl Baker, stage; Mrs. Lyman B. Swormstedt, printing; Miss Christy Jones, tickets; Miss Louise Tuers, publicity; Mrs. E. G. Nourse, arrangements; Mrs. H. Cochran Fisher, posters; Miss Muriel Wood, ushers, and Miss Dorothy Grover, circulars.

Mrs. William Waller announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Waller, to Mr. Smith Wildman Brookhart, jr., son of Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart, of Iowa, and Mrs. Brookhart. The wedding will take place in the early summer.

Miss Waller and Mr Brookhart are both students at George Washington University, where the latter is studying law. Miss Waller is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority and Mr. Brookhart is affiliated with Sigma Chi fraternity.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, will attend a dinner and reception to be given for Mr. James E. Pixlee, new director of athletics of the university, by the Missouri Alumni Assiciation of Washington at the National Press Club, October 23, at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Pixlee is a former athlete of the University of Missouri. The dinner will mark the initial meeting of the year of the association and will include all former students and their wives.

Post's Model Home Attracts Thousands

Thousands of persons have visited The Washington Post model home, attractively furnished by Dulin & Martin, at 4331 Garfield street in Wesley Heights, the W. C. & A. N. Miller development, and many hundreds were conducted through the handsome structure yesterday.

The house, available for inspection daily from 10 o'clock in the morning until 9 in the evening, is reached by driving out Massachusetts avenue, crossing Wisconsin avenue, turning left in Cathedral avenue to Forty-fourth street, then proceeding south to Garfield street. It was designed and built by W. C. & A. N. Miller.

without ostentation his interest in and sympathy for all things which look to the betterment and to the advancement of the masses, and these things were known and felt by the people. And had the people been given an opportunity there would have been no mistake as to their welcome.

And here I pause to say that I should like very much to have seen MacDonald turned loose, as it were, before an unselected, uncensored, unpledged audience, say, in Madison Square Garden, to talk to them direct of those fine things of which his heart and mind are full and which are gladly received by the people everywhere, whether under one flag or another.

Some time, perhaps, we shall conclude that there are other ways of utilizing the time and worth of a great visitor with a great message than that of keeping him chained to the leg of a dining table and herded by selected groups.

MacDonald said many worthwhile things while here. But the most significant sentence he uttered and, I think, the most interpretive of his own character, was this: "We have all taken risks in the making of war. Isn't it time that we should take risks to secure peace?"

There are risks to be taken in the cause of people. We will never be rid of this inhuman burden of armaments unless we are brave enough to risk getting rid of them. Mr. MacDonald has given ample proof of his devotion to peace. He was once an outcast from his neighbor's door because of his fath in peace and his hatred of war. How fortunate it is that he is now the leader of a great nation when the risks of peace must be assumed.

The last few days and the doings of these days have given rise to the charge of an alliance. I venture to believe that Mr. MacDonald is not so unwise as to wish an alliance or so uninformed as to suppose he could secure it, if he desired it. An attempt to form an alliance, or entente, would be to place a piece of dynamite under the whole peace of structure.

Alliances are schemes for war, not peace. He would no more form an alliance with Great Britain than he would with Japan or Germany, or any other nation. People who can not get rid of the doctrine of force naturally look for an alliance. But those who believe in and build upon the principles of the peace pact burn alliances.

Peace and friendship with all, and alliances with none!

The Seven Dials Mystery

By AGATHA CHRISTIE

"Well, it didnt seem likely. In fact, I could hardly credit it myself. But then we came to the affair at the Abbey. You will remember how awkward it was—specially awkward for Mr. Eversleigh here. You and Mr. Thesiger were hand in glove. Mr. Eversleigh had already been embarrassed by your insisting on being brought to this place, and when he found that you had actually overheard what went on at a meeting he was dumfounded."

Further Explanations.

The superintendent paused and a twinkle came into his eye.

"So was I, Lady Eileen. I never dreamed of such a thing being possible. You put one over on me there all right.

"Well, Mr. Eversleigh was in a dilemma. He couldn't let you into the secret of the Seven Dials without letting Mr. Thesiger in also—and that would never do. It all suited Mr. Thesiger very well, of course, for it gave him a bona fide reason for getting himself asked to the Abbey, which made things much easier for him.

"I may say that the Seven Dials had already sent a warning letter to Mr. Lomax. That was to insure his applying to me for assistance, so that I should be able to be on the spot in a perfectly natural manner. I made no secret of my presence, as you know."

And again the superintendent's eyes twinkled.

"Well, ostensibly, Mr. Eversleigh and Mr. Thesiger were to divide the night into two watches. Really, Mr. Eversleigh and Miss St. Maur did so. She was on guard at the library window when she heard Mr. Thesiger coming and had to dart behind the screen.

"And now comes the cleverness of Mr. Thesiger. Up to a point he told a perfectly true story, and I must admit that with the fight and everything, I was distinctly shaken—and began to wonder whether he had had anything to do with the theft at all, or whether we were completely on the wrong track. There were one or two suspicious circumstances that pointed in an entirely different direction, and I can tell you I didn't know what to make of things, when something turned up to clinch matters.

"I found the burnt glove in the fireplace with the teeth marks on it and then—well—I knew that I'd been right after all. But, upon my word, he was a clever one."

"What actually happened?" said Bundle. "Who was the other man?"

In Conclusion.

"THERE wasn't any other man. Listen, and I'll show you how in the end I reconstructed the whole story. To begin with, Mr. Thesiger and Miss Wade are in this together. And they have a rendezvous for an exact time. Miss Wade comes over in her car, climbs through the fence and comes up to the house. She's got a perfectly good story if any one stops her—the one she told eventually.

"But she arrived unmolested on the terrace just after the clock had struck 2.

"Now, I may say to begin with that she was seen coming in. My men saw her, but they had orders to stop nobody coming in—only going out. I wanted, you see, to find out as much as possible. Miss Wade arrives on the terrace, and at that minute a parcel falls at her feet and she picks it up. A man comes down the ivy and she starts to run. What happens next? The struggle—and presently the revolver shots. What will every one do? Rush to the scene of the fight. And Miss Loraine Wade could have left the grounds and driven off with the formula safely in her possession.

"But things don't happen quite like that. Miss Wade runs straight into my arms. And at that moment the game changes. It's no longer attack, but defense. Miss Wade tells her story. It is perfectly true and perfectly sensible.

Pieced Together.

"And now we come to Mr. Thesiger. One thing struck me at once. The bullet wound alone couldn't have caused him to faint. Either he had fallen and hit his head—or—well, he hadn't fainted at all. Later we had Miss St. Maur's story. It agreed perfectly with Mr. Thesiger's—there was only one suggestive point. Miss St. Maur said that after the lights were turned out and Mr. Thesiger went over to the window, he was so still that she thought he must have left the room and gone outside. Now, if any one is in the room, you can hardly help hearing their breathing if you are listening for it. Supposing, then, that Mr. Thesiger had gone outside. Where next? Up the ivy to Mr. O'Rourke's room—Mr. O'Rourke's whisky and soda having been doped the night before. He gets the papers, throws them down to the girl, climbs down the ivy again, and—starts the fight. That's easy enough when you come to think of it. Knock the tables down, stagger about, speak in your own voice and then in a hoarse half-whisper. And then the final touch, the two revolver shots. His own Colt automatic, bought openly the day before, is fired at an imaginary assailant. Then, with his left gloved hand, he takes from his pocket the small Mauser pistol and shoots himself through the fleshy part of the right arm. He flings the pistol through the window, tears off the glove with his teeth, and throws it into the fire. When I arrive he is lying on the floor in a faint."

Bundle drew a deep breath.

"You didn't realize all this at the time, Superintendent Battle?"

"No, that I didn't. I was taken in as any one could be. It wasn't till long afterward that I pieced it all together. Finding the glove was the beginning of it. Then I made Sir Oswald throw the pistol through the window. It fell a good way farther on than it should have done. But a man who is right-handed doesn't throw nearly as far with the left hand. Even then it was only suspicion—and a very faint suspicion at that.

"But there was one point struck me. The papers were obviously thrown down for some one to pick up. If Miss Wade was there by accident, who was the real person? Of course, for those who weren't in the know, that question was answered easily enough—the countess. But there I had the pull over you. I knew the countess was all right. So what follows? Why, the idea that the papers had actually been picked up by the person they were meant for. And the more I thought of it, the more it seemed to me a very remarkable coincidence that Miss Wade should have arrived at the exact moment she did."

After Definite Proof.

"It must have been very difficult for you when I came to you full of suspicion about the countess."

"It was, Lady Eileen. I had to say something to put you off the scent. And it was very difficult for Mr. Eversleigh here, with the lady coming out of a dead faint and not knowing what she might say."

"I understand Bill's anxiety now," said Bundle. "And the way he kept urging her to take time and not talk till she felt quite all right."

"Poor old Bill," said Miss St. Maur. "That poor baby had to be vamped against his will—getting madder'n a hornet every minute."

"Well," said Superintendent Battle, "there it was. I suspected Mr. Thesiger—but I couldn't get definite proof. On the other hand, Mr. Thesiger himself was rattled. He realized more or less what he was up against in the Seven Dials—but he wanted badly to know who No. 7 was. He got himself asked to the Cootes under the impression that Sir Oswald Coote was No. 7."

"I suspected Sir Oswald," said Bundle, "especially when he came in from the garden that night."

"I never suspected him," said Battle. "But I don't mind telling you that I did have my suspicions of that young chap, his secretary."

"Pongo?" said Bill. "Not old Pongo?"

"Yes, Mr. Eversleigh, old Pongo as you call him. A very efficient gentleman, and one that could have put anything through if he'd a mind to. I suspected him partly because he'd been the one to take the clocks into Mr. Wade's room that night. It would have been easy for him to put the bottle and glass by the bedside then. And then, for another thing, he was left-handed. That glove pointed straight to him—if it hadn't been for one thing——"

"What?"

"The teeth marks—only a man whose right hand was incapacitated would have needed to tear off that glove with his teeth."

"So Pongo was cleared."

"So Pongo was cleared, as you say. I'm sure it would be a great surprise to Mr. Bateman to know he was ever suspected."

"It would," agreed Bill. "A solemn card—a silly ass like Pongo. How you could ever think——"

"Well, as far as that goes, Mr. Thesiger was what you might describe as an empty-headed young ass of the most brainless description. One of the two was playing a part. When I decided that it was Mr. Thesiger I was interested to get Mr. Bateman's opinion of him.

"All along, Mr. Bateman had the gravest suspicions of Mr. Thesiger and frequently said as much to Sir Oswald."

"It's curious," said Bill, "but Pongo always is right. It's maddening."

IN THE PLAY HOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

"What do you fellows do when there are no theater openings on Sunday night?" queried Mason Peters, the retired millionaire newspaper publisher, now enjoying Washington club life. He referred to the play reviewers. The question is a difficult one to answer, since the reform wave set in; but here is an attempt: Some write columns for the Monday morning trade, some meditate on the vagaries of the drama and the votaries thereof, some dream of that far-off distant day, they hope, when the harness shall be taken off them, and some—well, some go to church.

* * * *

An old play and a new are booked for the week ahead, the old being from the treasure chest of rare Ben Jonson and done over by a modern, Stefan Zweig, to fit present-day notions of what the play should be. "Volpone," in the Theater Guild fashion, will be unraveled on the stage of the National tonight, to run the week. At the Belasco, Mr. Stoddard Taylor stands ready to welcome from its Baltimore premiere the new vehicle in which Lionel Atwill is riding, a play called "Stripped."

When last seen in this parish Mr. Atwill occupied the pulpit in the religious operetta staged by Earl Carroll and billed under the heading "Floretta." It was his duty, along about the eleventh hour, to rid himself of a long drawn-out though beautifully written dissertation on the destinies of the human soul. Some one of the clerics present one night said: "It seems to me I recognize the trend of that speech." Pressed for further information the gentleman declared: "Once I wrote a treatise, really a thesis for a theological seminary, which was published under the title, 'The Abolition of the Skylight in Franciscan Monasteries of the Sixteenth Century'—and, even if I say it who shouldn't, 'twas a masterpiece. It won for me a doctorate." Bystanders stood agape. "After all," asked one of them, "what has that got to do with Mr. Atwill's forensic oratory. "Merely," explained the gentleman of the cloth, "merely that stagecraft and literature have something in common."

The play that engages Mr. Atwill this time is labeled "a mystery drama." It was authored by Miss Jane Murfin, whose name was associated with that of Miss Jane Cowl—a couple of Janes—in the writing of "Smilin' Thru'," a success of some years ago that afterward proved one of the big hits of the National Theater Players. If one Baltimore reviewer is to be trusted—and chances are he is—Mr. Atwill in this play comes galavantin' on the stage as "a romantic and debonair adventurer"—which would seem to place him at once as a princeling, or something, set loose from a decadent European monarchy. Well, Atwills will be Atwills.

'Twould seem that the mystery play is in great demand. About this time last year there had been rumors to the effect that the mystery play had reached the end of its rope—if it has a rope. One of the reasons advanced was this: They have reached the point of perfection. As any one knows, when the point of perfection is reached, there is no need going further. However, the point of perfection was not reached. Furthermore, chances are the point of perfection will not be reached even this season—so there shall be more and better mystery plays with each succeeding season.

The darb of the year, as mystery plays go, was through here a week or so ago—at Mr. Bonneville's playhouse, Poli's, over on the south side of the avenue. That one was called "The Ghost Parade," and after a series of wicked reviews the wonder was how the ghosts ever paraded on the last Saturday night, when ghosts are supposed to stalk at the company manager's office for thespians; a method somewhat similar to the way the ghost walks in newspaper offices on each weekly pay day.

New Passenger Liner Arrives in New York

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The new 33,375-ton Panama Pacific liner Pennsylvania, described by the builders as the largest passenger vessel ever constructed in an American shipyard, arrived here today from Newport News, Va., and will start her maiden voyage in the New York-San Francisco service October 19.

Capt. James Roberts, commander, said the steamer did 67.4 miles between Chesspeake Lightship and Winter Quarter Shoals, at 19.3 knots.

Archbishop Impresses the Auto Baron With Advantages of Expansion.

Chicago, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Archbishop Dobrecic, Catholic primate of Serbia, and Henry Ford, of Detroit, have joined hands in a project to develop the automobile industry in the Orient.

The archbishop, who has been making an extensive tour among his countrymen in the United States, delivered a farewell address this afternoon at Loyola University auditorium and referred to a letter which he had received from Ford's assistant, Charles Sorenson, saying Ford had adopted the archbishop's point of view that the eastern shore of the Adriatic, belonging to Jugoslavia, is the door to the Orient, and that through this opening the automobile industry could be widely spread.

Ford, according to the letter, authorized the archbishop to send each year to Detroit during the next three years twelve men who are to be taught to operate and manage an automobile factory in Montenegro, Jugoslavia, which Ford proposes to establish after further negotiations with the archbishop and the government of Jugoslavia.

that is the
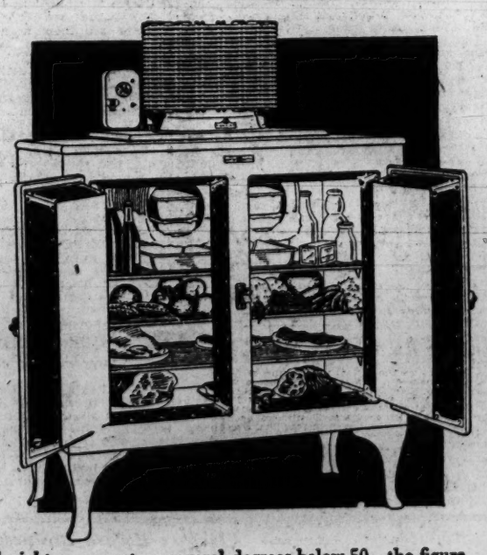
of the owners of this refrigerator

NO wonder the owner of a General Electric feels a glow of pride when he says, quietly, "Yes, we have a General Electric." For, which electric refrigerator can match his in efficiency, in quietness, in stamina, in trouble-free service?



The record of more than 350,000 in use with no owner having spent a dollar for repairs or service is one which truly challenges comparison.

The mechanism of the General Electric is so simple . . . it never needs oiling . . . it is hermetically sealed in a steel casing which keeps it forever dust-proof. It creates no radio interference. It has an accessible freezing regulator. It makes plenty of ice.

The cabinets are all-steel. They cannot warp. They are particularly easy to clean. Sturdiest hardware is bolted right into the steel frame. Self-closing door latch, gliders to protect your linoleums. . . And, of course, it automatically maintains a temperature several degrees below 50—the figure which medical authorities agree is the danger point in food preservation. McNamee and Husing Again to Relay Data on Baseball Series; Various Features to Be Heard Tonight.

Wide networks of stations will be joined again today at 1:30 o'clock to give the Nation a play-by-play account of the fifth world series baseball game from Philadelphia. Graham McNamee and Ted Husing will continue to officiate for the National Broadcasting Co. and Columbia Broadcasting System, respectively.

John Philip Sousa and his band again will be heard by the radio audience of WRC at 9:30 o'clock this evening, when the General Motors Family Party is broadcast. Victor Herbert's "Pan Americana" will be one of the highlights of the program. Merle Alcock, operatic and concert contralto, will be the soloist. The songs to be presented by Miss Alcock will include "The Green Hills of Ireland;" "He Shall Feed His Flock," from "The Messiah" (Handel); Brahm's "Lullaby," and "Habanera," from "Carmen."

The A. & P. Gypsies have arranged the following program for 8:30 o'clock, featuring the gypsy tenor: March from "Aida" (Verdi); "Indian Love Call," from "Rose Marie" (Friml); "Love Me and the World Is Mine," tenor; "Dance of the Giddy Girl," trio; "My Dear," tenor; "Meditation," from "Thais" (Massenet), trio; "Tango Loca;" "One Alone," from "The Desert Song," tenor; "Little Gray Home in the West," and "Badinage" (Herbert).

Floyd Gibbons, the headline hunter, will be featured for half an hour at 10:30 o'clock. Another speaker scheduled earlier in the evening is William Hard, who will discuss politics for fifteen minutes, beginning at 7:45 o'clock.

Massenet's "Elegie," the air of which was originally the theme of the "Invocation" in Lecomte de Lisle's "Les Erinnyes," is played at the request of many listeners for the concluding number of the period of Slumber Music, which Ludwig Laurier and a string ensemble will present at 11:15 o'clock. Other numbers include a selection from "Tannhauser" (Wagner), "First Arabesque" (Debussy), ballet music from "Herodiade" (Massenet), "Egyptian Serenade" (Lincke) and "Les Sirenes," Waldteufel.

WRC and WMAL will broadcast the services in connection with the Jewish Day of Atonement from the Eighth Street Temple at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. Abram Simon will be the speaker.

Grantland Rice, known throughout the country as an authority on sports, will be heard over WMAL at 10 o'clock tonight. Mr. Rice has not yet announced definitely upon what topic he will speak. The music for this program will be furnished by Larry Siry's Orchestra.

Orchestral selections to be heard during the Cecot Couriers program broadcast at 8:30 o'clock include "Lonely Troubadour" and Oley Speak's music for Kipling's poem, "On the Road to Mandalay."

Two dance orchestras, Guy Lombardo and His Royal Canadians, and Paul Specht's will be on the air between 11 o'clock and midnight, via WMAL.

Horton McLennon, musical saw virtuoso, will be presented to the WOL audience in a short broadcast at 6 o'clock this afternoon. Dinner music and a piano team are to be heard also.

Following an hour of dinner music, WJSV will feature Johnnie Graham's Dance Orchestra, a playlette, and five soloists. The Honolulans will be on for a half-hour at 10:30 o'clock.

IF the suggestion made by educators is acted upon favorably by the board of trustees of the National Education Association that a powerful radio station be erected here a fly in the ointment will be that the District is already considerably over its power quota stipulated by the Davis amendment, with no more room for additional transmitters.

It was the idea that the broadcasting plant could be installed in the new annex of the NEA headquarters at Sixteenth and M streets northwest. Even if the Radio Commission were to grant a construction permit to the educators, which they can not do under the law at this time, it is doubtful if the commission would allow them to install a high-powered station in a residential district. The tendency is to get broadcasting stations out of the cities altogether.

Therefore if the educators decide to go into the broadcasting business here it would seem that they they would have to erect their transmitter in Virginia or Maryland if they could squeeze themselves into the quotas of those States, already overcrowded. Assuming this could be acomplished, there would be the serious question of securing a cleared or regional broadcasting channel, of which there are none available anywhere.

• • • •

A GREAT deal of criticism has been heard in Washington of the manner in which Graham McNamee has reported the world series games, especially from ardent baseball fans. They complain that either because of carelessness or a failure to familiarize himself with the players and the finer points of the game, this veteran broadcaster's play-by-play descriptions have often been confusing, to say the least.

His attitude appears to be that his listeners want to be entertained primarily, and the account of the game is secondary. What could be more maddening to a baseball fan?

WE SAID the NAA Arlington weather report announcer was one of the worst on the air but on second thought, the person who really annoys us the most is Maj. Edward Bowes, of the Capitol Theater.

THE presence of William Hard before the microphone tonight with his political talk is a reminder of Hard's scholarly introduction of Ramsay MacDonald at the Overseas Writers' luncheon.

The surprise caused among Hard's colleagues by his brilliant introductory remarks brought to mind the time at the old Press Club over Affleck's drug store when Hall, of the New York World, to the amazement of every one present, translated an impromptu speech delivered by Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, during which the "Divine Sarah" talked at the rate of a mile a minute.

"THEY have got it so now," declared former Radio Commisioner O. H. Caldwell who was in town last week, "that traffic at street intersections is regulated by the use of vacuum tubes, much the same as those used in radio sets. If a red light is against the motorist, the tube detecting his presence automatically gives him a green light if there is nothing coming the other way.

"Likewise vacuum tubes have provided a heretofore unthought of method of bringing an elevator to a stop exactly level with the floor. Do you know how elevator men sometimes have to skew around trying to hit the landing place just right? That will all be a thing of the past as a result of this novel tube device."

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

OCTOBER 14.

LILLIAN GISH, famous motion picture star, was born this day, 1898, in Springfield, Ohio. She will probably best be remembered as the star of "Orphans of the Storm," "The White Sister" and "Romola." Miss Gish made her first stage appearance as a child dancer with a traveling company. Her screen debut was made under D. W. Griffith.

Ida Laura Pfeiffer, one of the most famous of women travel-writers, was born this day, 1797, in Austria. She did not begin her travels until after the death of her husband, when she had reached middle age. Undaunted by the lack of any considerable funds or by the crude and uncomfortable means of travel in her day, she covered 160,000 miles on sea and 21,000 miles on land. Her travels took her to Palestine and Egypt, Scandinavia and Iceland, around the world, to South Africa and the Malay Peninsula, to America and to Madagascar. In Madagascar she incurred the displeasure of the queen and narrowly escaped with her life.

Her accounts of her travels have been translated into English and several other languages.

What Today Means to You

"LIBRA."

If October 14 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 5:50 a. m. to 7:30 a. m., and from 10 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., and from 3 p. m. to 4:50 p. m.

The astrological influences in force on this date are unfavorable for all affairs of a domestic nature, but they favor business activities. Deceit and treachery abound, ready to hurt your personal standing and position.

The child born on this October 14 will be fond of excitement and will enjoy "stirring up a hornet's nest" of some kind. It will have tenacity of purpose, and an unbounding energy. It will be unduly imaginative, and will be fond of reading.

You have two traits which overshadow and weaken all the finer qualities and capabilities which you possess. You are jealous and envious, and until you can overcome these souring factors, you will never be able to fully appreciate life, and others will never appreciate you. "Envy is a moth to the heart, a canker to the thought, and a rust to the soul." Owing to these weaknesses you choose your inferiors as associates, so as to create jealousy and envy in others. At the same time you have secret longings for something higher and better.

You have a subtle and brilliant brain, but you lack continuity of purpose. You yourself do not know what you want to achieve. One must not expect you to be constant in your ideas or plans. You are always fostering a new ambition. As soon as you have obtained one, you tire of it. You are restless and want the thing you have not got. You quickly see the weak points in others, and can reduce them to nothing by wit, sarcasm or mimicry. "The camel never sees its own hump, but that of its brothers is always before its eyes."

You will find your most lasting friendships and unions with persons born between January 21 and February 18, May 21 to June 20, and with those born in your own sign. You should not make a hasty marriage.

Successful people born October 14:

William Penn—Founder of Pennsylvania.

Samuel Johnson—First president of King's College (Columbia).

Preston King—Influential Republican senator.

James C. Carter—Lawyer.

Louis Agustus Sargent—English artist.

James O'Neill—Actor.

AND now, what with the Clever Fingers Contest over and Christmas in the offing, it's high time that all Lovely Ladies (and clever ones) turn their thoughts to the approaching holidays.

What—and only the 14th of October? Yes, even so!

Fun? The rush and the scramble, the fatigue and irritation may be thrilling—but the leisurely planning and the delightful execution has a more lasting thrill.

And then, too, there are the lovely things that Clever Fingers makes her own self, which, of course, have to be shopped for as to materials, planned and worked on in spare moments. Lovely things, which, by the way, are ever and ever so much more acceptable as gifts than the sort of heartless things one can buy.

So, we're starting our Christmas Box, and do hope that you will do the same. From day to day you will find a Christmas Box suggestion here, and sh-h-h-h-h, why not buy a 5-cent notebook, a tiny one, right this very minute, and cut out the suggestion every day—'n paste it in? Then, in the same book, you see, you can have a page for each person you are going to remember, write down your ideas for his or her gift on his or her page, change your mind if you please and write something else, but keep that page for that person. Then you can write down how you want to wrap this gift and what you want to buy for this wrapping—the date it has to be mailed, and the date it finally is mailed.

There you are! Now watch for our Christmas Box.

This week's leaflet—with so many illustrations—tells you how to wear a shipwreck to a masquerade party! and all sorts of original ideas like—well, send your self-addressed stamped envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for these priceless suggestions as to costumes. Whether you are going to wear it now or wear it later, the leaflet is available only this week. It will make you be prepared for a hurry-up call to win the prize at a masquerade!

Wa-l-l-i-o-o-o-opp!

So there! I've just been leading up to that for a long time in my mind, and here it goes. I don't like it, and if I don't like it that's my privilege, and it just happens that I am in a position to tell you all about it—and if you don't like what I write, you don't have to read it, do you? Hurray, starting out fine! Well, "hasta-man-yana," in Spanish, means until tomorrow, or see you tomorrow. So, we have decided that "hasta-swatta" is to mean swat it again tomorrow, as it were.

• • • •

It's fall coat time, you know, and Bernard et Cie. have puckered the brow and poised the pencil, to get down on paper their very model for the slim, lovely lady or even her plumper sister. The sketch above is the result. The coat is of black cloth cleverly trimmed with black astrakhan fur. The collar forms a "fitting" frame for the face—and isn't the sleeve unusual?

• • • •

When a woman, upon the contemplation of silent and profound beauty, no longer conjures up the name of some man from the depth of her heart, then only has she attained the appreciation of beauty in its infinite implication.

When the Rain Falls.

DURING the past summer, I spent most of my time in a region where it was very dry—days and weeks passed, and it did not rain. The sunshine was fine, but I missed the clouds and I missed the rain.

A gulley formed by a single heavy rain.

At last, while I was playing tennis, there came a shower. The drops were very large—nearly as large as cherries, it seemed to me; but I suppose that would be stretching it a little.

The largest drops of rain which have been measured with care, are about one-third of an inch from side to side. The smallest drops are about one-twentieth of an inch across. If there is falling moisture with smaller drops than that, it is called mist or fog.

Most of the rain is carried by winds which blow inland from the oceans and seas. Sunshine makes water evaporate, and air currents carry it here and there. Trade winds blowing from the Pacific carry moisture toward points within the continent.

In order for rain to fall, the air must be cooled. When moist air is blown against mountains, it must rise in order to get over the top. The higher it goes, the cooler it becomes. There are likely to be showers or heavy rains on the windward sides of a mountain. The other side may be very dry.

Moist winds blow over deserts, but if there are no high points, there is not likely to be rainfall. In the midst of some deserts there are high hills or mountains which block the way of the winds, and cause rain.

Winds are sometimes cooled in other ways than by passing over high mountains. That is a good thing, for otherwise many rich inland plains would be too dry for crops.

One of the world's wettest spots is in the Himalayas, where 450 inches of rainfall occurred in a single year.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Modern Parents."

Theodore is 18. His father and mother are modern. Theodore will likely be old-fashioned. Read his letter, and if you have a son of 18, ask yourself just what ideas of life he is absorbing as he observes his parents.

"I guess I am a queer bird. Anyway I feel queer about things that do not seem to bother other people. My parents are modern in their ways and I guess they have a perfect right to be, but I can't seem to get the hang of it. When I was at school I didn't notice much, but since I came home I seem to realize that we have no home at all. Dad stays downtown to dinner about four nights a week. Mother is late for dinner the other three night. I never saw people in such a rush—and all about nothing I would say.

"I have a kid sister of 16. She is hard as nails. She has about a dozen boy friends and the whole bunch would not make one man. She is always 'bawling' some one out, always throwing a brainstorm. I honestly believe she is unstring. Mother just laughs when I say anything and tells me to 'go raise a little cain myself.' Mother is engaged in raising 'a little cain' herself. She tells every one and any one that she and Dad live their own lives.' I hate her to discuss this. She goes about with a fellow, who is divorced, and although I know she is above reproach still I just about hate it.

"Night after night I come home about 10 o'clock hoping some one will be there for a change. But no one ever is. The kid comes in howling at the top of her lungs about midnight, and then Dad ambles in, and some time later Mother. Mornings everybody is disagreeable. The kid looks about 30 and Mother keeps out of the way. Dad is the only normal person—and he is in a rush for a train. Honestly, am I crazy or something? Or is there a little more to life for some people than this sort of scramble? I have a pal, and believe me he has a real home. Everybody has a big welcome for everybody else in that family. They kid each other and fool around together for hours. I'd go live with that family if it wouldn't cause a bunch of talk.

"When I have a home, it won't be any 'live-your-own-life' arrangement. It will be 'all-for-one-another.' What do you think of my home, Miss MacDonald? THEODORE."

Think it's just a shame Ted, dear. And I think you should go and live with the chum whose folks are regular. If parents knew how imperishable are memories of "home" they would give a bit more thought to the sort of memories their children would look back upon.

I have always been so glad that childhood was for me a beautiful combination of daisy fields and new puppies, and lilac bushes and deep blue skies, and bumps and kisses and a star-eyed mother, and that girlhood was a gorgeous jumble of knights climbing castle walls, and music at twilight, and long, long talks and tears and comfort and high hopes and brave plans.

The tragic hours that life has brought would have been insupportable were it not for that background with all the strength giving memories woven in and out.

Parents weave the pattern of the background that is ours for life. How sad when they weave so carelessly, that in life's grim moments, we see only a blank. Theodore's plea is pure pathos—and his story is the story of thousands of boys today.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

END OF HEALTHFUL SEASON.

THE beginning of October marks the end of the healthful season.

Except in the highly malarial sections the people individually and collectively have been very healthy since about the first of June, as they have been every other year for a decade, or even for a quarter of a century.

With October the common cold becomes prevalent. By November there are complaints of sore throat. Somewhere around Thanksgiving begins the season where public meetings are disturbed by coughers. By the first of next year pneumonia will be the great menace. Meanwhile there has been an increasing prevalence of diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough and soon smallpox unlimbers its guns.

During the summer the people have been storing up sunshine like the bees store honey. As winter progresses they will begin drawing on their storehouses for aid in fighting their microbic foes. Those who are in a position to run away to climates which permit of life in the open air and sunshine all winter need not use up all they have stored. But business will hold the adults in their prime and the schools will hold the children. The members of this group should get all the sunlight and air they can. There is no danger of excess dosage now and there will be none until late in spring. In many places artificial light as a means of piecing out will be available. Much resistance can be built up through such agencies as cold baths and long walks. The autumn and early winter weather is well suited to long walks and, as a rule, the "going is good," and the woods and fields are inviting. Getting fit is a preparation for midwinter and early spring combats with infection might very well be a part of the late fall job. Wise men will avoid contact with people easily identified as spreaders of contagion—those who are coughing, sneezing and complaining of colds.

And, finally, my opinion is that the evidence in favor of vaccination against colds is somewhat better than that which indicates its uselessness.

LITTLE MEAT IS NEEDED.

W. R. P. writes 1. I could qualify as a member of the Three Quarters Century Club, but am too far away to get the benefit of their advice and experience.

2. A few years ago I read an interview with the late Chauncey Depew in which he said that he had not eaten red meat for several years on account of rheumatism. Does red meat induce rheumatism?

3. Just what varieties of meat are included in this term?

4. Will you have something to say on this subject for the benefit of your elderly readers?

REPLY.

1. Why not organize one for yourself and your friends?

2. No.

3. This term is applied to the lean meats which are red when raw. Among them are lean beef of all kinds, also lean mutton, kid, pork and fowl except the breast.

4. Old people need but little meat. As a rule the appetite calls for little of it. Such as they want and need they can eat without harm.

NOT SERIOUS AS IT SEEMS.

J. A. B. writes: Our baby, 18 months old, has the habit of eating dirt the moment she gets out of doors. This causes her to be constipated. Otherwise she is healthy and well developed.

REPLY.

Luther Burbank once wrote: "All children should have mud pies." He did not say they should eat them.

The habit of eating dirt is well recognized. The doctors call it pica. It is not as serious as it seems.

A child old enough to eat dirt is certainly old enough to be trained, to be suitably punished for eating dirt and suitably rewarded for eating properly.

Behind the habit lies some cell hunger. It is a mineral hunger. Change the child's diet. Give more milk, cereals, fruits and vegetables, pot liquor and soups. The child may want more salt on his food.

The habit need not alarm you. It is fairly easily broken and it causes no serious disorder.

WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction Bridge novice.)

THE question of whether a Declarer should finesse with certain holdings is determined by certain general principles.

He should never risk a finesse no matter how much the chances favor it, if trying it with an unsuccessful result will save the game for the adversaries and the Declarer would be sure of the game without risking the finesse. In most cases, the length of the suit in the two hands determines whether or not the Declarer should finesse.

The finesse that creates the greatest doubt in a Declarer's mind is the one to catch an adverse Queen when Declarer is long in the suit. When deciding whether to finesse, it does not pay to guess or follow hunches; the thing to do is to follow the mathematical chances. With Ace-King-Jack in one hand, or with Ace-King in one hand and Jack-Ten in the other, or with one of the two top honors in one hand and the other top honor and the Jack in the other, the finesse should be tried when the total holding of the suit in two hands is less than nine. But with a total of nine, the Ace and the King should be led with the hope that the adverse Queen either will be a singleton or have but a single guard.

The double tenace—Ace-Queen-Ten—presents another special problem. Again the answer is determined mathematically. If Declarer's two hands contain a total of eight cards or fewer, the double finesse (i. e., leading from the other hand and playing the Ten) should be taken; but with a total of nine or ten cards, the single finesse (i. e., leading from the other hand and playing the Queen) should be selected.

The table which follows summarizes correct finessing by the Declarer. It goes without saying that the play should be suitably varied if second plays the honor that the Declarer is trying to catch.

Holding	Total Cards of Suit in Declarer's Two Hands	Play
Ace-Queen	11	Ace
Ace-Queen	10 or less	Queen
Ace-King-Jack	9 or more	King
Ace-King-Jack	8 or less	Jack
Ace-Queen-Ten	9 or 10	Queen
Ace-Queen-Ten	8 or less	Ten

500 Visitors View Jonquil Street Home

More than 500 persons were out yesterday to see The Washington Post model furnished home at 1645 Jonquil street at Seventeenth street northwest, in Rock Creek Hills, the R. E. Latimer development. This was the next to last Sunday it will be open for public inspection.

The house is completely furnished and decorated by W. & J. Sloane, of New York and Washington. The home will be open daily and next Sunday until 9:30 o'clock in the evening. It is reached by driving out Sixteenth street extended to Jonquil street and then turning left.

Every one who views it is pleased with the beautiful home, its ideal location and its more than $17,000 worth of handsome furnishings. Two Packard sedans and a Buick roadster have been added to the furnishings by Washington agencies for the makes.

MACKS AIM TO CLINCH TITLE IN FIFTH GAME TODAY

Upsets Mark Major Grid Contests

Jolts Felt in Every Section in Saturday Frays.

American U. Eleven Springs Only Surprise Here.

By JACK ESPEY.

IT wasn't the number of upsets but the tremendous shock in the few that occurred which made last Saturday a day long to be remembered by football fans. You can count the number of major form reversals on the fingers of one hand, yet, figuratively speaking, they are more than a fistful.

There were three which nearly paralyzed the teams that were victims and crowded a lot of world series baseball off page 1. Fordham, 26; New York University, 0. Georgia, 15; Yale, 0. Brown, 13; Princeton, 12. That's enough palpitating news for one Saturday early in the season.

Locally, the dope had its ears pinned back when American University reversed George Washington, 8-to-0 but in all other contests involving Capital collegians the results conformed to expectations. Georgetown gained a most satisfactory decision over St. Louis University, 13-to-0; Catholic University blanked Baltimore University, 18 to 0; Maryland bowed to South Carolina, 26 to 6, and Gallaudet lost to St. John's at Annapolis, 2 to 0.

Many Mild Upsets Recorded.

There were surprises in mild form throughout the country. Nobody had figured Southern California to swamp Washington's Huskies such as it did, 48-0, nor Tennessee to thrash Mississippi, as revealed in a 52-7 score. Colgate exceeded expectations when it trounced Michigan State, 31-0, and Purdue surprised in a 30-16 triumph over Michigan. Little Geneva enjoyed one of those moral victories in holding Davis-Elkins to 7-0, and St. Thomas, of Scranton, extended the powerful Western Maryland Eleven before losing, 12-6.

Notre Dame's 14-7 win from Navy, Nebraska's 13-6 defeat of Syracuse, Minnesota's 15-6 victory over Vanderbilt, and Penn's success at Virginia Polys expense were all generally looked for. Penn, however, held a margin of only six points at the finish with V. P. I., but most of the critics at Franklin Field thought Lou Young was holding his Quakers back in an effort to conceal their real power from California's Bears, who invade Philadelphia next Saturday.

Mal Cavanaugh's Fordham players rose to dizzy heights and subdued the Violent Violets with consummate ease. Twice hurling back Follet, Grant and Co. inches from their goal line, the Maroons outfought, outplayed and outsmarted N. Y. U. all the way. Forward passes played the major role in the scoring, Fordman making its own good and breaking up N. Y. U.'s. Certainly, Fordham now must be recognized as worthy of readmission to the circle of the East's elite.

The devastating attack Yale unleashed a week before against Vermont was reduced to pea-shooting in comparison by the savage defense of Georgia. Albie Booth, Yale's great little back, never got going, while Vernon Smith, the Bulldogs' left end, rose from obscurity to fame with an

SATURDAY.

Central vs. York, at York, Pa.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, Jr.

ALTHOUGH half a dozen high and prep school games adorn this week's grid card, a certain contest on Friday stands out in bold relief among the group and promises to furnish far more thrills and attracting features than any of the rest slated to be played this week, or any that have been played before.

For on that day the actual season of two teams will begin in earnest and forgotten will be the games which have served only as a warm-up for this more important feature.

The event which will bring about this drastic change of affairs is none other than the opening game of the interhigh series which will bring together two of the foremost teams entered in the series to clash for supremacy. Eastern and Tech, prospective and present champion, are the two foes whose meeting will occasion no small amount of interest for all scholastic followers on Friday next.

Tech Encouraged by Eastern Defeat.

Encouraged by the news of Eastern's surprise defeat last week, Tech fans will throng to the Mount Pleasant Stadium in the hopes of seeing Hardell's so-called "under dogs" spring another upset by defeating the Lincoln Parkers. And Eastern fans will also journey to the stadium on the hill with the fond expectations of seeing their team come through as it is expected, and get off to a good start by whipping the 1928 champs.

At any rate, it should be a great battle, and a fitting send-off to what promises to be one of the most equally contested interhigh series in years.

Western and Gonzaga will continue their football campaigns by tackling each other on Wednesday. Both teams looked good in their initial game last Friday, with the Gonzaga running up a higher score in their game with Business than did the Ahern-coached team against Alexandria. Business High will again swing into action on Friday against St. John's Junior Varsity in what will be the Stenogs' last stand before entering the series.

Central to Meet York Eleven.

If Central does as well against York High as it did against Mount Vernon High, of New York, last week, its followers will have cause to be optimistic over the chances of "Ty" Rauber's men in the impending series. In meeting the Mount Vernon Team, the Blue and White Team was

Few Clubs in Cubs' Plight Have Rallied to Win Series

Pirates Turned Trick on Bucky Harris and Nats in 1925; Young Foresees End of Classic Today.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—Although the 1929 world's series is not yet ended, indications are that it will be tomorow with the playing of the fifth game of the set only a matter of form. Of course, the Cubs have a chance until they are actually beaten, as the history of the national game shows that nothing may be safely taken for granted, but if McCarthy's men do finally cross the finish line in front of the Philadelphia Mackmen, it will be as big an upset of the dope as would a George Washington University football victory over Knute Rockne's fighting Irish. Since the modern world series play was started in the fall of 1903, there have been twelve occasions when the game score stood as it does in the current baseball October handicap—with one team credited with three victories and another with one—and only twice has the underdog rallied and won out.

The most recent of these "upsets" was registered in 1925 in the lamentable set of games between Bucky Harris' Nationals and Bill McKechnie's Pirates. Perhaps, it is rather brutal to bring up this sad reminder of the Washington Club's halcyon days, but in this series the Nats were beaten while in exactly the same strategic position as are the Athletics in their battles with the Cubs.

Nats Apperntly Sewed Game.

Opening in Pittsburgh, the Nationals broke even in two games played and then apparently sewed up the series by capturing the first two games played in the Clark Griffith Stadium. With only one more triumph needed to give them their second consecutive world's title, they were beaten in the last home game and then bowed twice more on their second visit to Pittsburgh.

The Pirates also figured in the only other series in which an apparent winner was beaten with the championship banner almost with in its grasp. On this occasion, however, the Pittsburghers were the ones who were nosed out. All this happened in 1903, the first of the modern interleague baseball classics. Five instead of four victories were decisive, however, with the Boston Red Sox representing the American League.

The Pirates took the first game, lost the second, and then turned in victories in the third and fourth only to suddenly lose their cunning and to drop four straight and their world's title) chances.

Cubs Face Hard Task.

These two instances are mentioned merely to show that teams have climbed out of holes as deep as that in which the Cubs now find themselves, but the records do not show that these two comebacks were staged following such a heart-breaking defeat as the Windy Cityans absorbed yesterday, when even an eight-run lead was not sufficient to give them victory.

The psychological effect of this beating can not help but manifest itself as an added handicap to the already low spirited team when it takes the field tomorrow, especially as McCarthy is forced to call on one of his several pitchers who was mauled yesterday.

Add to these facts the threat that lefty Grove looms as Connie Mack's likely starting pitcher and that the Cubs have been outhit by 50 points and outfielded by 13 in the games already played and it will be seen that the barrier over which the Cubs seek to climb is an almost insurmountable one.

True, the Cubs may do it. Stranger things have happened—but practically all miracles were performed back in biblical days and these are not biblical days.

Mitchell Defeats Mangan In Wardman Net Finals

OUTDRIVING Thomas J. Mangan, Jr., at the latter's back-court game, young Dooley Mitchell yesterday won the Secretary of State Stimson Trophy in the final match of the Wardman Park tennis tournament. The spirited battle went four sets, Mangan taking the second after an aggressive battle. The scores were 7—5, 5—7, 6—1, 6—4.

It was one of the good days for Mitchell. He did everything nigh perfect and outdrove his rival from the back courts throughout. Only when the first Wardman Park champion attempted to play the net in the second set was he outclassed. At all other stages he held the upper hand, despite the fact that the consistent Mangan was showing his best efforts.

It was the second time this season that Mitchell has defeated the former District champion and present City of Washington title holder. Although the younger star defeated Mangan at Edgemoor in midsummer, his victory yesterday came as a distinct surprise to the more than 400 fans who witnessed the final match. The weather was almost perfect for tennis, and the finalists furnished many a warm duel with hard driving featuring.

The Stimson and other trophies will be presented at the annual Washington Tennis Association banquet at the Columbia Country Club October 22.

Ruth Will Not Boss Yanks In 1930

Babe to Seek Managership After Playing Days Are Over.

Aims to Play Three More Years, Says Noted Slugger.

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth will not manage the New York Yankees in 1930. The big slugger today identified himself as the "right fielder of the Yankees" with no managerial aspirations at this time. Later, when he no longer can hit home runs, the Bambino will be a candidate for manager of some major club, but not now.

"I will not be the manager of the New York Yankees in 1930," said Ruth, in a formal statement issued today by his business manager, Christy Walsh.

"I have had a pleasant and satisfactory conversation with Col. Ruppert (president and majority owner of the Yankees) on the subject. Frankly, I have the ambition to manage a big league ball club some day, and I hope it doesn't sound conceited to say that I feel I have the ability, experience and sufficient knowledge of baseball to qualify as a manager.

"However, I am still a player and feel that I have at least two or three good years of baseball left in me yet. Col. Ruppert and I agree that as long as I can deliver the goods as a player it would not be wise to take on the troubles and worries of a manager.

Right Fielder for Yanks.

"So, for 1930, just put me down as right fielder for the Yankees. I am in great shape now and will be better than ever by spring. I will play golf and hunt until it snows. I will play two exhibition games, October 20 and October 27—but no vaudeville, no movies, no monkey business, and, above all, I will hustle my head off for the new Yankee manager, no matter who he is.

"But don't forget, some day I hope to realize a great ambition by having my name listed in the managers' column along with one of the greatest in baseball history—Miller Huggins."

Several names have been prominently to the front of discussions as to the next manager of the Yankees, succeeding the late Miller Huggins, whose death left a vacancy at the head of the New York American playing forces for the first time in a dozen years.

Ruth was mentioned in every conversation. Dan Howley and Eddie Collins were others tentatively placed in nomination in the absence of any word from Col. Jacob Ruppert, the president, and E. G. Barrow, secretary and practical baseball man of the "front office" of the Yankees.

Howley, it is understood, will sign a contract soon to manage a National League club, after leading the St. Louis Browns for three years. Collins is said to be well satisfied with his present post as captain of the Athletics and Connie Mack's right hand. "Columbia Eddie," when asked if he had an offer from the Yankees, replied in the negative. Collins was once manager of the Chicago White Sox.

Fletcher Among Possibilities.

Arthur Fletcher, one of Huggins' assistants, who formerly managed the Phillies, and Bob Connery, president of the St. Paul Club of the American Association, in which Huggins owned an interest at the time of his death, are regarded as qualified choices.

Fletcher's friends, however, say he has no wish to again assume the burdens of major league managership. Connery is known to be in a pleasant and comfortable position at St. Paul.

Perhaps a "dark horse" will be brought to the front as the leader of the club which must be rebuilt after a three-year reign, interrupted in the season which ended in the death of Miller Huggins, the mighty mite.

When Huggins was made manager of the Yankees, he came to the American from the National League, his training in the major league having been with Cincinnati and St. Louis. He managed the Cardinals for

DESPERATE CHICAGO CLUB IS LIKELY TO BAT AGAINST GROVE

SIDE LIGHTS

Philadelphia, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—It is just as well that Sunday baseball is not permitted in Philadelphia. If the A's and Cubs had gone out to play today, a world of conversation would have been a total loss. In hotel lobbies and on street corners, Philadelphia fairly buzzed with post-mortems of yesterday's record-breaking world series game. Most of the spectators, too, were in a state of collapse at the end of the seventh inning, when the Athletics scored ten runs, and needed a day of rest.

Jack Hendricks' experience was typical. The big, bluff lawyer, who has just resigned as manager of the Reds, suffered in the stands almost as much as did Joe McCarthy on the Chicago bench, as the Cubs' lead was shot away in the one awe-inspiring inning. An intense National partisan, although he no longer is officially connected with it, Hendricks seemed in agony as the Philadelphia base hits sounded their relentless bombardment. "I thought every second, the next one will be an out," said Jolly Jack, "although I knew that anything can and does happen in baseball."

E. S. Barnard, president of the American League, sat with Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Nationals. At the end of the Cubs' half of the seventh when the score had mounted to an eight-run lead for the visitors, Griffith said to Barnard: "It looks like we are licked, Barney."

"Don't be too sure, Griff," was the reply. "This club beat you after you were eight runs in front." Griff's further observations were drowned out by the thunder of the base hits and nise of running Athletics' feet pounding the plate.

Rigg Stephenson made a desperate effort to catch Jimmy Dykes' two-base fly on which the winning runs were scored. The ball was hit close to the foul line, almost against a stand, and Stevie went over fast for the ball, which barely tipped his fingers. It was a great effort to make a sensational stab for "Old Alabam," but the result would have been the same if the catch had been made. Simmons was on third, and as there was only one out, Stephenson never could have untangled himself from the stand and thrown Al out. The score would have been 9 to 8 instead of 10 to 8 and Dykes would have had a sacrifice fly instead of a double.

Harry Davis, the captain of the old Athletics, "agreed" the old chief (Bender) used to do it, "he always got away with it," said Davis, "with a good lead, he would throw batting practice balls to the first hitter sometimes, but just when the other side thought he was gone, he would come back and zip 'em past the next batter. I was always uneasy though and I would go in and say, 'you old so and so, quit fooling in there. The first thing you know you'll slip. But he never did." There was a look of affection in Harry's eyes as he spoke of the "chief." "There was a pitcher," he said.

Connie Mack plays one game at a time and has no thoughts for the tomorrows of baseball. Asked as to the possibility of a return to Chicago to close the series there, the wise old man said, "we won't go into that, yet."

No one ever saw a team overcome an eight run lead in a single inning of world's series play, but even more remarkable performances have been reeled off in the course of play during the regular campaign. Hardly a group collected to discuss yesterday's game failed to develop a "do you remember when?" some team, somewhere, went utterly out of control to defy precedent.

Two old war horses of baseball chatted and shook their heads at the amazing sight they had witnessed. Ty Cobb, an American Leaguer, who had seen nothing to make him mad, and Johnny Evers, intensely partisan National League supporter who was shocked by the proceedings of the day, thought Root involuntarily eased up and then could not recover his equilibrium.

Povich Expects Bush to Carry Hopes of Cubs on Mound.

Cubs Struck Back on One Occasion and May Repeat.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
(Sports Editor of The Post).

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 13.—In desperation the Cubs await the fifth game, and the Athletics, with high hopes of terminating the world series in glorious finish tomorrow, are prepared to forestall a return to Chicago for the scheduled sixth and seventh games.

Since the last out of the smashing battle on Saturday when the Athletics wiped out an eight-run lead, Philadelphia has been a hot bed of admiration for its team, exceeding even the extreme enthusiasm that greeted its pennant victory and the prospect of the Athletics winning the pennant tomorrow in five games is little short of a foregone conclusion, according to the feeling of fandom here.

That rousing rally in the seventh inning Saturday will be far-reaching in its effect on an already reeling Chicago Club, they argue, and with the mechanical superiority already demonstrated by the Athletics there is little ground for reasoning that the Cubs have a good chance to win tomorrow's game and the possibility of three straight victories that would snatch the championship from the very grip of the Mackmen is barely a possibility.

The Athletics have met pitching with pitching and they have met batting might with batting might and in three of the four games to date they have prevailed over the Cubs with a decisiveness that is boldly reflected in the story of each of the battles.

Cubs Struck Back Before.

Once, however, the Cubs struck back. And it is in this ability of the Chicago Team to rally in the face of adversity, infrequent though it has been in this series, that the Cubs' hopes still survive although the outlook is truly dark, indeed.

If Manager McCarthy was ever sorely pressed for pitchers, he is sorely pressed for a pitcher for the morrow and his pitching predicament darkens chances already black as the result of the superior pitching and the heavier slugging that Mack's minions have displayed.

Charlie Root, Pat Malone, Sheriff Blake and Art Nehf have passed in review before Mack's slugging array and each has been soundly spanked.

Guy Bush, alone, of the Cubs' staff, has escaped the fury of the Philadelphia attack, and it may be he who holds out to McCarthy the chance of staving off defeat in tomorrow's game forcing the return of the teams to Chicago for the sixth game on Wednesday and prolonging the possibility, faint though it may be, that the Cubs will produce the power to take the next three games and in an amazing finish emerge with a victory that would equal the performance of the Pirates against Washington in 1925, when the Nats won three of the first four games, only to lose the fifth, sixth and seventh.

Bush Pitched Last Friday.

But Bush pitched only last Friday, and it is not certain that McCarthy will ask the frail right-hander to assume the burden again tomorrow, with only two days of actual rest. But it is conceded that Bush holds the greatest chance of staying the power in the Philadelphia bats in view of the thumping of every other twirler on the Cubs' staff with the exception of Mike [illegible] who is not rated as a starting pitcher.

To attempt to pre[illegible]ching nominee of Connie Mack is extremely hazardous on past performances and the penchant of Mack for crossing the dope with his pitchers. Available for duty he has Lefty Grove, Rube Walberg, Howard Ehmke, Bill Shores and Yerkes. Connie Mack can deliver the concluding blow merely by assigning Grove to pitch tomorrow, is the almost unanimous belief of the experts. That Walberg is a great possibility was hinted also when Mack withdrew him from yesterday's game, obviously

THE NUT PICKED TO WIN IN LAUREL FEATURE TODAY

Warm Stable Star Class Of Field

Fair Ball Is Figured to Defeat Princess Tina in 6th.

Krick, Norma Jean, Autumn Bells Are Other Choices.

By LEONARD W. COLLINS.

Joe Notter passed up a chance in Laurel Stakes on Saturday, when he withdrew the Warm Stable's THE NUT from the feature. Joe evidently plans to point the son of MAD HATTER for the $25,000 Washington Handicap and as a preliminary prep leading up to that big prize has dropped him into what shapes up as a rather soft spot—the Westminster Purse—this afternoon.

The washday feature has attracted an overnight nomination of but five, yet if all start there is a possibility that a highly interesting and entertaining contest may come out of the ring. However, THE NUT is the class of the field and handicap figures give him a big edge in the calculations. He is the one best hazard of the day.

FIRST RACE—Six furlongs; purse, $1,300; claiming; for 2-year-olds.

1	*Cheng Tung	103	7 *Mikellna 100
2	Locket	109	8 *Lightfoot Don. 103
3	Bal Smasher	111	9 *Elmargot 104
4	Associate	105	10 Murm'g Pine .. 105
5	*Wig	107	11 Princess Henry. 105
6	Pranels St. L.	105	12 Miss Brumado. 105

Also eligible—

13	Hanrahan	108	17 Kai-Lo 105
14	Keller Bunny	105	18 Paywell 108
15	Wrack Roral	108	19 Bro. Johnson . 108
16	Col. Crump	113	20 *Norma Jean. 107

1Mrs. E. Trueman and W. R. Carter entry.

NORMA JEAN seems well placed in the opening event, a dash at six furlongs, but may encounter stiff opposition from ELEUSAGON, a winner in her last five starts. While it is true that the daughter of PARAGON II has compiled her enviable record over half-mile ovals, the fact should not be overlooked that she has outclassed those pitted against her. LOCKET has raced creditably upon several occasions and one of her best efforts would find her in the money.

SECOND RACE—About 2 miles; purse, $2,000; claiming; steeplechase; for 4-year-olds and upward.

	Aramis	136	6 Skedaddle 136
2	Rooney	134	7 Eon 134
3	Autumn Bells	138	8 †Falkland Park. 136
4	†Darco	131	9 †Radeo 136
5	†Royal Charge	130	10 Contentment .. 137

17 pounds claimed for rider.
‡Harry Kearns and R. Bailey entry.

AUTUMN BELLS disposed of ROONEY with such ridiculous ease the last time they met as to presage just as equal an easy score for the Ballot gelding today. Of course, there are a lot of things that can happen in a hedge-hopping contest and not the best horse, such as a bad landing, a spill or losing the rider. Sometimes the saddle girth slips. Be that as it may, our preference is AUTUMN BELLS, ROONEY and SKEEDADDLE, in the order named. Will let you know something about ROYAL CHARGE the next time he starts.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs; purse, $1,300; claiming; for 3-year-olds and upward.

1	Crystal Domino	116	7 *Lady Marie .. 107
2	*Too High	100	8 Bramabiau 111
3	Nealon Kay	106	9 Fleeting Fire... 111
4	Toki	100	10 Prince Paul 105
5	*Silverdale	113	11 Begin Over 108
6	Sun Meddler	111	12 Stupendous 109

CRYSTAL DOMINO has had the benefit of a month's layoff and will come up to this heat as fresh as a daisy. The son of Flittergold is not blessed with any undue amount of early speed, but will be running over the top of horses once the real racing begins. STUPENDOUS is a very intelligent animal. Can read the approximate odds board and seldom runs when he is a bargain. LADY MARIE is a consistent mare, but will have the improving SILVERDALE to dispose of for the show.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs; purse, $1,500; the Tyrone; for 2-year-old fillies.

1	Murky Cloud	116	7 Khara 116
2	Enid	116	8 †Dustemall 119
3	Susie Jane	102	9 Merry Mack..... 106
4	Gallastart	102	10 Conclave 106
5	Ellice	112	11 Mint Olga 116
6	Pious	109

†H. P. Whitney entry.

The Tyron Purse looks like a lock for the Whitney combination of DUSTEMALL and MURKY CLOUD. Either is capable of winning this heat. Should Freddie Hopkins fire with both barrels it would not be surprising to see them run one, two.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT A. COLLYER

SPEEDY LASSIE. Wash Day racing will be featured this afternoon with the running of at least one important affair, the Tyrone, which is up for decision down at Laurel. Limited to 2-year-old fillies, this event attracted a classy band of young misses. I am stringing along with the superb Whitney pair, DUSTEMALL and MURKY CLOUD, which ran one-half or thereabouts. It shapes up as a right smart event, much better than usual for Monday. The programmed feature at the Maryland oval is the fifth heat, which has been styled the Westminster. For this one, which is open to 3-year-olds at a mile and a sixteenth, I hand you a genuine good thing in SOUL OF HONOR, which has turned in some sparkling performances of late.

To be sure THE NUT, LATIVICH and the other two will be troublesome, but SOUL OF HONOR should cop.

For the sixth, FAIR BALL is a standout.

Latonia, which got off to a running start Saturday, has the Dry Ridge, a mile and 70 yards dash for 3-year-olds and up, for its feature. Just between you and me, this is simply a gallop for FLAT IRON. I am giving you a dark one, MERRILY, in the first and in the nightcap all I can see is WOODGAIN, which is in, as usual, with a feather up.

Gates will the thrown open at Aurora this aft. The brief meeting at Cliff Trimblo's plant will be held despite rumors to the contrary. For the first spasm I am handing you CHESTERBROOK, which is much better than ordinarily rated. In the second, I believe I have picked a real eagle bird out of the pickling vat. It is OMARDALE, and I am confident he will be at least 10 to 1, may be more. You have the answer in your lily-white duke. More anon.

V. M. I. GAME NEXT FOR VIRGINIA

Cavaliers Prepare for 24th Clash With Cadet Rivals.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 13. The University of Virginia and Virginia Military Institute will play their twenty-fourth football game since 1893 next Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on Lambeth Field.

This long series between Cadets and Cavaliers has been one of the most colorful in Southern football. For many seasons the University team had things pretty generally its own way, but an end to this came just after the war. In the last decade there has been little or no certainty as to which way the game would go. Virginia has won six times, in '19, '21, '24, '25, '26 and '27. The four Cadet victories came in '20, '22, '23 and '28.

A year ago V. M. I. put a team on the field that was determined not to be defeated. They could have withstood most of the Nation's best. As it was, Virginia did not at any time penetrate within 5 yards of Cadet territory.

Most of the men who wore the Red, White and Yellow that afternoon will be representing V. M. I. on Lambeth Field next Saturday. It will be a Cadet team that has been tested under fire and found worthy to rank among the finest in the Southland.

Virginia Line Is Inexperienced.

Virginia will go into action with a heavy but inexperienced line, playing in front of a versatile back field. Coach Abel has been conditioning the Cavaliers slowly, but he hopes to have them in shape to battle the Cadets evenly.

The game should have plenty of thrills, for it will bring together two fine assortments of backs. V. M. I. offers Capt. Hawkins, Dunn, Biggs, McCray and Holtzclaw, to name a few. Virginia will put forward Capt. Sloan, Thomas, Kaminer, Pauleoner, Bryant and Lewy.

In back field material the two squads seem evenly matched. The skill and experience of the Cadet line will probably be the margin of their edge over the Cavaliers. Coach Abel has had to change his front wall with each game, and he has not yet worked out a satisfactory line combination.

Extra seats have already been built about Lambeth Field and more will be constructed as the week passes. Reserved seat tickets are selling fast, but excellent space is still available.

MARINES WIN FROM SEAMEN

Quantico, Va., Oct. 13.—The Marine Post Eleven today defeated the strong Seaman Gunners of the Washington Navy Yard, 56 to 0, here. It was a complete rout for the Devil Dog machine, which kept the ball deep in Seaman Gunners territory from the start.

POTOMACS CLAIM VICTORY.

The Potomac Athletic Club Eleven claimed a forfeit vore the Fairlawn Athletic Club Team yesterday. The Potomacs will drill tomorrow at 7 p. m. on the Cathedral avenue field.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Oct. 13.—Chet Pierce, former star basket ball player at William and Mary College, has been appointed coach of the Knight Store Basket Ball Team for the 1929-30 campaign. In selecting Pierce to guide the destinies of the club the "Storemen" chose a man with four years' college experience, besides playing a star game on independent teams, having played with the A. L. I., the Old Dominion Boat Club, and Knight's quints as either forward or center.

Director Eddie Harlow has signed up the following players to carry the Storemen's colors in the basket ball field: Billy Travers, Earl Cronin, Bussy Brenner, Ray Heberlig, Bottles West, and Alec Cabell. Several new players are also expected to seek berths.

Last year this combination carried the colors of the Hoffman Clothiers, runners

VOIGT EQUALS COURSE RECORD AT INDIAN SPRING

Large Gallery Sees Star Shoot 67

Murphy Beats Hufty in Congressional Club Finals.

McKeever Is Winner in Bannockburn Tournament.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

BETWEEN 200 and 300 golfers gathered yesterday afternoon around the eighteenth green of the Indian Spring Club and watched with bated breath while George J. Voigt, former District and Middle Atlantic golf champion and now ranked third among the golf amateurs of the United States, reached into his golf bag for his putter. He had played the first nine in a phenomenal card of 31, four under par, and on the eighteenth tee needed a birdie 3 to break the record of the course with 66. His scond shot, after a long and straight drive, left his ball on the green, about 15 feet distant from the pin. If he could make the putt he could establish a new record. He made a bold effort to hole out but the ball slipped past the cup for a few inches. Then he tapped the ball in for a total of 67, tying the record made on the 28th of September, 1927, by Miller B. Stevinson, in the second round of the District amateur championship. Last July a score of 66, 35 out and 31 in, was made by J. Monro Hunter, the club professional, but not in a competitive event. Voight's card yesterday, compared with Stevinson's previous record, was as follows:

Out—
Stevinson.	4	4	5	5	3	3	3	4	5	—34
Voigt.....	4	3	3	3	4	4	4	3	—31
In—
Stevinson.	4	4	4	4	2	4	5	2	4	—33—67
Voigt.....	5	4	5	3	3	4	5	3	4	—36—67

Voigt's performance yesterday was the feature of the annual tournament of the Brightwood Ex-Caddies Association, composed of present-day golfers, who, like Voigt, were caddies 20 and even 25 years ago, on the course of the old Columbia Golf Club on Georgia avenue, near the Soldiers Home.

Voigt Draws Large Gallery.

The announcement of the fact that he would journey down from New York to participate in the affair was the magnet which drew to the Indian Spring course one of the largest galleries ever assembled for a purely local golf event and the brand of golf which Voigt exhibited was ample compensation for the 18-hole walk.

He hit the cup for a birdie 3 on the first hole, but the ball refused to stop, and then he made consecutive birdies on the second, third and fourth holes, followed by another birdie on the seventh and with all the other holes negotiated in par. In the first nine he had no less than five 3s, but the remarkable feature of his card was that he had seven one-putt greens in the outward journey. His putts on the second and third holes were not over four of five feet, but on the fourth he ran down a 30-footer. He had one lucky break in the outward nine when, on the short sixth hole, his ball ran through a trap while on the eighth hole, when he rushed his second shot into a trap, he made a fine recovery and holed out with a 4-foot putt for a par 4. On the ninth green he missed a birdie 2 by the fraction of an inch.

Tenth and Twelfth Wreck Chances.

The tenth and twelfth holes wrecked Voigt's chances to break the course record. On the tenth hole his second shot was in a trap and his third was over the green, giving him a 5 with a single putt, while on the twelfth, when his second shot was in the rough on the left of the green, he took three more strokes to hole out. These two lost strokes were evened by a birdie on the thirteenth and another on the fifteenth and with all the other holes played in par he finished with 36, the par for the second nine.

The gold medal for low gross was won by Voigt, with R. Cliff McKimmie and William P. DiEste tying for second low gross, each with 75. DiEste, 75—3—72, and John R. Miller, 77—5—72, tied for low net. Other scores were:

Murphy—Out... 6 4 4 3 5 4 4 5 2—37
Hufty—Out.... 5 5 3 4 5 5 5 4 3—39
Murphy—In.... 7 5 5 3 4 5 4 4 5—42—79
Hufty—In.... 6 3 5 3 5 4 5 3 5—39—78
Extra holes—
Murphy..... 5 5 3 4
Hufty..... 5 5 3 5

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT.

Final round—Copp defeated Richardson, 3 and 2.

SECOND SIXTEEN.

Semifinal round—W. P. Wright defeated John P. Gilmore, 7 and 6; J. A. Maloney defeated F. J. Mitchell, 4 and 3.
Final round—Wright defeated Maloney, 1 up.
Defeated eight—R. D'Achemar defeated A. B. McGuire, 2 up; W. H. West defeated F. A. Johnson, 2 up.
Final round—D'Achemar defeated West, 4 and 3.

Hufty Is Beaten by Murphy.

Page Hufty, who during the last three years has held the title of champion of the Congressional Country Club, was yesterday displaced in unexpected fashion by C. B. Murphy, a civil engineer and a member of the club, who came to Washington some six or seven months ago from Chicago, where he was champion of the Olympia Fields Club, and who has figured prominently in recent local golf tournaments. It was battle-royal between Hufty and Murphy from the first tee to the twenty-second green. Hufty reached the final round by defeating Franklin Parks, 4 and 3, while Murphy eliminated John J. Tierney, jr., by the same margin. At the end of the first nine Hufty was 2 down, Murphy securing a birdie 2 on the ninth hole, and he was still 1 down on the seventeenth tee. He squared the match on the seventeenth hole by a remarkable recovery shot out of the rough which laid his ball 2 feet from the hole for a birdie 3. Thereafter every hole was halved to the twenty-second, which Hufty lost when he hooked his tee shot, taking 5 to hole out, while Murphy, on the green in two, secured a par 4 to win the title. The cards:

Harvey Shipley, 84—11—73; John Baldwin, 88—15—73; Lawrence Johnson, 96—20—76; L. P. DiEste, 89—12—77; W. J. Cox, 84—7—77; Harry G. Pitt, 80—2—78; Thomas S. Pitt, 85—7—78; Ed McAleer, 90—14—76; George F. Miller, 86—7—79; George C. Gist, 86—7—79; A. T. Wannan, 90—11—79; R. Wannan, 95—15—80; Lee Neal, 100—18—82; William Story, 98—11—87; Carl Noetzel, 99—11—88; Luther Moline, 93—5—88; Dana Dulin, 103—15—88; Les Poole, 104—16—88; Harry Frye, 96—5—91; Harry Statz, 96—5—91; Joseph Connelly, 103—10—93.

No card—Jesse J. Bagsett, Otto Voigt, Lee McClenahan, E. H. Heitmuller.

Harry G. Pitt and Herbert L. Lacey will contest in the final round of the Manor Club championship. In the semifinals Pitt defeated B. S. Landes, 3 and 2, while Lacey defeated B. S. Working, 6 and 5.

In an eighteen-hole medal play handicap tournament on the course of the Bannockburn Club yesterday the winner was J. A. McKeever, with a card of 89—21—68. There was a triple tie for second prize between H. S. Krauss, 81—9—72; W. A. Rhodes, 96—24—72, and C. M. Brown, 90—18—72.

The results of the first round of match play in the Beaver Dam Club championship yesterday were as follows:

Class A—J. L. Hopkins defeated F. Gerardi, 5 and 4; W. B. Moore defeated C. S. Runswick, 5 and 4; J. F. Bassett defeated A. J. Doyle, 2 and 1; W. J. Cox defeated P. G. Butler, 2 and 1; John R. Miller defeated E. G. Larson, 1 up; M. F. Maier defeated Paul Moller, 2 up; M. F. McCarthy defeated Henry Phipps, 1 up; Leroy Day defeated D. Buckingham, 1 up.

Class B—C. P. Lord vs. J. F. Abott, not played. G. Beyer defeated C. W. Griffin by default; G. F. Stringer defeated W. Puffum, 2 up; A. F. Wilson defeated Samuel Pierson, 3 and 2; J. R. Dawkins defeated W. Kirsh, 3 and 2; V. A. Nelson defeated A. B. Williamson, 1 up; M. F. Kirk defeated L. Hussey, 1 up; Robert N. Young defeated Albert Fisher, 4 and 3.

Class C—A. C. Hodges defeated W. H. Young, 2 and 1; E. R. Strong defeated A. H. Murray, 2 and 1; R. B. Heimer defeated Robert McConnell by default; R. T. Gibson defeated F. Rubenstein, 4 and 3. C. Clements defeated J. Klinkofstein, 4 and 3. Charles F. Owens defeated M. Goldstein, 3 and 3; Louis Winters defeated W. M. Davies, 2 up; J. Friedman defeated J. M. Crown, 3 and 2.

The women's club championship of the Columbia Country Club will commence tomorrow morning following the closing of the entry list at 10 o'clock. As many flights as the number of entrants justify will be formed.

for further service in the series, but the belief leans to Grove.

There has been no more impressive pitching in the series than that displayed by Grove, Bush's fine victory in the third game, notwithstanding. The former Baltimore left-hander who was figured to be a set-up for the right-handed sluggers of the Cubs, has been contrastingly a warranty that all will be well with the Macks when he is on the mound.

Grove Has Brilliant Record.

The mere citing of Grove's record is almost conclusive. In the six and a third innings he has pitched in relief roles in the second and fourth games the big left-hander has allowed three hits and struck out no less than ten.

But more than that, the Cubs have been actually baffled by Grove. The speed with which he breezed his southpaw slants plateward found the Cubs standing none too courageously at the plate. Many have taken the customary three swings almost perfunctorily. Even Hornsby, Wilson, Cuyler and Stephenson, although maybe not cowed, have shown their disgust and unfamiliarity with Grove's pitching, the like of which has not been seen in the National League.

Grove against Bush appears to be the logical pitching program, barring more of Mack's strategy. McCarthy will be asking much of Bush if he nominates his little right-hander. Bush is the hardest working pitcher in the series. On Friday he delivered each ball with an effort and deliberation that was easily apparent.

Did Not Give Athletics A Good Ball.

Bush said after the game that he did not give the Macks a good ball to hit. He did not give them many and he played to the weaknesses of Foxx and Simmons so guardedly that none of the nine safe hits off his delivery fell to this pair. But he also has to contend with the remainder of the Philadelphia line-up that includes Cochrane, Miller and Dykes, hitting fools of the series, as well as Boley and Bishop, known as the deliverers when the demand is greatest.

The Macks and not the Cubs have been the batting terrors of the world series, a distinct surprise. Lefty Grove has tempered the fondness of the Cubs for left-handed pitchers. The advantages rest now almost wholly with the Athletics. The Cubs to win, even tomorrow, must rally in the face of handicaps heaped upon them almost daily since the series started last Tuesday. They once rated that sort of a reputation. Only the game can tell.

UPSETS RECORDED IN FOOTBALL WORLD

Brown's Late Rally Upset Tigers.

Brown, perhaps, was thinking of that humiliating defeat at Springfield's hands two weeks previous, when it extracted the Tiger's teeth, knotted its tail and kicked it all over Palmer Stadium in the final minute of the battle. Princeton was leading, 12 to 7, up until that memorable fourth quarter splurge, and then became the vehicle for Brown's sudden return to good standing.

The coming Saturday brings Washington only two games, with Georgetown engaging West Virginia Wesleyan at Griffith Stadium and Maryland entertaining Gallaudet at College Park. The other three Capital elevens go to foreign battlefields. Catholic will clash with Villanova at Villanova, Pa., George Washington will meet Dickinson at Carlisle, Pa., and American will tackle Baltimore University in the Monumental City.

Georgetown's next opponent, West Virginia Wesleyan, should afford both the Hilltoppers and the fans an interesting afternoon. The Bobcats have played three impressive games thus far, although losing, and possess a star back field tip in Battles, Batchel and Rodriguez. The last named, half Irish and half Spanish, is a veritable gridiron cyclone. He gave New York University plenty of worries Saturday before last.

Catholic U. will need all of its strength on hand in its clash with Villanova, for the Pennsylvania club, coached by Harry Stuhldreher, one of the famous Four Horsemen, is one of the strongest teams in the East. Dickinson doesn't loom so formidably before George Washington, the Carlisle players having dropped two games by wide margins to Muhlenberg and Franklin-Marshall, besides only tying Ursinus.

up against three-time champions of Westchester County, but undismayed by their opponents' reputation, proceeded to force their hosts to the limit before yielding, 13 to 12.

Rauber has apparently developed a powerful eleven for the school on the hill and one that can not be taken lightly. Central does not break into the series until a week from Friday, when it tackles its ancient rival, Tech, and a victory over the Manual Trainers will just about give it the impetus to cause worry for any team in the series.

Devitt, Emerson, St. John's and Landon will all engage in games this week with the last two coming together in a Friday clash. Devitt's Team has already proven its power with a 19-to-0 victory over Eastern High, while Emerson has also caused trouble for all of its opponents, except one, winning two out of three games.

three years before taking up the reins in New York in 1918.

The announcement of the choice may be delayed. Secretary Barrow has been indisposed and out of his office, unable even to see the world's series. He was prostrated by the death of his friend and colleague.

Suggestions that Barrow, who led the Boston Red Sox to a world's championship in 1918, might return to playing field command are regarded as extremely unlikely. He often has said that a seat at a desk is more attractive to him than a place on the bench.

Student Plane Service For Out-of-Town Games

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—A cabin plane service to out-of-town football games is available this fall to University of Missouri students.

For most of Missouri's games away from home, students may attend Saturday morning classes and still see afternoon contests in some neighboring State.

CLOSE GAMES IN SOCCER LEAGUE

Marlboro and Gaithersburg Victors in Openers.

THE Capital City Soccer League launched its 1929-30 season yesterday when two well-contested games were played. Marlboro and Gaithersburg were the victors, defeating Silver Spring and the Irish-Americans, respectively, 3 to 1 and 4 to 1.

It was the first game since its organization for the Irish-American Club, and even in defeat the Gaelic kickers gave promise of rounding into a team that will be hard to beat.

Silver Spring also gained much glory, although conquered. Playing the experienced Marlboro boys, the young Silver Springers fought hard in every minute of the game and in the second half played on even terms with the victors, all of the scoring being done in the first half.

The games yesterday ushered in the soccer season, but it will not get into full swing until after Wednesday night, when the organization meeting of the Washington Soccer League has been called by Robert Bruce, the president. All teams represented last year in the league and any new clubs desiring franchises are requested to be present at room 2, District Building, at 8 o'clock. Clan MacLennan players who signed the statement to be sent to the United States Football Association have been reinstated and are eligible to be represented.

Bowie Downs Takoma Nine in County Final

Handing the Takoma Tigers a terrific drubbing yesterday, 14 to 4, at Bowie, the Bowie Motor Nine won the bicounty unlimited championship. The Bowie Club won the Prince Georges County title and the Tigers won similar honors in Montgomery County. Each had won one game in a play-off series prior to yesterday's melee.

Lefty Jones was master of the Takoma sluggers from the start yesterday while his mates hammered the offerings of two Tiger hurlers at opportune times. Phelps and Brown were the chief aggressors with the stick. Brown also contributed a sparkling play in the field.

W. R. McCallum Wins Annapolis Golf Title

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 13.—Walter R. McCallum, of the Washington Golf and Country Club, today won the first annual invitation golf turnament of the Annapolis Roads club with a 36-hole total of 164. McCallum was three strokes in front of Frank K. Roesch, who led on the first day with a card of 81.

Over the first nine holes McCallum registered a 38 to take a lead which he never relinquished.

Perry B. Rover, of the Indian Spring Club of Washington, holed a 115 yard mashie shot for an eagle 3 on the 570-yard par 5 fifth hole, which gave him possession of the prize for the only eagle of the tournament.

Lindsay S. Stott of Beaver Dam won the netp rize with a card of 170—24—146, and also was awarded the low net prize of the second day's play.

Hornsby and Cuyler May Set New Record

Philadelphia, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Rogers Hornsby and Hazen Cuyler have an opportunity to set an unenviable world series record, that of striking out more than any other player. Through the fourth game the Rajah and Kiki had swung ineffectually at third strikes, or had them called, seven times. The record for a series is held by George Kelly, who fanned ten times while playing for the New York Giants in the 1921, participating series, however, in eight games. This record should stand even against the assault of Cuyler and Hornsby unless the series goes more than five games. Both Cubs are finishing stronger than they started at bat.

Joe Dundee Defeats Mexican Champion

Mohawks in 18-0 Victory; Apaches Beat Tanks, 6-0

SHOWING a twin set of backs, which performed with precision at intervals and then declined into listlessness, and a rugged front line that has all the appearances of gaining recognition as the most capable ever to perform with a local sandlot eleven, the champion Mohawks opened their season yesterday at American League Park with an 18-to-0 victory over the Catonsville Collegians of the Baltimore suburb.

The contest offered a splendid opportunity to Coach Craig Wilton, of the Hawks, to view his strong material under fire and he took advantage of it at the expense of the some 1,200 fans on hand. Few entertaining moments were provided, although Knocky Thomas got off on several broken field runs which furnished momentary thrills and Johnny Howard ripped through the Catonsville tackles for long gains.

In addition to Thomas and Howard, the Hawks displayed other ground-gaining backs in Burke, Birthright and Abbey. Burke looked especially good in his inaugural with the champions and on several occasions flashed brilliantly with hard drives into the opposing front line.

Howard and Brithright paved the way for a Mohawk touchdown early in the first period when they made long gains off both tackles before Collier tossed a pass to Birthright for 12 yards and placed the ball on Catonsville's 8-yard line. On the final down, Collier tossed another spiral to Howard for the 6 points. A pass, Collier to Du Pour, for the added point was grounded.

Catonsville's attack failed to materialize at any stage but the invaders managed to get an even break on the exchange of kicks. Knocky Thomas made his appearance in Hawk garb in the second period and immediately got loose on several lengthy journeys around the ends. His galloping resulted in a second touchdown. Burke carried the ball over from the 3-yard line. Collier's drop-kick was wide.

Howard's charging for 10 and 15 yard gains through the line enabled the Hawks to score again the final period. He carried the ball over from the 4-yard stripe after gaining some 40 yards individually. Wilton's pass in an attempt for another point, was grounded.

THE Apache A. C. Eleven, making its 1929 debut before some 1,500 fans at Union Park yesterday, ran into a strong team in the Tank School Eleven from Fort Leonard Wood, Md., and the Southeast color bearers were forced to exhibit all they had to squeeze out a 6-0 victory. True, it was the first game of the season, and weather too warm for the average sandlot football player to show to his best advantage.

The Tank Eleven proved better coached and faster than the most Army elevens which have shown here in other years and presented a dogged defense which made the Apaches fight for every inch of ground gained.

Although the Apaches made several scoring threats in the first twenty minutes of the game, none was productive in a scoring way until near the end of the second period. The Apaches were driving along near midfield when Huck Hilleary broke away around end for a 30-yard gain to bring the ball on the Tanks' 10-yard line. Snail De Lebre and Coach Lytell gained on two line plays, and Joe Sweeney squirmed off tackle to the touchdown. Hilleary missed the extra point on a drop-kick.

Jerry Carroll, last year's Georgetown University captain, made his sandlot debut for the Apaches and proved that he likes football. Unlike many other former college stars, Carroll gave his team an afternoon's work. He played from start to finish, opening up holes and tackling. Carroll's fame is established at Union Park.

The Tank Eleven made its most serious bid for a touchdown at the start of the third period. Garber, Hodson and Munday made successive gains of more than 10 yards to put the ball on the Apaches' 20-yard line but the Indians halted the drive at that stage. The Apaches approached the goal line in the fourth quarter. It was an end run by Hilleary which carried the ball to the 10-yard line. The Apaches could not make the most of the opportunity, however, losing the ball when a pass was grounded over the goal line.

While the showing of the Apaches was not overly impressive to the rooters on hand, Coach Lytell did not have his full strength available. The new faces in the line, plus the backfield material which will be added during this week is expected to add much to the power of the team.

NORTHERN'S ELEVEN IS BEATEN

Allen's 40-Yard Run Gives Celtics 7-6 Triumph.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Oct. 13.—St. Mary's Celtics sprung a surprise today by defeating the Northern A. C. 7—6 in a hard-fought battle.

Northern scored first when Foxx tossed a beautiful pass to A. Gass for the first touchdown of the game, the extra point being blocked. Coming back strong in the second half Allen went off tackle for 40 yards, on a criss-cross play for a touchdown, tying the score. Dreifus tossed a beautiful pass to Veach for the extra point, winning the game.

A large crowd was present at Baggett's Stadium to witness the game. Coaches Goldman and Hayman are drilling the Celtics hard for their remaining games.

"WHY I Spotlight the truth about unsanitary cigars"

Says Alfred W. McCann

D. Litt., A. B., LL.D.,
noted pure food expert, long active in crusades for pure foods and sanitary factories.

"Just think! On the hands of a cigar-maker may lurk many different kinds of disease germs . . . crippling 'mites of malice' that you may draw into your mouth.

"To awaken men to this invisible danger . . . I want to tell the truth about Cremo—the only cigar whose purity I can truly certify.

"Every tobacco leaf entering the Cremo factory is scientifically treated by U. S. Government approved methods.

"Cremo is fit for your mouth, because it is not made in stuffy, dingy lofts and stores . . . but in air-flooded, sun-bathed, scientifically-clean factories.

"Not by antiquated methods . . . but by marvelous inventions that fold, wrap and tip the cigars.

"This scientific method of manufacture guarantees you cigars of the same high health protection that you get in certified milk!

"What's more . . . Cremo purity is sealed in individual sanitary foil. Thus Cremo reaches your lips with a pleasure that you can trust!"

How often have you been disgusted with the filthy, germ-breeding places where some cigars are made . . . dark, stuffy factories . . . warm, dingy shops and windows . . . where cigars are rolled by careless, dirty lips and fingers and spit on the ends! What a far cry this is from the modern method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo.

The superiority of Certified Cremo starts with the choicest and tenderest leaves, ripe and mellow, and continues in goodness through a slow, expensive maturing and mellowing process . . . topped off with the finest imported wrapper! Certified Cremo contains no scrap—no floor sweepings—all long filler—all fresh, tender leaves. Over $7,000,000 was spent in perfecting the method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo that insures uniformly fine, clean cigars. Foil-wrapped . . . sanitary . . . crush-proof.

"I certify Cremo sanitary and clean." Alfred W. McCann

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

Allison Drug Stores.

A. W.—Kindly let me know your opinion on the following stocks. Would it be advisable to hold or sell?

Answer—Allison Drug Stores Corporation was incorporated in September, 1927, owns and operates sixteen retail drug stores in New York City. Earnings reports are infrequent and not encouraging. Would consider both classes "A" and "B" stock speculations of the most radical type. Gorham Manufacturing Co. preferred has shown substantial earnings in excess of dividend requirements over a period of years, and while this column can not predict price fluctuations, the issue appears worth while holding as an investment.

U. S. Playing Card.

A. S. C.—Will you please answer the following question: I have 108 shares of U. S. Playing Card that cost me $2,000. I understand it is going to 150 on this present rise. Would you advise me to sell and reinvest in some other good 6 per cent stock?

Answer—Do not understand what you mean when you say "some other good 6 per cent stock," in view of the fact that the U. S. Playing Card Co. is only paying $4 annual dividends on the common at present. This column can not pay any heed to rumors about impending price movements and makes no attempt to forecast the same. The stock in question is well regarded, but it must rest entirely with yourself as to what price at which you should sell. In the event that you do, would certainly advise that you reinvest the proceeds in some good 6 per cent stock, preferably a preferred issue. By so doing you will not only conserve the substantial profit you now have on your U. S. Playing Card stock, but insure for yourself a permanent and good sized income.

Crescent Aircraft.

S. P.—Purchased 50 shares of Crescent Aircraft, Inc., Class "A" stock from Hadley & Co. and would like to know if the company exists, and where it is located?

Answer—Don't you think it would be well to find out before purchasing any shares whatsoever as to whether or not the company is actually in existence or where it is located? There is a Crescent Aircraft Corporation in existence, with a plant located at Lindenhurst, Long Island, and another in the Greenville section of Jersey City, N. J. On July 11, 1929, Justice Johnston in the supreme court, Brooklyn, issued a temporary restraining order against Arthur Montgomery, Harry J. Taylor and William Schack, doing business under name of Hadley & Co., and Joseph Morris. The order was based upon alleged fraud of defendants in the sale of stock of the Crescent Aircraft Corporation. This should be sufficient to impress you with the force of the query presented at the opening of this paragraph.

Norfolk Southern.

Mrs. ——, Newport, R. I.—Would you consider an investment in Norfolk Southern a safe one?

Answer—Earnings in 1928 for the common stock were equivalent to $3.79 a share, against $4.63 in 1927. Inasmuch as the earnings for this particular railroad issue have been contrary to the general trend, we would consider it unattractive for investment holding.

Railway & Express.

G. B.—Will you please give me some information regarding Railway & Express Co., listed on the New York Stock Exchange. This stock has been recommended to me as a good investment.

Answer—Incorporated in 1918 as the American Railway Express Co., this company, formerly in control of the largest express transportation system in this country, is now operated along the lines of a general investment trust. In March 1929, in consideration of $30,000,000, it sold all the physical properties used in express operations to the Railway Express Agency, Inc. Subsequently, its charter was amended in order to permit it to buy and sell all types of corporate securities. This column does not comment on the possibilities of investment trust issues.

Miss E. S.—I now have General Motors common bought at 71, paying $3.30 in annual dividends. Does that mean on each share or each $100? I have $500 earning 4 per cent. Would you think it wise to invest it in M. B. S. C., circular inclosed, or Chrysler?

Answer—The dividend on General Motors is paid on each share. The two issues you are considering for your available investment of $500 are not unattractive. However, for one in your position, it would be much better for you to keep this amount in the bank and forget security, speculative or otherwise, until you have a larger bank balance.

Chicago Pneumatic Tool.

L. J.—Kindly inform me through your column the prospects and present outlook for Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co.

Answer—Common stock seems to offer attraction for long-term holding. A dividend on preferred has recently been inaugurated and it is entirely possible that similar action may be taken on the common before many months. Earnings in 1928 amounted to $3.08 per common share, while first half of 1929 showed $1.93 with expectations of full year going above $4.

Aero Supply Manufacturing Co.

G. J. F.—Can you please state your opinion, if any, about Aero Supply Manufacturing Co. "B" stock.

Answer—Purely as a radical speculation the class "B" stock has attraction for holding over an extended period. In the current year profits may approximate $1 per share on the junior issue, and this figure may be exceeded by an appreciable margin in subsequent annual periods.

Pennroad.

B. K. Y.—Please give me your opinion on the following stocks:

Answer—Pennroad Corporation is an investment trust closely affiliated with Pennsylvania Railroad, and therefore is favored with strong financial sponsorship. This column, however, does not make comment on investment trust issues. Curtiss-Wright Corporation is the premier company in the aviation field and is attractive for long-term holding if you are financially able to withstand possible wide adverse intermediary fluctuations. Cities Service is well regarded on account of strong management and constantly increasing earnings. Anaconda Copper Mining Co. is considered a premier common stock issue. It is expected that Kennecott Copper will further expand facilities in production in the next few years, and therefore the stock is considered attractive for long-term holding.

Davison Chemical Co.

G. D. S.—Please give me latest report of earnings and present outlook for Davison Chemical Co., of Baltimore.

Answer—It has been reported by the interests close to the affairs of the Davison Chemical Co. that present earning are the best in its history, and, while reports have not been made public, it would not be surprising if the next published report would show earnings in the neighborhood of $7 per year. Future prospects of this company are exceedingly bright. While the common stock is paying no dividnds, and therefore could not be classed as a conservative investment, it is most attractive for long-term holding if present dividend yield is not a decided factor. There is not sufficient information in our files on the other company you mention for this column to make intelligent comment.

EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

ARLINGTON COUNTY'S WATER FEES SCORED

Alleged Excess Payment Is Cited as Reason for Rejoining District.

POLITICAL PLANS MADE

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

To be required to pay an excess of $33 in addition to the regular quarterly $6 charged for water in Arlington County is only another good reason why Arlington County should again become a part of the District, Richard L. Eacho, vice president of "The Back to the District Association," declared yesterday.

Eacho stated that the figures are not estimated, as he is the victim.

"We who are users of the city water are charged $24 a year for the use of 40,000 gallons and for any excess are charged at the rate of 30 cents for each additional 1,000 gallons. I can not conceive of any one's using the large amount of water it is claimed that I used during the past quarter," Eacho said.

"I have paid the bill, but have done so under strong protest, and I propose to use every effort to find out where the trouble lies, as I contend no such amount of water was used at my home. My wife, who appeared at the courthouse during the past week to pay the bill, received no satisfaction despite the fact that she claimed there must be some mistake in the reading of the meter," he said.

"I had to pay $40 to even tap the lateral lines fronting the property in addition to paying the plumber to extend the line into the house and make the necessary connections, which are rather expensive. Had I any idea I would be faced with any such bill, which I consider as most unreasonable, I would today be still using my well and pump, which at the time were giving me good service." Eacho said.

"No wonder but a small percentage of the homeowners of Arlington County have taken the city water, when they see the danger of being confronted with such a bill as I have just paid and not able to receive any satisfaction."

Plans are being rapidly completed for the holding of a series of political mass meetings by the supporters of the coalition ticket in Jefferson magisterial district in the auditorium of the Potomac Town Hall, according to announcements made yesterday by the political leaders in the district.

While no dates have been set for holding the meetings, a committee headed by Walter B. Fulton, mayor, is busy rushing through the plans for a whirlwind wind-up of the campaign.

The monthly meeting of the Aurora Hills Civic League will be held tonight in the auditorium of the Jefferson District Firemen's Hall on Frazier avenue.

A full attendance is requested by the president, as it is understood that the question of an application for a permit to erect huge storage oil tanks containing not less than 25,000 gallons of gasoline and oil on the property known as the N. Auth property on Columbia pike by the National Oil Co., of Richmond, Va., will be discussed.

The Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association will meet with the Clarendon department tomorrow night in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce in the Reese Building, at Clarendon.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Calvary Methodist Protestant Church, of Aurora Hills will give a chicken dinner in the church Wednesday evening from 5 to 7:30 o'clock.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Del Ray Methodist Church announces it will give a luncheon in the auditorium of the Potomac Town Hall Wednesday from 12 to 2 o'clock.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the Columbia Baptist Church, of Falls Church will hold its annual all-day meeting at the church Thursday.

The fathers and sons of Troop No. 101, Boy Scouts, of Ballston, will celebrate its thirteenth birthday anniversary with a banquet in the Scout Hall Thursday night at 6:30 o'clock.

Among the outstanding guests will be Maj. William M. King, who recently celebrated his ninety-seventh birthday and who has also been an active worker in the Boy Scout movement.

Frank Sherwood, scoutmaster, will be the toastmaster.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Ballston Citizens Association and the Ballston Volunteer Fire Department will meet tonight in the Rogers Building at Ballston to complete its plans.

The Glebewood Citizens Association will hold its monthly meeting tonight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Martin, Cottage lane, Arlington Mall. The meeting has been called for 8 o'clock.

Miss Louise Beale, of Richmond, Va., grand matron of the Order of the Eastern Star in Virginia, will pay her official visit to Arlington Lodge, No. 39, at its meeting tonight in the auditorium of the Cherrydale Firemen's Hall.

On Wednesday night the Mary Washington Chapter, No. 50, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold a special meeting in the Masonic Temple at Clarendon, when the chapter will receive Miss Beale, who is paying her official visit to the chapter. All members are requested to attend and meet the new grand matron of Virginia.

Mrs. Ida Frank has been reelected regent of St. Charles Circle, No. 247, Daughters of Isabella. Other officers are Mrs. Helen Crack, vice regent; Mrs. Margaret Wiseman, treasurer; Miss Katherine Bailey, recording secretary; Miss Helen Burrows, monitor, Mrs. Carolyn Heifert, financial secretary; Mrs. Lulu Veitch, custodian; Mrs. Helen Mullin, chancellor; Mrs. Bertha Herriety, inside guard; Miss Regina Fraber, outside guard; Mrs. Catherine Burrows, scribe; Mrs. Amy Hall, organist; Mrs. Helen Mullin, trustee for three years; Mrs. Nellie Burrows, trustee for two years, and Mrs. Helen Crack, trustee for one year.

There will be a meeting of the board of directors of the Arlington-Fairfax Building Loan Association tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the offices of the secretary, D. R. Luttrell, at Falls Church.

Capt. C. C. Berkeley, independent nominee for the office of attorney general of Virginia, will address the voters of Falls Church tomorrow night in the Odd Fellows Hall.

Hugh Reid, Democratic nominee for reelection to the House of Delegates, and Louis A. MacMahon, his Republican opponent, will address the Ashton Heights Citizens Association at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at the Woman's Clubhouse at Ashton Heights.

The Woman's Club, of Lyon Park, will hold its monthly business meeting in the Community Hall Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

Robber Kills Man, Takes His $300

Ax Is Used to Slay Victim, Attacked in Home at Fairmont Heights.

Attacked by an unidentified marauder at an early hour yesterday morning and robbed of $300, George Gray, colored, 45 years old, of Fairmont Heights, Md., died yesterday afternoon at Casualty Hospital from ax wounds received at the time he was victimized.

Gray was found by his 5-year-old daughter, Georgiana, shortly before dawn yesterday lying in a pool of blood in a field near his home. A bloody ax lay nearby. Investigation by Maryland county police, who were summoned, disclosed another pool of blood beside the man's bed. Police believe that he was attacked while asleep and that he struggled out of the house in an effort to apprehend his assailant.

Police learned that $300 known to have been on Gray's person at the time was taken. An arrest is expected.

Man Denies His Death As Police Seek Body

Earl D. Magruder, of 1511 Wilson boulevard, Clarendon, Va., last night indignantly denied his death, although Maryland State police yesterday made a diligent search for his body.

Early yesterday morning a milkman told a concessionaire at Waterloo that he had seen a dead body beneath an overturned automobile near Contee, Md. When the State police were notified they went to the place on the highway near Waterloo designated by the milkman and found an overturned and badly damaged automobile. After the car had been identified as Magruder's they immediately started a search for his body.

Last night Magruder said his car overturned when he swerved to keep from colliding with another car, but neither he nor his two companions were hurt.

YOUTH IS ARRESTED IN FATHER'S DEATH

Ashland Man Dies During Tussle With Son on Highway.

VICTIM HAD WEAK HEART

Richmond, Va., Oct. 13.—Henry Melvin Perkins, jr., 20, is being held in Ashland jail on a charge of being suspected of murder in connection with the death of his father, an Ashland undertaker, yesterday morning at 1 o'clock on the Richmond-Washington highway, a short distance north of that town. His bail has been set at $1,000.

Perkins fell to the ground, dying instantly, during a tussle with his son on the highway, Sheriff H. Gray Stone, of Ashland, said tonight. The sheriff said young Perkins struck his father, but he would not say this was the cause of his death. He said Perkins had a weak heart and high blood pressure. This, together with the excitement of the fight and the blow, is believed by authorities to have caused his death.

Perkins, with another son, Frank, had been searching for Henry when they came upon him seated in an automobile on the Washington highway on the outskirts of Ashland. Sheriff Stone said his father ordered him to get out of the machine. Perkins wanted to drive his son home, but the boy did not want to go, the officer declared.

The boy was forcibly removed from the automobile, he said, and the tussle ensued. Henry is alleged to have struck his father, who fell to the ground, dying instantly, according to the account of the 14-year-old Frank and Sheriff Stone.

After an autopsy by Dr. Henry Carter, Dr. Thomas Booth and Mayor B. Morgan Sheppard, of Ashland, it was stated that the immediate cause of Perkins' death was unknown, but that contributory causes were cardiac trouble and high blood pressure, superinduced by a blow.

FAIR AT FREDERICK OPENS TOMORROW

Last Exhibits Are to Be Put in Place Today; All Ground Space Is Taken.

NIGHT SHOWS PLANNED

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 13.—The last exhibits for the sixty-ninth annual Frederick County Fair, which will begin Tuesday and continue four days, will be placed in position tomorrow in the household, pomological and poultry buildings. A large number of cattle were placed on exhibition yesterday and quantities of machinery and farming implements will be entered tomorrow. Practically all the ground space has been taken by concessionaries and very little inside room allotted to exhibitors is vacant. By tomorrow evening all the concession space will be sold. The major improvements this year include a new addition to the grand stand for 1,000 persons, making a total capacity of 4,000; a new poultry house, two new horse barns, a new midway and a new concrete walk along the frontage of the grounds. The improvements cost about $40,000.

For the first time in the history of the Agricultural Society night shows will be given Wednesday and Thursday. All attractions, including those in front of the grand stand, will be repeated at night. Flood lights will afford illumination and an added feature will be a display of fireworks. Hundreds of persons were busy today erecting tents, eating booths and side shows. About 25 race horses were exercised yesterday by trainers.

Most Entry Books Closed.

All of the entry books except the pomological and household departments are closed and entries are unusually numerous. The Federation of Women's Clubs and the County Club girls will place their exhibits tomorrow. They will occupy a large section of the household building ground floor.

Cattle and corn judging teams have been entered by the following high schools: Jarrettsville, Friendsville, Boonsboro, Princess Anne, Marion Station, Sudlersville, Centerville, Lisbon, West Friendship, Accident, East Newmarket, Smithsburg, Grantsville, Union Mills, Millersville, Oakland, Clarksville, Gaithersburg, Damascus, Poolesville, Middletown, Thurmont, Liberty, Walkersville and Emmitsburg.

Frederick teams anounced by Harry M. McDonald, head of agricultural vocational training, are:

Middletown—Cattle judging, Robert Keller, Paul Smith and Maurice Ahalt; corn judging, William Adams, Arthur Kline and Maynard Ford.

Frederick—Cattle, Upton Quinn, Millard Hall, Raymond Stine and Charles Putman; corn, Randall Garst, Roscoe Shook, George Page and Wilson Mercer.

Thurmont—Cattle, Howard Miller, Tolbert Lawyer and Harold Powell; corn, Elbert Smith, Will Baily and Kenneth Wangman.

Emmitsburg's Judges.

Emmitsburg—Cattle, William Smith, Weldon Shank and Sterling Eyler; corn, Charles Hoke, George Gingell and Mervin Eyler.

Liberty—Corn, Lester Grossnickle, Alton Willair and William Ecker.

Walkersville—Corn, Arthur Trout, Walter Culler, Paul Eaves and Charles Zimmerman.

The Maryland chapter, Future Farmers of America, organized here last year, will hold its second annual meeting and dinner at the Francis Scott Key Hotel Thursday, the day before the State judging contests. About 100 representatives of agricultural high schools are expected. Leslie N. Coblentz, president of the board of education, will be the principal speaker. Arthur Cecil, Howard County, president, will preside. Tuesday, the opening day, all school children under 12 years of age will be admitted free.

Montreat Fund Sought.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 15 (Special).—Presbyterian churches throughout the South today contributed to a $70,000 fund to liquidate the debt on Assembly Inn, at Montreat, N. C., the assembly grounds for Presbyterians in 17 Southern and Southernwestern States. The property is valued at over $250,000. The offerings were received at church services and also at meetings of Sunday schools and young people's societies.

Lynchburg Couple Wed.

Lynhcburg, Va., Oct. 13 (Special).—Miss Mildred Leonard Lee and Harry Bowling Hudson, both of this city, were married here yesterday by Dr. M. A. MacLean, pastor of College Hill Baptist Church.

FOX HUNTS BEGIN IN OLD DOMINION

Season Will Continue Until Spring, but Autumn Sets the Pace.

SPORT IS INCREASING

Warrenton, Va., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Down in Dixie the woods are echoing the baying of hounds and the thundering of hoofs of hunters' horses. The fox chase has been the king of winter sports for 200 years in Virginia.

The first frost of autumn on ripened corn and grass fields was the signal for the hunter's horn. Eight of the eleven nationally recognized hunts in Virginia began the season October 1.

Tired from the monotony of horse shows and hurdles of uniform style, society belles and beaus of the Old Dominion welcomed the call to the fields and woods and the thrill of riding to hounds over hedgerow and rails. The season continues until spring, but autumn is the gay season at practically all the hunt clubs.

The picturesque Natural Bridge of Virginia in Shenandoah Valley will be the headquarters of the Virginia Fox Hunters' Association trials October 28 to November 2. Manly Carter, of Orange, Va., is planning the greatest season his association has enjoyed in years. Those riding to hounds will be taken through some of the most beautiful scenery found in the hills of the Blue Ridge.

The eleven recognized Virginia hunts will use 267 couples of hounds.

The sport of fox hunting appears to be growing rapidly in Virginia and the South and approximately 30 organized hunts will be in the field in Virginia alone this year.

Roads in County Are Placed in Use

Connection With Clements in St. Mary's Is Boon to Residents.

Special to The Washington Post.

Leonardtown, Md., Oct. 13.—The road from Clements, which joins the Leonardtown highway to Washington, was opened today. This road will save residents of the Seventh District many miles. It is wide and has no bad curves.

The new road from Sacred Heart Church to Maddox, connecting with the State road from Milestown to Chaptico, is also finished and was opened to traffic today.

The State road from the Confederate Monument to Point Lookout, which Nuthall & Owens Co. have been resurfacing, has been completed, Supt. Francis Scrivner, of the State Roads Commission, has announced.

Work will begin in a few days on the road from New Market to All Saint's Episcopal Church, a distance of 2 miles, it has been announced. Most of the roads in St. Marys County are in good condition this season.

Bowie Dry Squad Member Arrested

Rum Charges Jail Capital Man, Once Raider in Prince Georges.

Memories of the far-flung activities of Allen Bowie, former State's attorney of Prince Georges County, and his so-called "flying squadron" of raiders, were revived yesterday when Richard T. Anderson, of Washington, former member of that squadron, was arrested and lodged in the Prince Georges County Jail at Upper Marlboro, Md., in default of a $1,000 bond on charges of driving while drunk, reckless driving and failing to stop at a sign near Centerville.

Anderson was arrested by L. E. Dutrow, Prince Georges County policeman, when he allegedly dashed from the Reds Corner road on the Marlboro pike without stopping and after swerving and careening from one side of the road to another for considerable distance, finally crashed into a fence.

After his arrest Anderson was taken before Justice of the Peace Harry I. Anderson, where he was formally charged, and his bond of $1,000 was fixed for his appearance in police court at Marlboro Friday.

Blease Will Address Open Forum Meeting

Announcement that Senator Cole L. Blease, of South Carolina, will address the Washington Open Forum next Sunday afternoon on "Law Enforcement" marked the meeting yesterday of the organization at 808 I street northwest, in which George A. Warren spoke on the subject, "An Elective School Board for the District."

Among those engaging in the discussion of various subjects during the session were James Sykes, of Tulsa, Okla.; P. J. Wallace, of Butte, Mont.; P. W. Austin, president of the District of Columbia Association Opposed to Blue Laws; Judge L. H. Keenan, a director of the American Equity Association, and Samuel Saloman. Musical selections were rendered by Miss Stella Hetrich and Aaron Kaplan.

YOUR CITY GOVERNMENT

Answers to Queries From Post Readers on Municipal Matters

Q. I live in the District of Columbia and have a neighbor who can not or will not keep his dog from barking nights. What can I do about it, how long will it take to get results, and how much will it cost?

K. M. O.

A. Article 8, Section 1, of the police regulations of the District, provide: "No person shall own or keep in the District of Columbia any animal of the dog kind which shall by barking, howling, or in any other manner whatsoever disturb the comfort or quiet of any neighborhood." That police regulation affords you the basis for remedial action. To bring it to bear go and see the assistant corporation counsel at Police Court and swear out an information against your neighbor. That will bring the question into court. There is no cost to you involved in this procedure.

THE NEW WEEK'S BILLS

FOX

"MARRIED IN HOLLYWOOD." Fox all-talking, singing and dancing spectacle based on a play by Leopold Jacobson and Bruno Hardt-Warden, with music by Oscar Strauss and added songs by Dave Stamper. Adapted by Harlan Thompson and directed by Marcel Silver, with Norma Terris and J. Harold Murray featured, supported by Walter Catlett and Tom Patricola. Reviewed Sunday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

If it was the purpose of Mr. Fox in selecting the screen feature for his Silver Jubilee program in his local cathedral to demonstrate the highest development of the movie technique as applied to the talking, singing and dancing screen, he could not have done better than send us "Married in Hollywood." Despite its utilization of elements distinctly belonging to the dramatic and light operatic stages, this imposing production never ceases to be primarily a motion picture. What I mean to say is that the mobility of the cinema has never been surrendered to the narrow limitations of the traditional theater, but is made productive of a kaleidoscopic succession of scenes—shot from every conceivable vantage point—while setting forth its colorful story of romance, adventure, revolution, the Viennese stage and the Hollywood talking-picture studios. It is a colossal achievement, eloquently prophetic of how completely the cameras and microphones can be made to overshadow every known older form of expression.

It is not my wish, however, that this be construed to mean, or even imply, that "Married in Hollywood" is not without its lethargic moments. As a matter of fact, it drags lamentably in its middle, and through the greater part of its length is largely deficient in comedy relief from the serious relation of a tale of harassed love and a ravished Balkan kingdom. But with these comparatively minor defects—at least minor in this film—have been combined many of the finest virtues of the formerly silent drama. Perhaps it would be clearer to say that while this picture borrows more than a little from the stage, it makes far greater use of a technique that the stage could never hope to borrow from the screen.

Particularly is this true in the closing Hollywood sequence when the whole process of making a talking picture is revealed with a sweeping comprehensiveness that is amazing. Strangely enough, instead of destroying the illusion, the content and treatment of the story are such that illusion is tremendously increased. This is a conspicuous characteristic of the picture throughout its length—the story has been so cleverly worked out to coincide with the requirements of the camera that the introduction of song, spectacle and ensemble dances invariably advances the story instead of impeding it. It is the story itself which does not gallop along.

There is no reason why it should. The time seems to have been reached when motion-picture audiences may be relied upon to derive a large measure of keen enjoyment from any film which encompasses competent acting, delightful singing, graceful dancing and a narrative of such substance as to do justice to music by so distinguished a composer as Oscar Strauss. All of these things "Married in Hollywood" possesses in abundance.

Norma Terris and J. Harold Murray, newcomers to the celluloids, portray the parts of the struggling American singer in a Viennese operetta, and her princely admirer in a manner wholly satisfactory. Each is endowed with a fine voice, screen presence and adequate ability to act. No less should be said of Walter Catlett, Tom Patricola, Irene Palasty, Lennox Pawle, Evelyn Hall, bearing a strong resemblance to Queen Marie as Queen Louise; Douglas Gilmore and the host of others who lend completeness to a production of prodigious size and incomparable artistry.

The Fanchon and Marco stage revue, "Beauty," is entitled to the name. It is a handsomely investitured production in which John Dunn, ukelele player and dancer; Lucile Paige, the most remarkable acrobatic dancer I have ever seen; Castleton and Mack, gymnastic comedians from vaudeville, and John Irving Fisher, master of ceremonies and piano, take part.

Immediately following the revue yesterday afternoon, Charles Farrell, costarred with Janet Gaynor in many of the screen's most notable productions, appeared in person and was accorded no less than an ovation. Mr. Farrell, obviously excited by the demonstration, spoke briefly and then started another riot by singing "Vagabond Lover" and "If I Had a Talking Picture of You," from "Sunny Side Up," with Mr. Fisher as accompanist.

The orchestral medley-overture of hits from Fox productions, arranged and conducted by Leon Brusiloff, the Fox Movietone News and a tedious reel of fiscal promotion for Fox completed the three-hour entertainment.

COLUMBIA

"THE HOLLYWOOD REVUE OF 1929." A Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer Movietone revue with the ceremonies of an all-star cast mastered by Conrad Nagle and Jack Benny. Reviewed Saturday evening (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

After having produced successful translations of stage successes in the realms of comedy, tragedy and operetta, as well as pieces originally done for the screen, M-G-M presents the "Hollywood Revue," which is just that in every sense of the word, and leaves nothing to be desired in entertainment of this character.

The "Hollywood Revue" is everything that the previous "revues" should have been, or that an edition of the "Follies," "Scandals" or "Vanities" on the stage really is, without the physical limitations of the stage but with the advantages of technique peculiar to the camera, which allows the obtaining of effects that are impossible on the stage.

Your favorite M-G-M actor is there and in a role, probably, that will surprise, amaze and entertain you. To name a single member of this constellation would but cast aspersions on the others, and the entire production is acted and produced on such a lavish scale that to hazard this chance would be sheer folly.

The entire production is presented as a stage revue would be, supplemented by a laudably judicious use of close-ups and trick camera effects, such as the appearance of Bessie Love from Jack Benny's coat pocket.

The balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet," done both according to Shakespeare and the ultramodern, and the grand finale are done in Technicolor, which adds greatly to their effectiveness, even though it results in a slight pang of regret that the entire production could not have been done in the same way.

But the galaxy of stars, the hilarious comedy skits, the delightful ballet work, the tuneful songs and the gorgeous scenery all combine to submerge the regrets and send the auditor away bubbling over with enthusiasm.

The subsidiary attractions are reduced to a release of the Hearst Metrotone News and a prelude by the orchestra, under the direction of Claude Burrows.

PALACE

"WOMAN TRAP." Paramount's all-talking screen adaptation by Bartlett Cormack and Louise Long, of the stage play, "Brothers," by Edwin Burke. Hal Skelly, Evelyn Brent and Chester Morris featured, under the direction of William Wellman.

Here is a police play fashioned somewhat after the pattern of "Underworld" that as nearly approaches that first of the line in tenseness of situation and sharpness of character drawing as anything that has found its way to the screen since. It is not always pleasant to contemplate, but it is unfailingly gripping and sufficiently close to life to seem plausible and pack a devastating wallop.

The three pivotal characters are a good-natured detective sergeant, his kid brother who becomes involved in a racket that defies the law, and the plain-clothes man's "girl," whose brother has paid for his participation in the racket with his life. It is because Dan Malone has turned hard-boiled after a catastrophe in his home by which his mother was blinded that Eddie Evans goes to the chair and his sister Kitty vows to put Dan in just as tough a spot as she is in herself. It will not be the purpose of this brief review to disclose to what degree she succeeds or by what quick twist of events her carefully laid "woman trap" functions beyond her intention. That is the kick of the picture.

Hal Skelly has a role that is in sharp contrast with the one he assumed in "The Dance of Life," and it is therefore all the more to his credit that he plays it with equal authenticity and forcefulness. Evelyn Brent as the girl has a part that is perfectly molded to her capabilities—a cold, relentless product of an environment in which were to be found few of the gentler aspects of a big city's ceaseless turmoil. This is the type of part that Miss Brent plays better than any other actress I can bring to mind and "Woman Trap" is proportionately the gainer by her presence. The younger brothers of these two are played by Chester Morris and Leslie Fenton, respectively, with Mr. Morris having by far the more impressive role—one, incidentally, which he enacts with a fine measure of intelligence.

Splendid as these major delineations are, I do not hesitate to accord Effie Elsler, in the comparatively minor part of the Widow Malone, a place with the stars of the picture. Her performance is productive of the vein of exquisite pathos, natural and unforced, without which the film would not be one-half so effective as it is. William B. Davidson and Guy Oliver are foremost among the others who render competent support.

C. A. Niggemeyer's "Marathon Frolic," occupying the stage, is a fast-stepping revue based on the idea of the marathon dance for important money prizes. The project is abhorred by a reformer whose son is the promoter of the event. The reformer is impersonated by Joe Browning, a monologist familiar to vaudeville audiences, and the promoter by Joe Browning, jr. Others who participate include Whitey Roberts, dancer; Jules and Josie Walton, the most graceful tango dancers seen in years; Helen Catherine Wright, songstress, and the indefatigable boys and girls trained by Dave Gould. Al Evans and the Palace Syncopators do some genuinely de luxe wah-wahing in George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," in which Lee Cronican, pianist, acquits himself with high honor.

The Metrotone News, orchestra and organ complete the bill. N. B. B.

EARLE

"ILLUSION." Paramount all-talking screen version of the novel by Arthur Train, costarring Nancy Carroll and Charles (Buddy) Rogers. Directed by Lothar Mendes. Reviewed Saturday night by Mary Porter Russell.

Were it not for the fact that this is an adaptation of a widely read novel, the logical conclusion would be that the scenarist had concocted one more story from the plot that has served faithfully since backstage films attained their vogue. It is a pleasant enough little picture, but there is nothing original either in situation or treatment, and the interludes of dance and song are not spectacular enough to be arresting.

The masculine half of the vaudeville team is this time lured from his adoring partner by the glamour of the social world. He longs to forget his circus background and marry the daughter of a millionaire. But when the brother of the selected girl shows a tendency to do wrong by his little partner of the footlights, he finds that she means more to him than all the rest, and rushes back to her just as she has maneuvered to have a real instead of a fake bullet shot her way, while performing her stunts of magic with a breaking heart. Happily, only her shoulder is injured, and the picture ends with the repentant show boy convinced that the fascination of wealth is only an illusion and that here in the make-believe world of tinsel lies his true life.

Probably no actress in filmdom could go further toward bringing conviction of this sort of thing than Nancy Carroll. She is as good as her part will let her be and she puts over several songs and dances in her usual charming manner. June Collyer is piquant and natural as the wealthy rival and Kay Francis all that could be desired in lesser role. Lillian Roth leads a chorus number called "Revolutionary Rhythm," other songs featured being "Levee Love" and "Illusion."

Buddy Rogers is still a sweet boy and very handsome. Maybe if a product of the circus looked like that he really could get himself invited to an affair where he would be dinner partner of a queen—especially if he had managed to acquire manners excelling those of the other guests. Buddy somehow had.

Topping the auxiliaries is a Paramount short talking comedy, "The Spy," with some amusing moments. Tom Howard is the featured player. Grace Johnston and the Indiana Five sing and play via Vitaphone, and Burns and Allen offer a vaudeville skit "Lamb Chops," through the same medium.

The orchestra failed to function at the performance reviewed, but the Paramount Sound News made its appearance, with excellent views of the departed distinguished Britishers.

Two Youths Injured When Auto Overturns

Robert Canter, 20 years old, and his brother, Albert Canter, 18, of Brandywine, Md., suffered painful but not serious injuries at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon on a highway near T. B., Md., when the car in which they were riding, with the former as driver, overturned while swerving aside to avoid an approaching machine that failed to stop.

Both were taken in a passing car to Emergency Hospital, where Robert was treated for laceration of the forehead, the left cheek and right arm, while Albert was treated for lacerations about the right eye, chin and chest. They were dismissed shortly afterward.

RIALTO

"THE AWFUL TRUTH." Pathe all-talking screen version of the play by Arthur Richman, starring Ina Claire, under the direction of Marshall Neilan. Reviewed Saturday afternoon.

In this, her screen debut, Ina Claire, one of Washington's most distinguished contributions to the theater, demonstrates the possession of every essential attribute for as successful an adventure with the articulate cinema as she has had with the stage. Photographically, she surrenders nothing of the beauty and charm that have always been numbered among her conspicuous assets; her voice records excellently in both speech and song and as an exponent of smart styles she may, as usual, be relied upon to arouse the admiration of the male spectator and the envy of the female.

"The Awful Truth," Arthur Richman's play, like Frederick Lonsdale's "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" and "Paris Bound," by Philip Barry, has been translated into celluloid with a majority of its original virtues intact. It is a comedy of clever speeches rather than expository situations. It is, therefore, fortunate that its two principal roles are intrusted to such competent players as Miss Clair—or Mrs. John Gilbert, as I believe she is to be known for the purposes of the cameras—and Henry Daniel, her English leading man. As the couple divorced against their wills by too eager gossip, and reunited in a most diverting manner, they are always the picture's major interest; an interest, it may be said, that is never impeded by the obtrusion of overpowering settings or any threatening gesture of preeminence on the part of any member of the supporting cast.

As a matetr of fact, there are only three contributory roles that are of any vital importance in the development of a sophisticated and smartly amusing comedy of an innocent, but at times misleading, domestic quadrangle. Of these, the most deftly drawn and the most skillfully portrayed is that of the new oil millionaire, who aspires to be the second helpmeet of the fascinating Lucy Warriner, by Paul Harvey. The other two are his aunt, impersonated with her accustomed acidity by Blanche Frederici, and the "other man," executed with considerable polish by John Roche.

The recording is clear and intelligible throughout, which, in one or two brief sequences of secondary concern, can not be said of the photography.

The supporting bill is widely varied. The Universal News devotes itself in generous measure to the world series and the activities of Prime Minister MacDonald. An "Oswald, the Rabbit," cartoon comedy, with sound, achieves a high degree of grotesquery, if not humor, and two short audible reels introduce a song, "I Want to Meander in the Meadow"—as it might be sung by Ruth Etting—and a Yiddish monologue, "Columbus Discouraging America," to which a second unidentified comedian subsequently adds a touch of Italian dialect.

Mack Sennett is represented on the bill by a typical comedy, "The Constabule," which reveals many of the old-time comedy devices of the Sennett lot which are not greatly aided by dialogue. Andy Clyde, Harry Gribbon and Thelma Hill are the featured comics and it would be ridiculous to say they are not funny.

The house orchestra completes a diversified and enjoyable program. N. B. B.

METROPOLITAN

"THE GOLD DIGGERS OF BROADWAY." Warner Bros. talking, singing and dancing picture in Technicolor, with Winnie Lightner, Conway Tearle, Nancy Welford, Nick Lucas and Ann Pennington. Directed by Roy Del Ruth. Reviewed Sunday evening (fourth week) by J. F. Brady.

For the fourth week of any successful box office-puller, there is not much for a reviewer to say, especially after columns have been written; the public itself has decided by capacity houses that "The Gold Diggers of Broadway" is a good show.

This picture is still showing to capacity, and for two hours—after you get inside—you see real entertainment.

The public has demonstrated its approval of the big spectacular, jazz-comedy-singing productions such as this attraction. It is willing to overlook certain apparent defects which always creep into a big production when it is compensated by a great wealth of fine entertainment, wonderful settings—everything in Technicolor—and the snap and finish with which this picture is put over.

"The Gold Diggers of Broadway" is a finished product, combining the elements of gorgeousness in scene, gowns, girls and everything else, with a substantially clear and well executed plot as a basis on which the girls dig for gold among the millionaires flocking to Broadway. The picture is filled with songs, dances, comedy and music sufficient to satisfy the most exacting.

The work of Nancy Welford as Jerry, the girl who plots and plots for Violet's success in love, then falls in love herself, is excellent. Albert Gran, with Winnie Lightner, keeps up the comedy, while Conway Tearle, Ann Pennington, Lilyan Tashman, Gertrude Short, Nick Lucas, Neely Edwards, Julia Swayne Gorden, Armand Kaliz and Lee Moran are among the others who add to the success of the show.

The Newsreel is the only additonal feature.

LITTLE THEATER

"HUSBANDS OR LOVERS?" A Film Arts Guild presentation featuring Emil Jannings, Conrad Veidt and Elizabeth Bergner. Directed by Paul Czinner. Reviewed Saturday night by W. A. Whitney.

To those who seek diversion at the cinema for other purposes than entertainment and to those clinically-minded, "Husbands or Lovers?" will be of interest.

Resurrected from the archives, this Jannings-Veidt opus reveals the story of a wife, who, no longer receiving her needed quantity of adoration from her husband, seeks to fill her soul's aching void through comradeship with a lover, who soon tires of the association. Ousted and unable to find her husband, she commits suicide.

The pivotal roles are carried by Emil Jannings, as the husband; Elizabeth
